Times News Services

ROME — Terrorists disguised as airline pilots today kidnapped former premier Aldo Moro and killed his five bodyguards in a bloody assault that plunged this violence-torn nation into a civil war atmosphere.

Telephone callers in Rome, Milan and Turin told reporters the attack was staged by the Red Brigade, a group so ultra-left it considers the Communist party a lackey of the establishment. They have claimed responsibility for many of the acts of terrorism that strike in Italy on an average of six times a day.

Moro, 61, is Italy's most influential politician — five times premier, five times foreign minister. Political sources said he had been widely expected to resume the premiership in a new coalition government. His was the first abduction of a major Italian leader since the Second World War and politicians spoke about civil war, imposing martial law and restoring the death penalty.

The terrorists, using a Japanese motorbike and a diplomatic corps automobile stolen from the Venezuelan embassy, ambushed and abducted the Christian Democratic Party president as he was driving to parliament for a vote-of-confidence debate on Premier Giulio Andreotti's Communist supported new government.

The men fired without warning, killing all of Moro's five police bodyguards in Italy's bloodiest postwar kidnapping, then sped off with Moro. The assault came near Moro's home on Monte Mario where the Rome Hilton Hotel is located.

The government threw an estimated 50,000 police and army troops into the manhunt, and some time later police said they found the kidnap car, with bloodstains on a back door and the back seat.

They said they found a bullet inside with fragments of Moro's suit, indicating he may have been wounded.

The kidnappers had abandoned the car and transferred to another, and police

SNOWSTORM BLANKETS BRITAIN

LONDON (AP) — Snowstorms struck much of Britain today, laying a white blanket up to 20 centimetres thick over parts of the country just two days before it is to go on British Summer Time.

At least two people were killed in traffic accidents as roads were closed, towns were cut off and traffic on even major thoroughfares ground to a crawl.

"It's pretty chaotic," said a police spokesman.

Israelis Continue Lebanon Drive

United Press International

Renewed fighting broke out today between invading Israeli forces and Palestinian guerrillas on a six-mile-wide strip of Lebanese soil and the Palestinians said Israeli reinforcements were pouring into the battle zone.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said Wednesday his country's 17-hour punitive raid had ended and Israeli forces would stay put until an agreement is reached to prevent terrorists from returning to the border region.

But a Palestinian military communique in Beirut today said guerrillas fought off repeated Israeli air and ground strikes in south Lebanon and reported fresh helicopter-borne Israeli troop arrivals in the border regions.

"Since daybreak, Israeli warplanes have raided several of our south Lebanon positions and border villages east of (the Lebanese rightist-held town of) Marjayoun," a Palestinian military communique said.

"A number of enemy helicopters brought in troop reinforcements as fresh tanks crossed the frontier in what looks like a new attempt to push inland."

Palestinian officials acknowledged guerrillas had made some "strategic withdrawals" from some positions.

An earlier communique said the guerrillas fought night-long battles with invading Israeli troops and tanks and checked fresh Israeli advances on the ground.

Meanwhile, creation of a peace-keeping force in southern Lebanon to maintain a buffer strip free of Palestinian guerrillas is being discussed between the United States and Israel.

U.S. officials said several options are being discussed with an aim to have the area policed by the Lebanese armed forces alone. But in the short run it will probably be necessary to have the Lebanese reinforced by a UN force, officials said.

They said there is no chance U.S. armed forces would be used for the job.

The U.S. officials said the Israelis ruled out having Syrian or other Arab peace-keeping forces move into the area.

Apparently adopting a hands-off attitude in action and comment on the massive Israeli strike at Palestinian terrorists, Carter administration leaders avoided personal statements and left the U.S. State Department to issue a preliminary view sympathetic to Israel.

"It has been clear for some time that the presence of the (Palestinian) military units in southern Lebanon has posed a threat to Israel's security," State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said.

"These units have not only declared their hostility to Israel, but they have launched terrorist attacks on Israel, most recently last Saturday," he said. "Both privately and publicly, we are urging that the violence not be allowed to interrupt the peace process."

Egypt mounted a diplomatic offensive to force Israel to withdraw in an apparent attempt to salvage President Anwar Sadat's peace initiative. Both Syria and Libya denounced the Israeli "aggression."

The right-wing Phalangist Voice of Lebanon radio station said the Israelis captured the south Lebanon village of Rashaya el Fokhar early today "and blew up two bridges in south Lebanon."

One Palestinian official disputed Israeli reports the invading force had captured all the guerrilla targets and was now mopping up the holdouts.

THE BYRDS
HAD ANY BREAK-OUTS IN THIS PRISON?
YEH, IN 1957 KNUCKLES NORTON GOT THE MEASLES.

Six Prince Rupert fishermen — five of them members of one family — are presumed drowned in the first tragedy of the 1978 herring season.

One body was recovered by search vessels this morning.

The six have been identified as Sam Parnell Sr., 44, Earl, Eric, Sam Jr. and David Parnell, and Larry Brown.

Their 60-foot fishing vessel, Ocean Invader II, which was fishing for the Port Simpson Native Co-op, was discovered damaged and floating upside down at 7:10 a.m. today 12 miles southeast of Cape St. James in Queen Charlotte Sound.

Radio reports from the vessel Wednesday night said it was caught in heavy seas and high winds.

The missing vessel was en route from the northern tip of Vancouver Island to fishing grounds off the Queen Charlottes in company with two other seiners when it vanished.

Weather at the time was very bad, with high seas and cloud scudding only 30 metres above the surface.

There were no signs of survivors and the Ocean Invader II was being towed into calmer waters by the department of fisheries vessel Arrow Post.

Taking part in a search for the missing men are two Buffalo aircraft and one Labrador helicopter from CFB Comox, two coast guard vessels and between eight and 10 commercial fishing vessels.

Bus Men Await Decision

Union and management involved in the four-day old B.C. Hydro transit strike waited today to see if the provincial government is going to intervene in the dispute.

The provincial cabinet met this morning and Labor Minister Allan Williams was expected to make a recommendation on whether or not the government should end the strike under the terms of the Essential Services Disputes Act.

The main issues in dispute are the union's demand for a shorter work week and the company's desire to control the spare board, a system for assigning work during peak periods.

MISLEADING AD CHARGED ICBC

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Insurers Advisory Organization has complained to the Insurance Corp. of British Columbia that ICBC's comparisons of insurance rates in various provinces is "grossly misleading."

The comparisons, used in ICBC advertisements earlier this year, compared ICBC rates for various types of cars with rates taken from the IAO's 1977 manual. The advertisements said the comparison proved that B.C. motorists pay less than those in some other areas.

In a letter to ICBC chairman Ralph Gillen, dated Feb. 6 and released earlier this week, IAO manager Ted Elton says the rates listed in its manual were only intended to serve as a benchmark for association members.

Rate quotations provided by Safeco Insurance Co. of Toronto shows lower rates than those quoted by ICBC in the advertisement.

The ICBC quotes were for cars with comprehensive coverage driven by persons aged 25 and over who have been accident free for two years. Public liability and property damage was listed at $200,000 with collision deductibility of $190 and comprehensive deductibility of $50.

ICBC said it would charge $301 for such coverage for a 1971 Dodge Colt in Vancouver, while Calgary drivers would pay $319 and Toronto drivers would pay $344, based on the IAO manual.

Safeco said that its rates are $63 less than those used in the ad for Calgary drivers and $62 less than the quote for Toronto.

Socreds Now Welching On Land Claims: Feds

OTTAWA (CP) — British Columbia's Social Credit government is trying to back out of its commitment to help settle Indian land claims, according to confidential federal government documents.

The documents, prepared by the federal native claims office say that the only effective means of bringing the province into claims negotiations is to increase political pressure.

Part of the plan includes a threat to establish a B.C. aboriginal rights commission without provincial government participation.

The commission, proposed one year ago by George Manuel, Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs president, would conduct hearings, commission studies and make recommendations on how to settle B.C. claims.

The documents say that preliminary discussions on the commission were held last year between Ottawa, B.C. and the Indians and were positive. However Labor Minister Allan Williams, responsible for B.C. Indian affairs, later rejected the proposal.

5.4% Growth In Investment

OTTAWA (CP) — Revised investment figures show that capital spending by business, government and institutions during 1978 will total $48.983 billion, up 5.4 per cent from 1977, Statistics Canada said Wednesday.

Earlier estimates by the federal agency last month had predicted investment would be 4.8 per cent higher than in 1977. The new figures include further responses to the agency's survey.

But despite the slight improvement in outlook, investment in real terms will decline for the second successive year because of inflation.

Federal authorities are hoping for inflation this year at between six and seven per cent. But inflation at that level would outpace investment growth.

In 1977, investment grew by 6.5 per cent from 1976 but the average inflation rate for the year was eight per cent.

The latest figures show the investment picture for the year is brightest in the four Atlantic provinces and British Columbia.

Capital spending — which includes investment in construction, machinery and equipment — will increase by 16 per cent in Newfoundland this year, the highest growth of any province.

New Brunswick's investment will be up by 15 per cent, B.C. by 12.2 per cent, Nova Scotia by 11.5 per cent and Prince Edward Island by 8.5 per cent.

But Ontario will see an increase of only 4.4 per cent, Quebec 4.2 per cent, Alberta by 3.4 per cent, Saskatchewan 2.5 per cent and Yukon and the Northwest Territories by 2.2 per cent.

'Recipe for Disaster'

By DAN POTTIER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canadians must accept as a fact of life that the devaluation of the dollar means imported goods will cost more, says Finance Minister Jean Chretien.

Consumers should "buy carefully" and in the case of foodstuffs buy more from Canadian farmers, he told the Commons.

It would be a "recipe for disaster" for the government to try to protect all consumers from all types of inflation, especially the imported variety. It would only cause more inflation.

The minister made the point after Statistics Canada reported that higher food and housing prices led the way in February as consumer prices rose by seven-tenths of one per cent.

Opposition Leader Joe Clark demanded action to ease the inflation burden on low income families especially since the most dramatic increases were for fresh fruit and vegetables which are mostly imported at this time.

He said costs in such areas were aggravated by the devaluation of the Canadian dollar and chastised the government for saying the poor should just accept the situation.

Chretien said devaluation also brought benefits in terms of making Canadian goods more competitive abroad and helping the balance of payments problem.

"We are paying the price of past indiscipline in the Canadian market," he said.

Meanwhile, the Retail Council of Canada says each Canadian spent an average of $9.34 more in 1977 on imported food than in 1976 because its cost went up as the Canadian dollar value declined.

The council said Wednesday the nation's total bill for food eaten at home in 1977 was $15.5 billion, an increase of about nine per cent over 1976.

ANOTHER LOW FOR $

Times News Services

The U.S. dollar today plunged to another postwar low of 232.40 yen on the Tokyo Foreign Exchange Market.

The currency started the day sharply lower at 233.10 and reached its low at 9:45 a.m., 45 minutes after the opening of trading. Wednesday's closing rate was 234.50.

The price of gold dropped to $185.55 U.S. an ounce at the morning fixing in London from Wednesday's closing price of $186.

The kidnapping of former Italian premier Aldo Moro in Rome, Israel's invasion of Lebanon, and Japanese economic news was cited by money dealers as reasons for the U.S. currency's instability.

In New York, the Canadian dollar was down 1-25 at $0.8903. Pound sterling was up 9-10 at $1.9135.

Pressure on the Canadian dollar had eased somewhat on New York money markets Wednesday as the currency climbed above 89 U.S. cents for the first time this week.

The dollar closed at 89.07 U.S. cents, up from Tuesday's close of 88.96 U.S. cents, and traders expressed guarded optimism that the currency would gain more strength over the next few weeks.

Repair Firms Rap Mair For Tarnishing Image

Spokesmen for car and television repair firms in Victoria said today Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair has tarnished the reputations of all such businesses by his announcement of a crackdown on dishonest trade practices.

Firms contacted by the Times were generally critical of Mair's statement Wednesday that preliminary investigations by his department showed widespread dishonesty and inefficiency among car and appliance repairmen.

The minister did not identify the firms or even the areas involved in such investigations, and this is a sore point with a number of local businessmen.

They feel his remarks amount to a blanket condemnation and that he should have withheld any public announcement until his department had launched its program of spot checks and unearthed and prosecuted the dishonest element.

"Right now we have a big dark shadow over us (television service firms) and we don't deserve it," said Bob Spooner, manager of Butler Brothers' service department.

He said he can understand Mair's motive of trying to protect the consumer, but he feels the consumer affairs department has gone about it the wrong way.

Doug Dobbyn of the Television Service Centre, 1014 Cook, said most dealers he has talked to are upset because consumers have no way of knowing whether the department's preliminary testing was carried out in Victoria or elsewhere.

"It has cast a shadow over everybody," he said.

Mair said the preliminary investigations showed poor or unnecessary repairs in 16 out of 18 tests of television sets, and also that more than a quarter of the 46 car repairmen checked were dishonest or inefficient.

But spokesmen for both trades in Victoria say they doubt those figures in any way represent the situation in this area.

Bob Dunsmuir, zone chairman of the Automotive Retailers Association, challenged Mair and his inspectors to find more than a token one or two per cent of dishonest car repair firms in Victoria.

"I feel he could have accomplished a lot more if he had just kept his mouth shut, found the dishonest shops and prosecuted them," he added.

"From the way his comments read, anyone would think the biggest portion of our day is spent deciding: how can we rip this customer off?"

But some support for Mair's action was voiced by Bill Boothman, manager of Peter Pollen Ford.

He said such investigations inevitably cast doubt on the legitimate people in the business, but if shady practices are going on he feels they should be exposed.

100 MILLION MARK DUE ON FERRIES

The B.C. Ferries system — in operation for 17 years — will carry its 100 millionth passenger sometime Saturday.

Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf, chairman of the board of the B.C. Ferry Corp., will visit the main terminals Saturday and give commemorative scrolls and pins to employees and passengers.

There will be no special momento for the 100 millionth passenger because with the number of sailings and terminals it will be impossible to determine his or her identity.

The next 100 million passengers will ride the system in less than half the time — probably by 1985, Bawlf said.

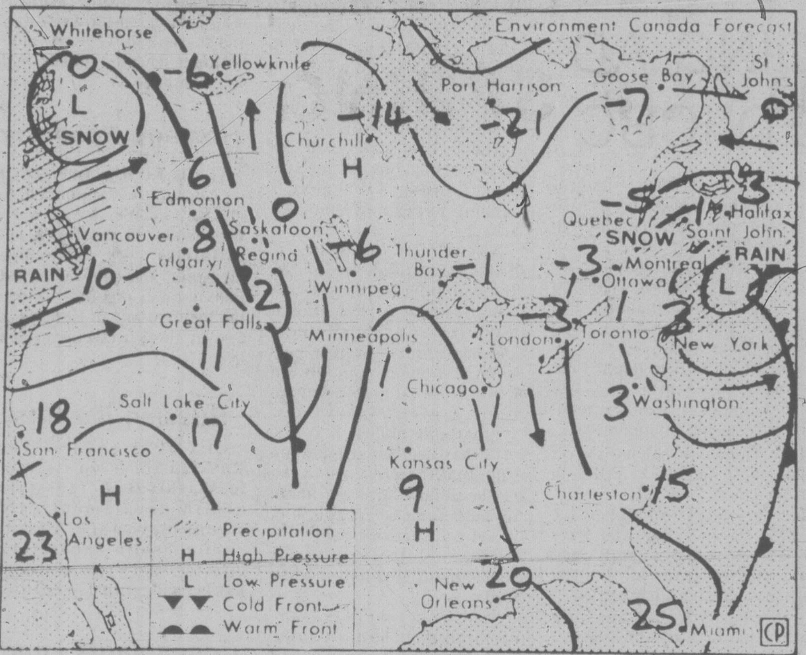

Map valid until noon Friday

A long elongated frontal system, stretching from off the west coast of Vancouver Island to the B.C. interior is slowly and persistently moving southeastward. Early spring golfers living in southern B.C. will experience close encounters of an undesirable kind as rain will continue throughout the day. Residents of the central part of the province or at higher levels on the mountains will hope the force is with them as they continue to fight the snow wars. People taking the mild temperatures for granted will be reminded that spring is more than a step away as temperatures will turn slightly colder before they become warmer again.

Vander Zalm Blames Quebec for Gypsies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm said Wednesday that 32 gypsies who sought refugee status a week ago might have been encouraged to come here by federal officials in Quebec.

Federal and provincial officials have been unable to agree on who should pay housing and food costs for the gypsies, who say they are destitute.

Vander Zalm said Wednesday that Denis Lazure, Quebec minister of social affairs, told him that while the gypsies were in Quebec they were housed in a federal immigration hostel and that the provincial government did not provide any funds.

"I suspect they received encouragment from federal authorities in Quebec to come here," Vander Zalm said. "I can not prove it nor do I know the reason they would do it."

The provincial human resources department provided the gypsies with food and accommodation until last Friday when aid was cut off. The band has been staying at a city motel at a cost of about $180 a day. It hasn't been decided who will pay this bill.

Vander Zalm said he was concerned that if the gypsies were granted immigration status the provincial government might be forced to support them. He said if they are allowed to stay the federal immigration department should take the same responsibilities as the sponsors of other immigrants.

John Taylor, a lawyer for the gypsies, has gone to court seeking assistance in getting them refugee status, and asking that the immigration department be ordered to pay for the gypsies' living expenses in the meantime.

Taylor also wants the Federal Court to declare the seizure of five cars owned by the gypsies for insurance and customs violations ruled illegal and order the vehicles be returned.

B.C. 'Slow' To Help Women

VANCOUVER (CP) — Discrimination is a familiar experience for more than one half of the population but British Columbia politicans aren't moving to alleviate the problem, an all-women research team said Wednesday.

The group, funded by a $35,000 federal Canada Works grant, found provincial governments have implemented less than one quarter of the 67 provincial recommendations of the federal advisory council on the status of women.

A nine-month investigation revealed that both the former NDP provincial administration and the Social Credit government are slow to implement the laws and programs needed to raise women's economic and social status, the researchers said.

Warrant Ruled Valid

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Supreme Court has upheld the validity of an RCMP search warrant used to collect evidence concerning a forged memorandum that caused an uproar when it was produced in the House of Commons.

Mr. Justice K. S. Fawcus quashed a petition filed by Walter Muller of Vancouver asking for a ruling that the RCMP warrant, executed Jan. 31 at Muller's home, be nullified because police seized material not named in the warrant.

RCMP seized a typewriter, letters, envelopes and a diary in the search for evidence in connection with a forged memo, revealed in Parliament last November by MP Stuart Leggatt. (NDP—New Westminster).

The memo purported to be a letter, typed on Government of Canada paper, from Col. Robert Bourne of the federal solicitor-general's security planning and analysis branch to Allan Williams, B.C. labor minister.

The letter indicated that Williams had asked for security checks on Paul Weller, head of the B.C. Labor Relations Board, John Fryer, head of the B.C. Government Employees' Union and Len Guy, secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor.

Williams denied making the request and the solicitor-general's department said the letter was a forgery.

Mr. Justice Fawcus dismissed Muller's application

Paying for Television

So the CRTC has nixed pay television. The decision doesn't mean very much to the average video viewer in the major metropolitan centres of Canada, stuffed on a diet of a dozen channels, and more, if he has coughed up $40 or $50 for a converter which splits the space between channels 6 and 7 into still more channels.

The only segment of the television industry actively pushing for pay-TV were the cable companies, which have reached near 100 per cent saturation in most markets. Their period of rapid expansion — and rapidly increasing earnings — has ceased; they face the slow, steady growth of any other utility. Pay-TV promises a new era of expansion.

Ratings of the American networks show that fewer people are watching the box these days — the abysmal quality of most commercial programming probably has a lot to do with that — and the prospect of commercial-free, uninterrupted viewing of first-run movies, special sports events and the like had cable companies drooling. Viewers would pay anywhere from $2 or $3 for every program watched or a flat monthly fee for a selection chosen by the company.

The laughable assumption underlying the whole debate about pay-TV is that the television we have now is somehow free of charge. In Canada, of course, everyone knows the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. is subsidized directly out of general revenues — more than $20 a year for every man, woman and child.

The costs of the CTV network to all of us, and the big American networks, are less directly visible but nonetheless their operations are paid for by the public, even people who never watch television. The commercial networks (and the CBC to some extent) are financed out of advertising revenues, the billions spent by soap companies, automobile manufacturers, cat food purveyors and mouthwash makers to sick their 30-second melodramas upon captive spectators.

Five or six cents of the price of a box of laundry detergent was spent trying to convince you to buy that brand over another with equally flashy claims upon your laundry. The automotive industry budgets hundreds of millions for its seductive commercials, and it all comes out of the pockets of car buyers.

Pay television a new concept? Tell us the plot of another situation comedy. That one's too funny for the tube.

No Help to the Cause

Tony Puddicombe and Andrew Halper should be aware of just how far they have set back the cause of the genuinely unemployed in B.C.

Puddicombe and Halper, whose names were not exactly household words before this week, were the two men who ended up with jobs at Bill Vander Zalm's nursery last week after Puddicombe and another man went there job-hunting as part of a so-called demonstration. Both were fired on Monday, Puddicombe after two days' work, Halper after only one. There had been complaints from the owners and senior staff at the nursery that the two were troublemakers.

Apparently they "were dragging their feet the whole time" and also were trying to stir up trouble among the other workers by asking questions about wages and working conditions. In their own defence, they suggest they were being intimidated by management at the nursery — and are even considering laying unfair labor practice charges against the place —, but they do not dispute most of the facts the management has made public.

Worse, the two apparently said they were dissatisfied with the wages they were receiving ($3.50 an hour) because they could net more on unemployment insurance, since wages are taxable while the insurance benefits are not.

The whole scenario does nothing but reinforce the commonly held but inaccurate stereotype of the unemployed — that they are a bunch of lazy bums who really don't want to work, would rather live on government handouts and prefer making trouble to doing an honest day's labor. There are few people in government or among the public who are willing to offer help or sympathy to individuals who correspond to that distorted picture of the unemployed.

In fact, only a few of B.C.'s 110,000 unemployed fall into that category. Far more of them are genuinely able and willing to work at any job, for any wage.

But they perhaps are looking for jobs in more productive ways than by joining silly demonstrations that only lose them public sympathy.

CLAUDE ADAMS

Keep Poison Off the Grass

WASHINGTON — There was a heady aroma wafting from the capitol room of the national press building the other day. Some would have called it the aroma of changing times and modern ironies; others would have dismissed it as the smell of a kooky bit of Americana.

What it was, really was a cloud of marijuana smoke. Nothing unusual. After all, 45 million Americans are casual pot smokers. In many states, it's a minor offence, like running a red light or disturbing the peace. In Alaska you can legally grow your own and you can even offer your local sheriff a toke, without fear of the cuffs.

But here, in the citadel of the three martini lunch, the national press building, where they still talk about Calvin Coolidge and spell marijuana with an "h", a cloud of burning grass in the corridors warranted at least a quick look.

In the back of the small conference room, six youths are sitting on the carpet passing around a microscopic joint.

Legal Brief

In the front of the room, at a microphone, stands a young man wearing long hair and a tuxedo, for heaven's sake, and he's holding what looks like a legal brief of some kind. He is talking quickly and confidently, like someone who knows that the attention span of most newsmen is measured in seconds.

In the middle of the room, amid the growing nimbus of hallucinogenic smoke, sit the reporters. They are smoking Winstons, casting brief glances at the heads in the back of the room, and asking their usual well-phrased questions.

They cough discreetly, liberal coughs. Tolerant coughs.

press kit is thrust into the visitor's hand. The visitor inhales deeply, blinks, and reads that the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws has just filed a complaint against the U.S. government in district court.

Something about herbicide spraying of Mexican marijuana and poppy fields, yards of legal mumbo-jumbo about violations of the national environmental laws, a lot of whereases and heretofores. It's too much. Already light-headed, the visitor decides to listen to the man in the tuxedo.

"A major health hazard to the American marijuana consumer," the man is saying. (His name is Keith Stroup, national director of NORML.) "The federal government should have filed an environmental impact statement before it got involved in the spraying."

Stroup, the man in the tuxedo, is explaining that since 1975, various U.S. government departments and agencies have encouraged and supported the spraying of highly toxic herbicides on Mexican pot and poppy fields.

The chemical, called paraquat, is supposed to kill the marijuana in combination with sunlight. But the clever Mexican farmers are harvesting the stuff before it rots, and shipping it north.

MARIJUANA PLANT
. . . cutting it down with paraquat

This is not funny. Sixty per cent of the marijuana entering the U.S. comes from Mexico, presumably from those poisoned fields. Paraquat has no color, taste or odor. Ingested regularly, it can cause irreversible lung damage.

And there's nothing secret about it. U.S. Health Secretary Joseph Califano has released a report which warns that three to five contaminated joints a day for several months can wreck the user's lungs.

Not so long ago, an analysis of 63 samples of seized marijuana in the American southwest showed that 13 samples (21 per cent) were contaminated with amounts of paraquat well above the safe level.

(In the back of the room, the smokers are into their fourth joint. They are beginning to sway and giggle. Is this to be a live demonstration?)

A man who calls himself an associate editor of High Times magazine, the journal of serious dopeheads, asks a hostile question. Somebody passes him a joint.

A lady from the straight press asks an impertinent question. "Why," she asks, "should the government worry about something which wouldn't be a problem if people obeyed the law?"

Stroup, who has been fighting this kind of logic for eight years, patiently explains. "We don't poison our prisoners, do we?" Marijuana, he continues, is slowly being decriminalized all over the country and the government should not be creatimg a health risk for the millions of Americans for whom the scoring of grass is as natural as, say, brushing their teeth.

What NORML is doing now is encouraging heavy users of Mexican marijuana to be careful. The tacit message is to switch to the safe Colombian or southeast Asian stuff, or even better, the home-grown variety, while the "system" decides what to do about the spraying under the pressure of special interest groups like NORML.

Nothing Serious

By this point, the smokers in the back of the room are unquestionably stoned. The reporters shuffle their papers, cap their pens, and begin to leave. This will be a "light" story in tomorrow's papers and on the newscasts.

But the visitor is still sitting, reading the legal document. On page 13, subsection 28a, he reads: "In many remote areas of Mexico, marijuana and poppies are the sole cash crops for the population, and the spraying program endangers the social and economic existence of these populations. . . .

And a little further down: "Many Mexicans whose sole source of income has been destroyed by the spraying program become illegal aliens in the United States."

He formulates a nasty question that he would like to ask the officials of NORML. But they have gone. The only person left in the room is a freak dozing on the floor against the wall.

The First Citizens

It is high time someone said a few kind words concerning our country's first citizens. I find it to be a genuine pleasure having native Indians for friends, after seeing what my fellow white man is capable of. Prior to our arrival, the Indian had fresh water, unpolluted air and all the food required for generations to come.

The white man scarred their land with a stick driven into the dirt (cloth attached). This was the beginning of the end. Water was quickly polluted, air contaminated and food taken in wanton waste. What has the Indian got to show for generation after generation of conservation? Please tell me again, honestly this time, that we owe nothing to the Indians. — Barry Tateham, Victoria.

Doctoring Tories

Allan Fotheringham recently made a blunt comment about the Liberal party in British Columbia. He stated that Gordon Gibson "can hold his caucus in a phone booth." Before going further I would remind everyone that this is a recycled W. A. C. Bennett gag about the Conservative party in British Columbia. Sorry, Foth.

Yet few seriously deny that Gordon Gibson is doing commendable work in the legislature. Even Mr. Vic Stephens, Conservative leader and candidate in the current Oak Bay byelection, recognized the importance of Gibson's work. He made a remark to this effect several weeks ago. Then why do the Conservatives persist in their attempt to establish a fourth party alternative in B.C. politics? Surely the demise of the old coalition in the early 1950s marked the end of traditional Conservatism. I find it most interesting that the only two successful Conservative leaders since that time have been physicians, heroically trying to keep the "patient" alive. What happened to the others, notable John de Wolfe and Derril Warren? These two Tory leaders never even made it into the House! It seems that Conservative physicians are more successful than Conservative lawyers. — Douglas Franklin, 4020 Magdelin Street.

Post Office Woes

There seems to be an ever-increasing amount of news concerning the antics of postal workers and their union in the news lately. One can't turn on a radio or pick up a newspaper without reading or hearing about how the postal workers are boycotting this, or complaining about that, or starting a series of rotating strikes.

Perhaps people might like to hear the opinions of a long-time member of another labor union, the International Woodworkers of America. What I have to say here is not in line with union policy. It is only my own personal opinion.

I have been a member in good standing with the IWA for many years now. And I have been through the whole shebang: strikes, pickets, walkouts, lockouts, labor disputes. I don't think you will ever be able to convince me that unions should be done away with. I firmly believe that unions are still necessary, and will probably always be necessary to look after the rights of workers.

But along with rights, there must also be good leadership. A responsible group of leaders who represent their union membership, not dictate down to them. As I am not, nor have I ever been, a postal worker, I can't say how their union operates. So I won't even try to guess.

I will just say this: since the post office was unionized, our postal rates and charges have gone up abhorrently, our mail service has gotten worse, the mail moves slower now than ever before, and with each raise in the cost of postage, the service gets rottener and rottener. Years ago, you could write a letter to someplace back east, mail the letter on Monday, and have a reply by Friday. Now, it's a miracle if you get an answer in less than two weeks, it seems. Despite the introduction of the postal code and automated equipment, the postal workers have made no secret of the fact that they will do anything to slow things up, inconvenience the country in general, and act as immature and childish as they feel they have to in order to get their way.

I don't know about the rest of you, but this is one person who is sick of it! If there is one thing I have learned from all my years in a labor union it is that you don't get anyone's help, or should we say sympathetic support, by hitting them over the head with a club and asking them if they sympathize with us at the same time. But this is exactly what the postal workers are doing more and more. And I have had it up to you-know-where!

There is nothing that any of us as individuals can do about this. And I don't have any real suggestions as to how the mess might be cleared up, save one: since the union of postal workers has repeatedly demonstrated their inability to cope with modern technology, perhaps it is time that some kind of binding arbitration be brought into effect. Perhaps there is some sense to the argument that essential services shouldn't be allowed to strike; I'll leave that to better minds than mine to decide.

But for you in the post office who think you're really something, with your threats and slowdowns and to-hell-with-the-public attitudes: this is one "brother" of yours who says to you; you're not any "brothers" of mine.

You make me sick! — Name witheld on request.

Cossitt Affair

One could write extensively on the Tom Cossitt affair and his disclosure of facts concerning Canadian security finally conceded as being authentic.

I may be naive but I must ask the question: "Are Mr. Trudeau and his solicitor-general considered more trustworthy than Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition leaders, Mr. Clark and Mr. Broadbent and their shadow cabinet solicitors-general?"

Some method of agreement should be arranged whereby when security branch reports are submitted to the solicitor-general, the opposition should have some involvement in policy decision.

I can conceive of an instance where an investigating agent feeling that the administration to whom his reports have been passed is endangering the country's security by apparent inaction taking the step of passing information on to a third party whom he considers capable and trustworthy, although I would consider other methods more in keeping for a security agent and employee of the realm.

We must realize that under our democratic procedures Mr. Clark or Mr. Broadbent could become the ruling party and in consequence recipients of national security reports.

We must make our politicians realize that with regard to national security we demand a strict adherence to Canadianism regardless of race, creed or party affiliation. We want trustworthy legislators sincere and sensitive, not party hacks in this very vital part of our national entity. — K. R. Burns, 401-640 Dallas Road.

Motorcycles

Spring is the time of the year when one's thoughts turn to the outdoors and to motorcycling.

If you are thinking of operating a motorcycle for the first time, or even if you have operated a motorcycle previously, the Capital Region Safety Council offers a number of courses during the spring, summer and fall.

The fact the operator is exposed in traffic to vehicles weighing in excess of 3,000 pounds requires the operator to be more skilled than his contemporary in an automobile or truck if he is to avoid injury or death. The motorcycle involved in an accident, with its lack of protection to the operator, results in injury to the operator in almost every accident. The injuries are normally more severe and the incidence of fatalities is greater.

The safety council course affords the opportunity to gain knowledge in traffic safety, defensive driving tactics, a brief insight is given to basic mechanics and almost half of the course is devoted to actual motorcycle riding.

The motorcycles are provided by the council and instruction is conducted by dedicated, safety-conscious, professional instructors.

The cost of the course is $105 and $50 is refunded by ICBC upon successful completion of the Motor Vehicles Branch test on the last day of the course.

Sign up for a course in motorcycle safety at 478-9584. — K. J. Wyatt, Manager, Capital Region Safety Council, 1767 Island Highway.

Close to Anarchy

Just what is going on in Canada? No doubt Tom Cossitt and certain other MPs are sincere in what they are trying to do but what is resulting from these actions?

The work of Parliament is being repeatedly held up with hours of argument over some charge based on evidence received from "unnamed sources," informers in highly sensitive positions who are obviously releasing secret documents, including confidential information received from NATO or other friendly nations. Excerpts from these documents are being broadcast across the country. The work of the RCMP is being handicapped by such information being publicized with no regard as to consequences here or abroad.

From the United Nations recently it was reported that friends of Canada are wondering if our country can be trusted any longer with confidential information and in London recently a rumor that accusations in Parliament the next day would bring down the Canadian government was noted as another unsettling element in the shaky state of our dollar.

So just what is happening in Canada? It is an ugly term but the fact is that what is happening now borders on anarchy. Certain citizens seem to have placed themselves above the law and above Parliament. Not the national police force, not the elected government, but they, themselves, will decide which facts leaked from RCMP or civil service files, shall be publicized and when.

Who are these informers who are betraying state secrets? Should parliamentary immunity be invoked to protect men or women who are betraying the trust imposed upon them as employees of the nation? Should any citizen, in or out of Parliament, be granted the right to accept such material and use it to further his own ends, however, worthwhile he may deem those ends to be?

It might be wise to ask a further question: Is there a possibility that some of our MPs are being used by informers in a move to discredit Canada's police force, her prime minister and her government? Are these informers in fact working for principals outside of the country? Or subversives within?

These are questions which should be asked. And answered. Before any further damage is done. — A. F. Davies, 4611 Vantreight Drive.

The Mideast: From Euphoria to Disenchantment

By JAMES CAMERON

(This article was written for the Manchester Guardian before this week's guerrilla raid and Israeli counter-attack)

For zealots, sentimentalists, patriots, humbugs and fanatics of all persuasions the Middle East right now is a fine and fruitful place to be; for people of reasonable goodwill and hope it is more of a depressant than it has been for years. I got back last week after a month in Israel; for the first time in 30 years of such visits I was relieved to get away. This is nobody's fault in particular; just that hope deferred maketh the heart sick.

I was last there less than a year ago. In the meantime Sadat's gesture of going to Jerusalem made the heart leap, and I truly believe on both sides; the breakthrough was on the way. And then the open door led into a labyrinth.

I have resisted the consideration for as long as I can, but it can hardly be denied now that Middle Eastern affairs have achieved a total self-destructive bloody-mindedness, a death-wish that seems to transcend all optimism, sustaining itself with the tensions it had endured for a generation and now seems unable to live without. The place is peopled, as was once said in another context, by those who have difficulties for every solution.

The Egyptian president's visit to Jersusalem, acclaimed as history at the time, has in fact already receded into history. The euphoria of last year has given place to a resigned disenchantment: we are not just no farther on, we are several steps behind.

Egyptian deviousness meets Israeli obstinacy. Arab confusions and obfuscations meet Israel's dogmatism. It is as though, having blundered so magically to the edge of peace, both sides flinch from it as from some dangerously unknown quality that nobody understands, as though hostility and fear had been everyone's raison d'etre for so long that we cannot contemplate a future without it.

For 30 years I have been, and remain, what is rather pretentiously called a "friend of Israel". It does not, as is often implied, mean being a non-friend of Palestine; very much on the contrary. But for 20 years Israel to me was the most stimulating and courageous of places, which is why today I am saddened by its sadness and troubled by its inflexibility and distressed by its increasing international unpopularity. It is fair to say, yet once again, that Israel seems capable of anything, except presenting an imaginative and reasonable image of itself to others.

Official spokesmen, conformist to a man, provide the cliches of righteousness, many of which have a generation's truth. The intelligent non-politicals, of whom I suppose there are still a handful in this country of critics, are in a state of exasperation not far from despair. That the first chance of peace for 30 years should founder in a sea of semantics seems perverse to the point of lunacy. To the outsider, however understanding of the dilemma, many of the issues seem both trivial and tiresome.

They are very much not so to the people involved, which makes it hard to argue. You, they will say, do not live here. They are right, though I was in Israel before three-quarters of its population, since I was there when the state was born. Maybe that is the trouble; for many years I felt that a nation born of a sort of idealism should be ideal. So did many of us. We asked more than any people could give.

Shimon Peres, chairman of the opposition Labour Party, argues that President Sadat turned the proper scenario back to front, offering the world the happy ending at the beginning, and leaving the complications to be unravelled thereafter. He complains that the script was faulty from the start with all the concessions made in public and all the bitter details behind closed doors.

All is complicated by the public intervention of President Carter of the U.S., who is generally held to be as wise and perceptive about the Middle East as most Georgian peanut-farmers. Nevertheless the leaders flock to him.

By now the argufiers of both sides are so committed to their several causes that they no longer seek rational conclusions but only to present the propriety of old and deep convictions, in both cases offered as the word of God. The shorthand for that is "defensible borders" on the one hand, and the "Palestine Cause" on the other. The Palestine cause is now so intrinsically part of the Arab mythology, and so manifestly nothing to do with the well-being of the Palestine people, that no move can now be made unless hallowed by anti-Zionism.

What is certain is that Israel's stance on the Palestine issue will not be tenable much longer, and that sooner or later she will have to withdraw from the West Bank — or as it is known Judea and Samaria. While Israel's 10-year-old occupation endures there is bound to be increasing resistance from a people whose urge for escape from Jewish colonization is no less than was that of the Palestine Jews in 1948 — and who, realizing that they are now the very eye of the storm, will increasingly exploit that.

Israel will be obliged, despite herself, to react with more apparent oppression. The moral appeal of her case will diminish. Even now the horrors of the Nazi holocaust are a fading memory.

Meanwhile there are domestic troubles in the land I have just left. Inflation in Israel makes ours seem to be in its infancy. Prices soar by the week, by the day, almost by the hour. Emigration from the Promised Land almost exactly equates now with immigration; as many leave as arrive. The controversial Israeli settlements in the Sinai have divided the government — especially the provocative one at Shiloh, which was preposterously and rather ridiculously disguised as an archaelogical expedition; the current gag in the cafes now is: "My son, the archaeologist."

Could there be another war? It is openly and seriously being said in the Israeli press that Israel could expect 8,000 dead in a three-day war, against 2,000 in 1973 — that is, in population proportion, equal to the total American dead in the Second World War.

Who could have thought, after last year's jubilation in Jerusalem, the kisses exchanged between Anwar Sadat and Golda Meir, that this could be contemplated even as an abstract consideation?

In a couple of months it will be exactly 30 years since the State of Israel came into being in Rothschild Boulevard in Tel-Aviv. The celebrations are being prepared — with the eye, as ever, on the clock.

All the News . . . And Sometimes More

THE NATION
An Editorial

The worst is yet to come. Books by Nixon and Kissinger are on the assembly lines, due respectively in May and sometime in 1979. These rich (for their "authors" and ghosts) troves of cooked memories, self-justification and intra-gang sniping will be unloaded on us before we can recover from the awful vulgarities of Haldeman.

The public has only one adequate defence against these attacks on reason, taste and the real history of the Nixon years — it need not buy these books. Even then it will not be spared the information and disinformation in these lucrative memoirs, unless it imitates the see no evil/hear no evil monkeys, keeping eyes and ears covered. The stuff will still be spread before them by every means at the command of the publishers' slickest flacks.

Haldeman, of course, is a certified liar, known by all to have twisted and distorted the facts of Watergate when he did not invent his versions of them. If he knows the truth, it is only a bowing acquaintance, and he seems not bothered by the fact that he lied most assiduously when under oath. His ghostwriter, a certain DiMona, who will share 50-50 in the proceeds from the curiously titled The Ends of Power, told The Washington Post that his collaborator has such "integrity" that "I'd trust him with every cent I have."

It is not yet clear how many cents might be at stake for DiMona, but first-serial rights for newspaper publication in the U.S. are said to have brought in $1 million. West German papers have coughed up $250,000, and much more gelt lies scattered down the trail. The reading public is supposed to expect a cetain drama when the Nixon crew turn on one another, each hoping to rend his ancient comrades to bits and perhaps even to look good enough to "make it" in some future career. But what will be lacking from this whole corpus will be that essential element of drama, verisimilitude. They were con men when they were in power, with absolutely no regard for truth. Now in the shade, they swing their hatchets at one another with an equal comtempt for it.

Greed, of course, runs all through this production, and that brings us to the door of The New York Times. That venerable institution, once a newspaper, is now a conglomerate which also produces a newspaper. Its book-publishing arm is Haldeman's publisher; its syndicating appendage is the sales agent for prepublication rights to his book. The newspaper itself was just one of some 40 buyers of the Haldeman excerpts. The trouble is that, for sales purposes, the name The New York Times is attached to all these affiliates, subdivisions or whatever, with the result that the Haldeman "literary package" casts a shadow on the respectability of the whole enterprise known as The New York Times Company. Hence the squirming in the ranks.

The Times' managing editor tried to put a certain distance between the newspaper and the Haldeman caper (the word is irresistible) by saying that The New York Times bought serial rights to the book published by Times Books from The New York Times Syndication Corporation — an "affiliate," he was careful to say, of The New York Times Company. It was bought by the newspaper, he said, because "we determined that there was a certain amount of news material."

There might have been less squirming had The Washington Post, a rival in prestige to the Times newspaper, not cheekily got hold of most of the closely guarded Haldeman book and run a long story on it in its editions of February 16, which "Upset Plans of Others to Publish Excerpts Next Week," as the Times headline stated, or complained, the next day. The syndicating corporate "affiliate" of The New York Times sprang the Haldeman excerpts, for immediate release after the Post had spoiled the game by simply treating the Haldeman opus as news, not an exploitable property.

On the substance, so to speak, of Haldeman's "Ends" (aims? limits? — it's not clear which he had in mind), there is little to say. Nixon was a diplomatic genius, but had personal "flaws." Kissinger was a conniving and dubious character; Colson, the "hit man," eagerly executed the designs of Nixon's dark side; General Haig was an anti-Semitic; Haldeman would do it all again, if given half a chance, etc., etc. The picture Haldeman unconsciously presents of himself as Nixon's chief of staff is of an ignorant martinet controlling the traffic of papers whose content was always beyond his grasp. A man completely unqualified for the serious work of government.

His superior, president of the United States, relied on this man almost to the end. Then he dumped on him in a futile effort to save his own skin and did it in such a way that at last the man turned on him after Nixon told his set of half-truths and lies about it all for a fortune in TV dollars. Until that moment Haldeman was all set to write a pro-Nixon book. He switched.

In all his guises H. R. Haldeman is a bad character, short of sense and without scruples. Representative of a particular presidency, certainly, and perhaps of a longer bad period in our history, an era of shameless manipulation. We owe no thanks to The New York Times and its "affiliates" for helping Haldeman to profit from his disgrace while richly profiting itself. Can we hope to see a blush on the face of that "great gray" newspaper?

Race Relations Take Icy Turn in U.K.

By JOHN EZARD
Manchester Guardian

One of the most feared terms of the English winter has been banned from the vocabulary of at least one sensitive weather forecaster. It is the term used to warn of the ice that occurs when rain or fog falls on a road already so cold that the water freezes too quickly to form the white crystals which make normal ice easily visible.

In the United States — where they're inured to fearsome winters — weather forecasters just lump it under the general term "icy condition." But in England it happens on so few days of the winter that we have a special word to denote the fact that this ice takes on the color of the road and is hard for motorists to see.

In England, unfortunately or otherwise, many roads are black, especially if they are made of tarmacadam. Around the United States Air Force base at Chicksands, Bedfordshire, the roads are apparently tarmacadam. And it was this that led to the horrifying moment recently when a newly-arrived colored American airman heard his base weather forecaster warn of the dreaded "black ice."

He at once made an anonymous phone call to his commander, Colonel William Ernet, to protest that the term was derogatory to himself and the 200 other colored personnel at the 1,300-strong base. The protest was made seriously and taken seriously. A base spokesman said: "He asked the commander why the condition could not simply be called ice on the roads or invisible ice. He said the term black ice held no sound basis in logic because there was no such thing and he complained it did not help race relations."

After making checks, Colonel Ernet replied in the base newspaper Antenna: "We apologize for any lack of sensitivity but we were not aware the terminology offended anyone. The point is well taken. In future we will use the most logical term 'ice' to describe the road conditions."

The London Weather Centre agreed to the extent of saying: "Really there is no such thing as black ice." But weathermen see two insuperable snags in the aggrieved airmen's alternative suggestions. "Ice" is not specific enough for English motorists. And black ice is by no means always invisible. However rapid the freeze, a few visible dendritic crystals often get time to form — which is one of the reasons for warning motorists to look out for it in weather forecasts. "Blackish ice" found some favor as an alternative.

The AA does not at present intend to ban the phrase. "Does he want the word black removed from the dictionary altogether?" a spokesman asked. The Commission for Racial Equality said: "If ice is black and you want to describe it as black, then there is nothing wrong with that. If — however — the ice is white and it is deliberately described as black because it has racial overtones, then that is something we would consider to be unhelpful. We suspect that — in this instance — the individual who objected was being a trifle oversensitive."

Weeding Out the Problem

LONDON — A truly disgusting book has been sitting on my desk for several weeks for the belated British spring. It is called Be Your Own Garden Doctor, and it is filled with pictures of plants suffering from Corm Rot and Wilt, Eelworm and Thrips; they curl, they are discolored, their leaves drop off or become shredded, moth and rust doth corrupt.

True, Dr. D. G. Hessayon, who wrote it, does have a cure to suggest for most things; though I note that he is no better than any other doctor when it comes to viruses.

Just as, in psychiatry, the test paper runs: "Do you know what is wrong with this patient? State yes, no or it's his sex-life," in ordinary medicine it is "Do you know what is wrong? State yes, no or it's a virus." And when a virus strikes in the garden, it seems, your only hope is to throw the patient away.

It is all very depressing, but I would study the book diligently, all the same, if it went to the real heart of my problems. But it seems to leave out most of what's actually wrong in my own garden; so I suggest to Dr. Hessayon that next time round he should attempt to include the following.

Yellow spotting on grass: garden chair, baseball bat or pile of barbecue bricks left lying on lawn for two weeks after user has promised to remove them. Cure: point gun at head of user, leave grass for a further two weeks.

Trellis Blight: this is an off-shoot of the social deprivation of the kids who live on the far side of any middle-class area; they come by night and tear out large pieces of wood to hit each other over the head with. Virginia creeper, liberally entwined with barbed wire, provides some protection.

Cricket: this pest not now confined to Britain but spread by the sailing ships of the Empire, results in bare oval patches at each end of any oblong piece of grass. Only cure: turfing — either new each spring, or the children out of the garden.

Stem-crack: is found in the tall, willowy stalks of very expensive lilies when they are suddenly struck by a falling skateboarder. Take the lily into the house and lock the skateboarder (if it is raining) in the garden.

Me Tarzan, where the hell Jane? This invasive jungular growth is caused by the family gardener having other things on her mind until about July. By this time the grass is eight feet tall, the weaker plants have gone under altogether and it is probably cheaper to have the whole thing bulldozed than to attempt a cure. Or, of course, rename it a Nature Reserve.

Cats: Hessayon does mention cats — most inadequately, in my view; perhaps he is the victim of despair. Cats are caused by other cats, especially female cats; their male suitors will fatally spray any tender young plant that has just cost a month's salary.

As the improved modern tomcat has an effective lethal range putting down cat-pepper or laying holly on the ground is a waste of time, as rushing into the garden waving your arms and shouting Gerroff! Attempts to discourage the cats by shooting them with an air pistol are also ineffectual.

We had a couple of visiting cats we called George and Mitchell; George had a white nose, was a Good Cat, was nice to our female's mother — she naturally despised him. Mitchell had a black nose, was a Bad Cat, beat up our female's mother: she adored him. My husband hit this animal about 17 times with his popgun, but all it did was to turn Mitchell into the only cat in London with a real appreciation of the relative tactical values of hard and soft cover.

We finally got the female fixed, and Mitchell went off to fresh fields and pussies new, and my husband hung up his gun; but I think they both feel that something has gone out of their lives. Only George, poor, faithful George, sticks around to make sure that somebody makes a mess of our garden. Please, Dr. Hessayon, can't you think of anything we can do?

today's markets

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Sharp gains in oil and gas issues kept the Toronto stock market moderately higher in active mid-afternoon trading.

Crown Life Insurance declined ¾ to $42, Cadillac Fairview ½ to $11, Falconbridge Nickel A ⅜ to $17½ and Action Traders five cents to $1.20.

Mattagami Lake Mines A rose ¼ to $8¾, Manitou-Barvue 15 cents to $1.30 and Preston Mines ⅛ to $15⅞. Steep Rock Iron Mines dropped 20 cents to $2.40 and Falconbridge Copper five cents to $3.95.

Peyto Oils gained 1¼ to $8⅝, Siebens Oil and Gas 1 to $32¾ and Ranger Oil Canada ⅞ to $28¾. Amalgamated Bonanza Petroleum slipped ⅜ to $37¼.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market hovered around Wednesday's closing levels today, subdued by wariness over the latest Middle East developments and the continued struggles of the dollar.

Advances and declines ran just about even in the broad tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The dollar slumped in foreign-exchange markets, equaling the all-time low against the Japanese yen that it reached earlier in the week.

Ramada Inns ranked among the most active NYSE issues, up ¼ to $5 in trading that included a 120,000-share block at that price and another of 100,000 shares at $4¾.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were generally higher in moderate afternoon trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange. Volume at 2:30 p.m. EST was 325,600 shares, compared with 415,200 traded up to the same time Wednesday. Alcan climbed ¼ to $27¾, Royal Trust A ¼ to $17⅜, Texaco Canada ⅞ to $40, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce ¼ to $26⅞, Dylex A ⅞ to $10 and Massey-Ferguson ⅛ to $10⅝. Weldwood dipped ⅛ to $11, Consumers Gas ⅛ to $17¼ and Southam A ¾ to $21½.

London

LONDON (CP) — The London stock market was moderately higher near the close of light trading in what analysts described as a technical rally. The Financial Times index was up 2.4 to 456.3 an hour before the close. Leading industrials climbed, while oil shares turned mixed and gold issues dropped in line with lower bullion prices.

CATTLE

CALGARY (CP) — Receipts to 11 a.m. of 750 head at the Calgary public stockyards saw a normal run of slaughter steers, heifers and cows.

All classes of slaughter cattle met a broad demand with strong activity from local and export buyers. Slaughter steers sold $1 higher while good-conditioned slaughter heifers traded 50 cents higher. All grades of slaughter cows regained Wednesday's 50-cent loss while bulls traded steady.

A1-2 steers over 1,000 pounds 48.50-49.50, under 1,000 pounds 47.50-48.50. A1-2 heifers over 850 pounds 44-45. D1-2 cows 36.50-39; D3-5 33-36.50. Good bulls 37-42.50.

A normal supply of heavy feeder cattle continued to trade active at prices $1 dollar higher with most of the short-keep feeders sold for export.

One package of fancy short-keep steers sold for 50.20 to Canadian buyers.

Good feeder steers over 900 pounds 47-50.

SHELL ACQUIRES CROWSNEST

FERNIE (CP) — The president of Crowsnest Industries says Shell Canada Resources Ltd. has officially assumed control over the company after acquiring 97 per cent of the company's common shares and all preferred shares.

Jack MacLeod, who also is a senior vice-president of Shell Canada, said Crowsnest will retain its identity and will carry on with plans for a $100 million development of coal reserves in the Line Creek area, 19 kilometres north of here.

MacLeod said Shell Canada's main reason for acquiring Crowsnest was to exploit the company's coal reserves in southeastern B.C. which have been under study with Mitsui and Co. Ltd. of Japan. He said the present outlook is for production of 1.4 million metric tons of coal a year by 1981 in the Line Creek area.

Shell Canada also plans to spend $4 million during the next four years on exploration outside that area, MacLeod said.

CHIEF, LAND USE MONITORING

Salary: $31,647 to $35,285
Ref. No: 78-PSTP-28-100 (4 7)

Fisheries and the Environment
Ottawa/Hull National Capital Region

A senior land resources specialist is required to direct the activities of the Land Use Monitoring Division of the Lands Directorate. The activities of this program involve research and development in land use classification methodology, land use studies and operational mapping programs such as the Norther Land Use Information program and the Canada Land Inventory. The successful candidate will be responsible for the development of a Canada-wide land use monitoring program and will participate in the analysis of environmental and socio-economic factors related to land use.

Qualifications

Applicants must possess a Bachelor's degree in geography or an environmental science with eight to ten years of experience related to land use research, project supervision, and federal-provincial program development and coordination.

Language Requirements

Knowledge of English and French is essential. Unilingual persons may apply but must indicate their willingness to become bilingual. The Public Service Commission will assess the aptitude of candidates to become bilingual. Language training will be provided at public expense.

How to Apply

Send application and/or resume to:

D.E. Fraser, Staffing Officer
Public Service Commission of Canada

$4.1M Budget for City Police

The Victoria Police Board Wednesday approved a $4.1 million provisional budget for 1978.

The board made no major amendments to the budget presented by the police department.

Mayor Mike Young, board chairman, said it is unusual for a budget to be approved without significant alterations and praised the police department for the quality of its presentation.

Young said the fact that the budget went largely unammended "indicates a considerable amount of work and effort went into the preparation . . . they obviously did a good job."

In approving the budget the board directed Chief Jack Gregory to call for tenders for a new radio communications system.

Young said the department should find out what it would cost for a package system to cover the four core municipalities, and what it would cost Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, and Saanich to purchase new systems individually.

The need for a new communication system is one of the major complaints being aired by the Victoria police union.

Another item in the budget provides for the purchase of 36 night sticks that are to be carried in all patrol cars.

The union has complained that the lack of night sticks leaves policemen only two alternatives when faced with trouble — either to use their hands or draw their guns.

Gregory told the board he has wanted night sticks for some time but held off because "I just don't feel that our men are trained in the use of these sticks as yet."

He said, however, that a training program will be started on the force to instruct officers in the use of the 26-inch sticks which are primarily meant as a defensive weapon.

Gregory said the clubs will be left in patrol cars and only taken out and buckled to belts in emergency situations.

He said patrolmen will not carry the clubs when walking the beat because "it presents too much of a hardware carrying problem — he's got his radio, he's got his gun and then he'd have this stick swinging there . . . it's just too much."

Also provided for in the budget is more than $10,000 to purchase 110 new jackets for policemen.

Inspector James Smith showed the board a three-year-old jacket he said was in typical condition. The seams were coming apart, the cuffs worn and the zipper was in bad shape.

"If a man wore that for another year he'd be in rags," said Smith.

Hydro Granted Spraying Right

The provincial environment ministry has granted B.C. Hydro permission to apply the herbicide 2,4-D along transmission lines in the Campbell River and Gold River areas of northern Vancouver Island, a spokesman said Wednesday.

Bane Vance, chairman of the pesticide control committee, said Hydro's application to spray 450 acres had been approved.

Four sets of applications for about 48 other spray sites on Vancouver Island were turned down because of proximity to domestic water supplies.

He said Hydro will be required to maintain a 10-metre, herbicide-free zone on all watercourses.

Vance said the spraying would not constitute a hazard to fish. Shirley Duncan, president of Sierra Club Western Canada, said the 10-member Campbell River Environmental Council will meet to review the project.

Meanwhile, Environment Minister Jim Nielsen said Wednesday the provincial government wouldn't be using 2,4-D to control Eurasian milfoil if it didn't consider the herbicide to be safe.

He made the statement in response to a motion passed Tuesday by Kelowna city council calling for an unconditional statement from Nielsen on the safety of the chemical.

The government announced earlier this week that it intends to step up its use of 2,4-D this summer as part of its campaign to control the spread of milfoil in the Okanagan Lake system.

"Yes, I believe that 2,4-D as used in our proposed program is safe, otherwise we wouldn't be considering it," Nielsen said in an interview.

A spokesman for the ministry said that if Kelowna feels the chemical isn't safe, then it can opt out of the government's control program and find a way to fight milfoil on its own.

The spokesman noted that Premier Bill Bennett's home is in Kelowna and that the premier wouldn't allow the use of 2,4-D if he thought it unsafe.

When we designed the new Chevette, we made a great little car even better. Because this year's Chevette Hatchback Coupe has 18 additional standard features. Some were formerly extra-cost options. All are now included as standard equipment.

Outside, Chevette looks snappier than ever with whitewall tires, bumper rub strips, body side mouldings, deluxe grille, wheel trim rings, chrome headlight bezels and bright hood edgemoulding. All standard.

Tucked under the hood is an efficient 1.6 Litre overhead-cam L-4 engine with 4-speed manual transmission. Standard. And here's the best part: even though you get more, you pay less. Based on manufacturer's suggested retail prices, the price of a Chevette Hatchback Coupe is $199.60 less than last year's model with the same equipment.

Visit your Chevrolet dealer today and discover the better-than-ever Chevette. It's a lot more car for a lot less money.

*Manufacturer's suggested retail price for the 2-door Hatchback Coupe. Freight charges, provincial sales tax and licence are extra. Dealer may sell for less.

OFFICERS IN SAANICH 'STANDING AROUND'

There are too many Saanich police officers standing around in the office and not enough out on the streets, a Saanich alderman complained Wednesday.

At a joint meeting of Saanich council and the police board, Ald. Ian Cass said the police department's administrative arm is increasing every year and the ratio has to be reversed in favor of regular policing functions.

He will propose at Monday's council meeting that Mayor Mel Couvelier strike a special committee to study the problem.

"It's like every bureaucracy, top-heavy in administration," he said.

"We have more people in administrative posts and fewer people, either in or out of uniform, on our streets."

Cass said that three years ago 12 per cent of the deparment's budget was spent on administration but now the proportion is closer to 20 per cent.

Ald. Geoff Vantreight, a former member of the police board, said there now appears to be one officer for every five men. Ald. Mary Casillo agreed that the officers are "almost falling over each other in the office."

Police Chief Bob Peterson countered the charges of top-heaviness by pointing out that the department's ratio of officers to men matched the B.C. Police Commission guidelines.

Because a number of members were in the office at one time it should not be assumed they were all on duty, he said.

Earlier this year, the Saanich Police Association complained to the police board that the department did not have supervisors.

Water Line Cost Set at $8 Million

This was the figure arrived at by the Saanich Peninsula Water Commission Wednesday.

The commission approved a proposed bylaw to establish a development cost charge of about $4.56 for each 1,000 gallons of anticipated annual water usage, based on a total capital cost over 20 years of $8 million.

The commission is composed of municipal and citizen representatives from Sidney, Central Saanich and North Saanich.

The Capital Regional District is expected to approve the bylaw next week.

It will then be submitted to the ministry of municipal affairs for final approval.

The main trunk line will hook up with the Greater Victoria water system at Beaver Lake and run through to North Saanich.

It will serve 20,000 residents in the northern half of the peninsula.

LeBlanc Not Interfering, Says Nielsen

Environment Minister Jim Nielsen said Wednesday he doesn't interpret a telegram sent Friday to a provincial forestry committee by Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc as constituting federal interference in provincial affairs.

Nielsen noted that the telegram, which outlined the broadened powers the federal government has under its new Fisheries Act, was sent to the Forest Land Use Liason Committee — an independent body of experts — not to the provincial government.

He said that while the telegram stated the federal government's commitment to preserve fish habitats in general, it made no mention of any specific area.

News reports Tuesday indicated the telegram had been sent by LeBlanc to the provincial government, warning it to ensure that the Cowichan River estuary be protected from ecological harm caused by proposed development of the forest industry in the area.

A copy of the telegram shows it was sent to George Ross, chairman of the committee, and outlines LeBlanc's intentions regarding application of the new bill with regard to handling and transporation of logs in estuary waters.

The telegram was sent in response to a committee request for clarification of the new law.

Before The Judge

A 26-year-old inmate at William Head prison who was to be released on mandatory supervision Wednesday was given two consecutive one-month sentences after pleading guilty to escaping lawful custody and possession of stolen property.

Brian Douglas Jones entered the pleas and Crown counsel Nicholas Lang told the court Jones was serving a five-year term for robbery when he was spotted Jan. 18 running with a woman's purse along a road in Colwood. RCMP arrested him, but he escaped from an interview room at Colwood detachment and was caught about four hours later.

Defence lawyer Barry Mah Ming, who told Ostler that Jones was supposed to be released Wednesday, said Jones' parole was revoked last September because he came to B.C. to look for work while under an order to stay within the jurisdiction of Edmonton.

Ostler said he would take that into consideration before handing out the consecutive sentences.

A 17-year-old who told Victoria city police he always wore two pairs of pants was given a suspended sentence, six months' probation and 40 hours of community service work.

After Russell Alan Court, 2822 Colquitz, entered the pleas, Lang told the court the accused was checked on the afternoon of Feb. 28 by police, who noted Court was wearing a pair of blue jeans under a pair of corduroy pants. The jeans had a $21 Eaton's price tag still attached.

Fined for drinking-driving were: Gordon Hugh Roberts, 2960 Sooke River Road, $450; Gary Bruce Hill, 32, of 5838 Blythwood, $450; Robert John Toms, 25, also of 5838 Blythwood, $450; and Brian James Blackstock, 35, of 550 Windthrop, $400.

'HOTEL' FOR HANDICAPPED

The B.C. Lions Society for Crippled Children has inaugurated a new service aimed at solving a perennial problem out-of-town parents of sick children or handicapped persons face when they come to Victoria for medical treatment — finding accomodation at a reasonable rate.

Ray St. Dennis, associate executive director of the society, says arrangements have now been made for out-of-town residents to stay at Nigel House in Saanich for the time they are in Victoria.

Users of the service will be charged a nominal rent to stay at the specially designed house located at 846 Nigel near the Town and Country Shopping Centre. A parent and child pay $5 a night, two parents and a child, $6, while a single adult pays only $4. Meals at $3 a day per person are optional.

St. Dennis says the program is designed to relieve a large financial burden such persons, particularly families of lower income, have had to face staying at hotels or motels and eating out.

The society will underwrite about 70 per cent of the actual cost of housing for all out-of-town residents.

Nigel House is run by the Vancouver Island Housing Association for the Physically Handicapped.

Opened in 1977, it has been specially built to accomodate handicapped persons and features double and single occupancy, an emergency call system from bathroom to bedroom, enclosed balconies and patios, two stories connected by elevator, a large communal courtyard garden and two lounges and reading rooms with TV.

Reservations may be made by writing to the B.C. Lions Society for Crippled Children, 3937 Quadra, Victoria, V8X 1J5 or by telephoning 382-3171. St. Dennis asks that bookings be made as far in advance as possible.

EASTER EGG HUNT ON THE RUN AT Y

The Victoria YM-YWCA will hold what co-ordinators Betty Ife and Winona Pugh call The Easter Equalizer this Sunday.

Registration will be at 12:30 p.m. and the event will start 1 p.m. at the entrance to 880 Courtney.

Participants can choose to walk-run either a one mile or 3½ mile course.

On registration, participants will be given half of a decorated cardboard Easter egg. The other half of the egg will have been hidden at the half-way point of the run.

Estimated time of completion will include the time taken to find the other half of the egg.

Winners must have the matching halves of their egg and be the closest to the predicted completion time of the event.

Registration will cost 50 cents per person or $1.50 per family. Proceeds will go to the Y Leaders Corps fund.

Saanich Seeks Master Rec Plan

Saanich parks committee has approved in principle a proposal by parks and recreation director Bill Young that the municipality commission a consultant to draw up a master plan for development of recreation facilities in Saanich.

Young said the approximate cost might be around $35,000, of which the provincial government would pay $25,000 through a grant from the provincial recreation facilities assistance fund.

The committee instructed him to draw up terms of reference for the municipality to advertise a proposal call.

In associated business, the committee considered a letter from a Glendenning Road resident complaining about the noise and park erosion caused by permitting motorcycle scrambling events in Mount Douglas Park.

Expanded Fort Rodd Fenced Off from DND

Nearly a mile of chain-link fence to divide National Defence property from Fort Rodd Hill National Historic Park will be erected this month at a cost of $47,800.

Superintendent Ian MacLean said Parks Canada agreed to put up the fence as a condition of the transfer of 110 forested acres of DND property to the park in February.

A nature trail will be built within the next two years through a section of the newly acquired property which includes water frontage, he said.

The fence encloses the oil storage property and wharf used by vessels of the Royal Canadian Navy.

MacLean said Fisgard Lighthouse, the first to provide light on the Pacific-Northwest coast in 1860, will be filled with temporary exhibits relating to coast navigation.

He said temporary exhibits dealing with the fort will also be displayed in the guardroom of upper battery.

"We are now making real progress in making this park a major national landmark," he said. "We are working on plans for a new orientation-visitor centre, plus picnic sites."

Magnum Force a Farce With Present Police Guns

The Victoria Police Board was warned Wednesday that all city detectives may have to be given new guns next year because the current ones can't cut it when the action gets hot.

Detectives are now armed with Colt handguns but the department will probably switch them to Smith and Wessons in 1979 if a barrel over-heating problem remains unresolved.

Deputy police chief Les Mottershead told the board the Colts are good guns "but they won't stand up to the extended firing of our new ammunition."

Mottershead said recent changes by the provincial goverment to technical standards applying to municipal police had required the department to change to new ammunition. And the new bullets heat up the old guns when a lot of shooting is done.

"Well, does that matter unless we're preparing to man the barricades?" asked board member Janet Baird.

Inspector James Smith explained that while the heating level might not prove to be a problem in the day-to-day activities of detectives, it could seriously interfere with training sessions.

Smith said that regulations require detectives to practise with the pistols they'll use on the job and they do a considerable amount of shooting in training.

The police spokesmen said detectives can get by with their Colts this year, but patrolmen are already being switched over. One item in the department's provisional budget allows for the purchase of 10 new Smith and Wessons with four-inch barrels.

Kidnap Causes Tension

said this second auto may have been spotted by a low-flying helicopter on Rome's outskirts. The crew reported seeing a car speeding down a country road with five persons inside, one of them held down on the floor.

Police converged on the area. Roadblocks were particularly tight between the city and Leonardo da Vinci Airport at Fiumicino, west of Rome.

Police cancelled all leaves. Italian labor unions called a general strike until midnight to protest the kidnapping, and employees of the Ansa news agency, who had just started a two-day strike over contract demands, called it off to report the Moro attack.

The Red Brigade has been carving an ever-widening swath of death and destruction across Italy for eight years, leaving behind their now familiar leaflets headed by a five-pointed star symbol.

Fifteen imprisoned Red Brigades leaders awaiting trial in Turin laughed and sang in their cells when they heard the news on the radio.

There was little doubt among senior police officers that the Brigade's ransom will be the release of Renato Curcio, 37, a student and former hotel bell-boy who founded the Brigade in 1969, and his chief lieutenants.

Exactly a week ago authorities made their third attempt to hold the trial of Curcio and 14 other Red Brigade founders in Turin.

The trial was postponed last year after the Brigade shot dead the president of the Turin Law Society and terrified jurors refused to serve.

They failed and the case opened amid unprecedented security at a Turin police barracks. But just 24 hours later the guerrillas shot dead a top anti-terrorist policeman in an attempt to intimidate judges and jurors and block the trial.

Since the arrest of Curcio and other guerrilla leaders in 1974 and 1975, police admit they have had no success in tracking down the killers who have assumed the mantle left by the founders of the Brigade.

Barge Spews Gas Into Sea

WATCH HILL, R.I. (UPI) — A barge loaded with 10.5 million gallons of gasoline hit a reef in Block Island Sound early today. Four compartments were punctured and at least 17,000 gallons spurted into the sea.

The Coast Guard rushed ships, helicopters, two empty barges and a highly trained team of oil spill specialists to the scene in an attempt to refloat the grounded barge before a fast-moving winter storm front closed in.

The barge Ocean 250 lay immobile 300 yards from the beach of this tiny town full of posh homes closed for the winter by their rich owners.

A smaller barge was lashed to the Ocean 250, pumping the volatile cargo aboard. A reporter flying over the area said a "rainbow-colored swirl" of leaked gasoline stretched several miles from the barge, which hit the rocks while being manoeuvred by a tugboat in the dark.

Faulty Ferry Pulled Off

The Queen of Burnaby today took over the Queen of Esquimalt's 11 a.m. run to the Mainland.

A B.C. Ferries spokesman said the sailing was delayed about 15 minutes so that the Queen of Esquimalt could be moved from the operational dock under her own power.

He said the vessel has been having engine troubles lately and the cancellation was to allow the ship's cooling system to be examined.

Sea-Seat: International Spotlight Turns

By AB KENT
Times Staff

A new piece of marine survival gear developed at the University of Victoria for recreational boaters is being studied by the military on two continents.

The sea-seat, an inflated square of nylon-polyurethane material, was seen by thousands at the university's open house last weekend.

Hayward said the Australian military, which has adopted UVic's floatation jacket, is now interested in the sea-seat and the U.S. navy and air force want the seats and jackets for testing.

UVic has become known around the world for its pioneering success in combatting hypothermia with its Thermofloat jacket, which the biologists designed and proved in a bid to save the lives of mariners.

Hypothermia is the sudden and drastic loss of heat from vital areas of the body such as the heart, neck and brain, leading to death from exposure.

Individuals wearing the jacket more than double their chances of survival in seawater by protecting the vulnerable heat-loss areas of the body for up to 9½ hours.

By using the sea-seat in addition to the body protection, a person in seawater can survive low temperatures for 15 to 24 hours, Hayward said.

Sea-seat was intended as an accessory to the Thermofloat jacket to increase resistance to hypothermia, and was not specifically designed for floatation, he said.

Both items were designed for recreational boaters as something they could obtain reasonably and carry with little effort in case of emergency.

Hayward said it's satisfying to see the military interest even though their personnel, pilots particularly, have the best available equipment.

HAYWARD
. . . "satisfying"

"It would be nice to see us export some expertise. We're so used to consuming their products," he said.

Among those who saw sea-seat demonstrated were members of the Power Squadron, a civilian self-help organization devoted to marine safety. Hayward said the squadron has ordered 50 sea-seats to start.

Hayward said it demonstrates that small boat operators have come to appreciate the dangers of hypothermia.

"I am happy to say people are more respectful of exposure," he said.

Although nearly 10 per cent of the body remains submerged with the sea-seat in use, that portion is only the lower calves and feet which act to stabilize the cushion as it supports a sitting user.

"Cold feet don't kill," Hayward points out.

The UVic team found that the combined use of the Thermofloat jacket and the sea-seat miniature raft rivals the best in specialized survival gear for the military, merchant mariners and passenger airlines with ocean routes.

They compared the UVic equipment with more than 20 quite expensive cold water immersion suits and it proved the equal of both close-fitting wet suits and loose-fitting dry foam floatation types, Hayward said.

"It's like life insurance for the small boater and it's equal to the best available products."

Sea-seat meets military specifications for materials, and is made from the same nylon-polyurethane fabric used in ocean survival rafts carried by airliners. The material is welded by a special purpose machine which uses high frequency sound to seal the seams.

When folded and ready for use, sea-seat can be carried in a large pocket, attached by a lanyard to a jacket or tied to the user. It is not self-inflating.

Hayward said ideally users should blow up the seat before entering the water, enabling them to ease on to the raft with the least risk of getting wet.

But inflation can be carried out while an individual is being supported by a floatation coat or life jacket.

Besides, Hayward says, there is biological merit in the act of blowing into the cushion as a means of stimulating blood circulation.

Inflated, Sea-seat is about 24 inches square and shaped to allow some air to be trapped in the centre as insulation. Folded, it occupies little more space than a paperback book.

After more than four years developing their device, the university biologists found it difficult to find a firm with the equipment and technology to make the sea-seat to a high standard.

They eventually found Fitz-Wright Manufacturing, a Victoria firm, which does the job for Thermofloat Products Ltd., 963 Kentwood Terrace.

Hayward said it costs about $20 to make a sea-seat and the markup to its $29.50 retail price is within most boaters' means. Sales are by mail order only and the university shares in royalties.

FOULED RELAY DOUSES POWER

A malfunctioning relay in the power cable from the mainland to Vancouver Island left Victoria and parts of the south island without power for up to 33 minutes at rush hour Wednesday afternoon.

B.C. Hydro said the end of the peninsula and westward to Sooke was affected by the power break at 4:48 p.m. when loads automatically cut out because of the faulty switch.

In some areas the blackout was only momentary but in others power was off until heavy-demand circuits could be restored in sequence.

Hydro said there was no connection between the failure and the strike by Hydro transit workers.

Rape Film On 'Standby'

The controversial film How To Say No to a Rapist could be returned to a rape counselling program shown in Greater Victoria schools, Esquimalt Police Chief Arthur Burton said today.

The 15-minute film, which advocates co-operation rather than resistance by rape victims, is under review and has been removed for the time being from rape-counselling sessions sponsored by the department.

"I wouldn't say it has been permanently withdrawn," Burton said. "It's on standby."

Burton said solid support for the film has come from students and parents in letters to the department.

The department will seek more opinions and view more films before making a decision. It it also trying to locate the producer of the film, Fred Storaska.

"We'll tell him we had some complaints and see what his views are."

Burton said the force has been unsuccessful in its attempts to locate Storaska, but believes he is in New York.

Community relations officer Constable Paul Hicks showed the film to groups of Esquimalt high school students last month, drawing sharp criticism from the Greater Victoria school board.

Mayor Art Young said today the police board has met with board chairman Susan Brice but did not come up with any solutions to the problem of the quality of films shown in schools.

Burton said the department is waiting for completion of a B.C. Police Commission task force on rape films before selecting a movie.

Friday Talks Aim To Avert Walkout By Police Union

The Victoria police board will meet Friday afternoon with representatives of policemen threatening strike action.

A key issue is union unhappiness with a new shift system proposed by the board.

"If talks break down we'll have no alternative but to serve strike notice," union president Sgt. Brian Bailey said today.

Union members voted for strike action at a special meeting Tuesday night.

Under the labor code the union has 90 days in which to serve 72-hour strike notice.

Bailey said from the officers' standpoint there can be no compromise on the issue.

"Either we get a 12-hour shift system or we don't get it. It's as simple as that," he said.

Bailey said he is surprised by comments Wednesday by police board chairman Mayor Mike Young, who said he doesn't understand police objections to the proposal.

It would involve officers in the patrol and traffic divisions working 10 and 12-hour shifts rather than eight-hour ones.

"I think there's been a misunderstanding somewhere along the line," Bailey said. "The board doesn't seem to have been properly informed what a 12-hour shift is."

He said judging by Young's remarks, the board appears to think the union is demanding 10 or 12-hour shift for all union members on the force.

"We realize the new shift isn't suitable for everyone and have given the board a list of 20 to 22 members who would be exempt."

Bailey said members want a shift system that parallels those in effect in three other municipal forces in the Greater Victoria area.

The board's proposal is completely different, he said, and that is causing the objections.

ARSON SUSPECTED IN MOTORBIKE FIRE

Arson is suspected in a fire that heavily damaged two motorcycles parked outside a Bay Street house early today.

City firemen were called to 951 Bay at 1:31 a.m. to extinguish the fire.

Firemen estimated damage to a Honda owned by Rene Fortier at $1,900 and to a Suzuki owned by Lucie Livernoche at $350.

Doubled Fines Studied by City For Late Payment

The city of Victoria is considering doubling the penalty for late payment of parking fines from $5 to $10.

Currently a parking meter fine amounts to $3 and if not paid within seven days is increased to $5.

But city manager Jim Bramley told council's finance committee today that "clerical costs have increased and quite obviously, with inflation, the additional $2 penalty is having less and less impact."

Last year, out of a total of 88,000 parking tickets, some 30,000 were paid late.

Bramley said the clerical duties associated with late payments are significant.

The committee will study a report on the matter for three weeks before making a final decision.

Mayor Mike Young, however, said today: "I think we have to increase that penalty $5 to $10 at least — even that may be charitable."

Young said he didn't want to see any increase in the initial fine, just in the late payment penalty.

In his report, Bramley also recommended a reduction in the fine levied for illegally parking in marked zones such as residential, truck, hotel or bus zones.

Bramley said fines covering those areas now amount to $10 and in addition, police order the tow-away of the illegally parked vehicle, which costs the offender an additional $16.

"It is felt that this parking infraction is too severe when compared to the parking meter violation," reported Bramley.

He recommended that fines for marked parking zones be reduced to $3 with an increase to $10 for late payment.

JUBILEE HOSPITAL MAY GET TOUGH

Charges Facing Smokers

People who ignore no-smoking signs in Royal Jubilee Hospital may soon end up in court.

Hospital administrator Dr. Archie Pickles said today the hospital board is considering imposing tough new rules to stop smoking in areas where no-smoking signs are posted.

He said the rules will be backed by authority of the provincial fire marshal and offenders could be charged with a violation of city bylaw 3434.

Pickles said the hospital isn't going to impose a ban yet, as St. Joseph's Hospital in Comox will do in October, but "we're working towards it." (See page 20.)

"A total ban will have to come in time," he said.

But to do so now would be a hardship particularly for elderly patients with terminal illnesses for whom "taking a little puff now and then is one of the few pleasures left to them."

Pickles said the hospital has been carrying out a program for four years aimed at educating the public, patients and staff about the dangers of smoking.

He said the program has had some success in reducing smoking among staff members but there are still problems with visitors and some patients.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for Victoria General Hospital said an internal hospital committee is looking into the problems of smoking and will make recommendations on how far the hospital should go.

At present smoking is only restricted in certain areas. And cigarettes are still permitted to be sold at the hospital kiosk.

"We have a special problem here because the CNIB runs the kiosk and if there was a total ban we may put someone out of work," the spokesman said.

In other respects the hospital is attempting to set an example. The board and senior staff have passed motions not to smoke during meetings.

"It's amazing how quickly we get through the meetings now," a staff member said.

UVIC ART SHOW UNTIL SATURDAY

The University of Victoria's art collection is being displayed for the first time in the new gallery on campus.

The inaugural exibition of UVic's Maltwood Art Museum and Gallery runs until Saturday in the new gallery in the University Centre foyer.

Although the official gallery opening is in September, the inaugural exhibition has been planned to give visitors and the campus community an early view of the university's art collection.

The Maltwood Museum collection of 17th Century English furniture and 19th Century clothing, glassware and ceramics is the only comprehensive international decorative arts collection in Western Canada.

It was bequeathed to UVic in 1964 by the husband of Katharnine Maltwood, turn-of-the-century sculptress, antiquarian and writer.

UVic's art collection, started in 1952, contains B.C. watercolors and other art including some contemporary native prints.

Oak Bay Hopefuls To Spend $75,000

The five candidates in Monday's Oak Bay byelection are spending a total of about $75,000.

The candidates — Bennett Camp, New Democratic Party; Frank Carson, Social Credit; Graham Ross-Smith, Liberal; Vic Stephens, Conservative and Larry Tickner, Socialist Party of Canada — all predict victory but few political pundits are prepared to go that far for any of them.

Ross-Smith says the party, which held the seat from 1952 to 1969 when it was taken by former Conservative leader Scott Wallace under the Social Credit party banner, is spending about $20,000 on the race. The Liberals spent $883 in Oak Bay during the 1975 provincial general election.

Conservative leader Stephens said his party is spending $20,000. Wallace, running as a Conservative, spent $13,200 in the 1975 general election.

Carson, a car dealer who defeated Oak Bay mayor Brian Smith in the only nomination battle, said his party is spending between $20,000 and $21,000 — an increase from the $18,600 he spent in his effort to unseat Wallace in 1975.

Camp, who is spending about $15,000 in the upper-middle-class riding, has criticized the government for what he says are its punitive political taxation policies which resulted in several tax increases.

Tickner, a carpenter, is spending $850.

There are 30,483 registered voters in the riding, an increase from the 1975 election when 22,638 voted. Current standing in the legislature is Social Credit, 35; NDP, 18; Liberal, 1; and vacant, 1.

Will the Push Broom Sweep the Country?

The Brier is over, Fast Eddie has won; Bernie didn't make it, does that mean he is done?

Not really, although a story immediately following the 49th Canadian curling championships in Vancouver last week suggested that Bernie Sparkes, B.C.'s representative, might throw his broom in a closet and forget it forever.

Sparkes himself was quoted: "It's 70-30 that I'm going to bag it."

But don't believe it. Sparkes is still No. 1 in B.C., is only 36, has been there nine times, and was only one victory removed from the championship last week. Time is still on his side to win as a skip.

And if it hadn't been for Black Thursday when he lost both his games, to Saskatchewan in an extra end, and on a steal at that; and then to Alberta, it might have been different. Of course, it will always be argued that he used poor play selection earlier when Manitoba stole three in the 10th for that other defeat. So otherwise he played well.

But when he does come back there is a possibility he won't have the same rink, at least not all season.

That much is definite. Keiven Bauer, who twice has been named all star Brier lead, wants out of the demanding schedule his rink engaged in last year. He'll play, but not on the weekend cashspiel circuit because of family commitments. He has one child a year old at home now and his wife is expecting another. "I just can't spend all that time away from home," said Keiven, who otherwise is an accountant.

Third Ron Thompson is doubtful as well. He graduates in engineering from UBC this spring and isn't certain where his future will be.

Still, look for "Sparky" to be there somewhere. What else has he ever done in any winter=

As for the curling, Eddie Lukowich (Fast Eddie), Mike Chernoff, Dale Johnston and Ron Schindle proved the best although there was signs of pressure starting to tell near the end.

A 13-3 defeat by Rick Folk of Saskatoon the night before the final draw had the Albertans on edge and, if Ontario's Gerry Hodson had only been able to make a couple of key shots early on that final draw — well, anything could have happened.

But it didn't and that's why Lukowich is in the World and all the others are saying "wait until next year."

But now the question sweeping the country is: how many of the major rinks will switch to the brush?

Three members of Alberta's rink used push brooms and used them well. It was Schindle, the lead, who talked his mates into the move after they had noted the success the Paul Gowsell junior rink had achieved in major cashspiels. And they all used the brush.

It's not just that you can keep the rock straighter but, according to Schindle, it's a lot easier on the player as well.

There's a very important cost factor involved too. A competitive curler on the average goes through about six corn brooms in a season which, at $12-$14 a crack, is a fair outlay.

But Laurie Artiss, a former sportswriter who saw the light and went into the lucrative business field of curling equipment, says a good brush should last a whole season.

The cost? About $25, he suggests; and now he's worried that he can get enough of them to keep up with the expected demand.

And oh, yes, the "Fast Eddie" nickname tagged on Lukowich is not because of the speed with which he sometimes throws his rock, but is a caustic commentary on the fact that when he was skipping in the past his games sometimes took four hours to play.

And otherwise, too, Chernoff, who holds the broom now and throws third rocks is actually from Calgary, plays there, but does pay his dues in Medicine Hat.

Next year in Ottawa, the Brier marks its 50th anniversary and will be the final show by Macdonalds.

Labatts will then take over and retain most of the formats now in effect.

One change, however, will likely include a playoff following the round-robin series with the number of competing teams (three or four) yet to be determined.

Which brings up the old chestnut. What happens if a rink goes through the round-robin undefeated and then loses in a playoff?

Too bad, eh. But that's the price of television and why the playoff is being considered.

Last Saturday, for instance, if Alberta had beaten Saskatchewan Friday night, the CBC TV coverage of the final draw would have been meaningless. So CBC lucked out and all those who weren't there saw it "live" as Lukowich won it. Or rather as Hodson blew his chance to be a hero.

For as Lukowich said afterwards: "We came out cold and if Hodson had been on his game early, we would have been so far down we might never have caught up."

And where have you heard that before?

Habs Teach Hawks A Lesson In Strategy

By Canadian Press

The National Hockey League champions stomped all over the Black Hawks for a 6-2 win.

"There was no way Chicago was going to beat us tonight because we were really mentally prepared to go out and beat them," said Montreal goalie Ken Dryden. "They came at us hard in the opening minutes and they made a couple of key mistakes and we put on so much pressure that they quickly fell behind."

Black Hawks veteran Stan Mikita, who finished the home-team scoring with his 515th career goal suggested some of his team-mates were not properly prepared for the match.

"But then each guy has to look in the mirror at himself and analyze himself and make an accounting," Mikita added. "You cannot play wide-open hockey against Montreal and expect to win."

In other NHL games Wednesday, Toronto Maple Leafs beat Washington Capitals 5-2, Vancouver Canucks defeated Pittsburgh Penguins 7-4, Atlanta Flames beat St. Louis Blues 6-2, Cleveland Barons tied Colorado Rockies 2-2 and New York Rangers tied Philadelphia Flyers, also 2-2. (Summaries on page 18).

The win was the Canadiens' seventh in their last eight contests and 51st against just nine losses this season.

They were led by Doug Jarvis's two goals and an assist and Guy Lafleur's 55th goal and an assist which gave him 118 total points.

Said Lafleur: "This is the only team I had not scored a goal against and I think I put forth a little extra effort."

After a chippy game at Washington, Capitals coach Tom McVie said his team followed their game plan but mistakes allowed the Leafs three unanswered goals in the third period.

"The goals they scored were just awful errors and awful mistakes on our part," said McVie. "We had a couple opportunities to get goahead goals, but we just failed."

Leafs defenceman Borje Salming was the star of the match, playing strong defence while scoring one goal and assisting on three others.

The Leafs were pleased by the performance of their new team member, Dan Maloney, acquired this week from Detroit Red Wings.

"He will give a lot of balance to our line," said captain Darryl Sittler. "He's an aggressive player, and plays the body well."

"He'll have the defencemen thinking about him when he comes into the corners. It will take a lot concentration to keep him out of their minds."

At Vancouver, centre Derek Sanderson continued his comeback from a year-long absence by scoring his first goal for Pittsburgh Penguins and setting up another by Rick Kehoe, but the Canucks won the game, led by Rick Blight's two goals.

It was Sanderson's second game since joining the Penguins on Tuesday, and second loss for the Penguins.

Steve Vickers batted in a rebound with 4:32 remaining to lift the Rangers into the tie against Philadelphia while Chuck Arnason scored at 6:34 of the third period to give Cleveland the tie against Colorado.

Canadians Reach Semis

GRINDELWALD, Switzerland (AP) — Norway defeated the United States today to join Scotland, Sweden and reigning-champion Canada in the semi-finals of the world junior curling championships being played here.

In a playoff match to decide the fourth semi-final place, the Americans were leading 5-4 after nine ends. But then skip Jeff Tomlinson of Seattle narrowly missed a take-out shot and Norway scored two points in the final end to win the match.

After all 10 countries had played each other, the U.S. and Norway were tied in fourth place with five wins and four losses. In the semi-finals due to be played later today, Norway was scheduled to meet Canada while Scotland faces Sweden, with the winners playing for the world title on Friday.

In ninth round matches Wednesday night, the U.S. lost 2-8 to Scotland; Canada won its eighth match out of nine and France picked up its only win in the week-long tournament.

Secretariat Colt Tops Breeder Sale

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Colts of Triple Crown winner Secretariat and Preakness-Belmont winner Little Current drew the top prices Monday night and Tuesday at early sessions of the California Thoroughbred Breeders Association sale of two-year olds in training.

Dominator, a son of Secretariat out of the second-best two-year-old filly of her crop, Windy's Daughter, broke the record for the sale by $150,000 when he brought a final bid of $325,000.

The horse which had been consigned to agent Fred Purner was bought for a syndicate Monday night by another agent, William McDonald of Bradbury, Calif.

The second session Tuesday was topped by two sons of Little Current, who led all first-year sires last year by sale yearling average.

Another son of Little Current, out of Shahtash, brought a session-topping bid of $149,000, from Al Katz of Los Angeles.

Lions Stock Up On Linebackers

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions today announced the signing of import linebackers Carl Pennington and Pat Richardson to 1978 Canadian Football League contracts.

Pennington, 23, played college football at Kansas State, where he was named to the All-Big Eight team in 1975.

He was not selected in the 1977 National Football League draft because of a knee injury, a spokesman for the Lions said.

Richardson, 25, played college ball at the University of Hawaii and signed with San Diego Chargers of the NFL in 1976 as a free agent. He later was released.

The newcomers will compete with holdover import Charles Anthony and Canadians Rob McLaren, Paul Giroday and Glen Jackson of the Lions, who will go to a four linebacker defence in 1978.

NEW VENUE FOR PLAYOFF

LONDON (Reuter) — The Football Association has granted a request from London clubs Arsenal and Orient to have their FA Cup semi-final on April 8 switched from Birmingham to London.

The match, originally to have been played at Aston Villa's ground, will be staged at Chelsea's Stamford Bridge ground.

Chelsea's English League fixture against Manchester City has been postponed to make way for the Arsenal-Orient match.

Both cup semi-finals now will be played in London on April 8. The other match between Ipswich Town and West Bromwich Albion is scheduled for Arsenal's Highbury ground.

BULLETS HUMBLED BY HALIFAX SQUAD

REGINA (CP) — Calgary Cascades defeated Regina Titan Homes 95-83 in the third game Wednesday night of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association's Senior Men's National Championships.

Tom Bishop led Calgary's scoring with 29 points while Wes Stevenson scored 22 for Regina.

In the other two games Wednesday, being played at the University of Regina, Halifax Rent-A-Car downed Burnaby Bullets 104-70 and Toronto Estonia trounced St. John's, Nfld. 112-70.

The final game of the championship will be played Saturday night.

A's, Blues Series Settled Tonight

When an unstoppable missile meets an immovable object, the results can be spectacular.

In a similar manner, so could the deciding game in the best-of-five South Island Big Six Hockey League semi-final between Victoria Athletics and Chemainus Blues tonight at 8:25 in Pearkes Arena.

Some of the top marksmen in the league, including Graham Brown, Gord Neilson, Brian Hamilton and Bruce Cowickof Athletics will be pitted against one of the best goaltenders, Vic Mali of the Blues.

BLUE GOES ACROSS BAY FOR SEVEN AND CASH

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Oakland A's have traded pitcher Vida Blue to San Francisco Giants for seven players and an undisclosed amount of cash, the teams announced early today.

The Giants gave up outfielder Gary Thomasson, pitchers Dave Heaverlo, Alan Wirth and John Johnson, catcher Gary Alexander, minor league pitcher Phillip Huffman and a player to be named later.

The deal was consummated at about 11:55 p.m. PST Wednesday, just before the end of the March 15 interleague trading deadline, and announced at an early-morning press conference.

Blue, 28, finally leaves Oakland after two attempts by A's owner Charlie Finley to deal him away him were voided by baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

In 1976 Kuhn stopped Finley from selling Blue to te New York Yankees and on Jan. 30 the commissioner blocked a move that would have sent the left-hander to Cincinnati Reds.

Kuhn disapproved of the deals because of the huge cash amounts involved. Finley would have received $1.5 million from the Yankees and $1.75 million and minor league-player Dave Revering from the Reds for Blue.

The commissioner said selling a ballplayer for such astronomical sums was not in the best interests of the game.

Portland's Fast Start Jolts Cats

Portland Winter Hawks dealt a powerful blow to the hopes Victoria Cougars have of making the Western Canada Hockey League playoffs on Wednesday night, while increasing their Western Division lead to 12 points over idle New Westminster Bruins and Seattle Breakers.

The loss left Victoria in last place in the Western Division with 69 points, two back of New Westminster and Seattle, which hold the final two playoff spots. The Bruins have two games in hand on both clubs.

The decision also set the stage for renewal of an old rivalry when the Cougars and Bruins meet twice in as many nights this weekend. The first game is at 8:30 p.m. Saturday at Memorial Arena and the second Sunday in New Westminster.

Keith Brown, Joel Elliott, Perry Turnbull and Wayne Babych were the other Portland marksmen.

Soccer Star Found Dead

GLASGOW (Reuter) — Bobby McKean, Glasgow Rangers' 25-year-old Scottish international footballer, was found dead in his car in the garage of his home Wednesday night.

McKean's wife Fiona and some friends found his body in the garage at their home in Barrhead, Renfrewshire.

A police spokesman said there were no suspicious circumstances.

McKean, a right winger, signed with Rangers from St. Mirren three years ago for £50,000 and immediately became a regular. This season, however, he had spent most of his time on the bench.

Some Problems For Junior Curlers

Times News Services

Scott Saunders of Lunenburg, N.S., and Darren Fish of Edmonton said Wednesday they foresaw problems in future action at the Canadian junior men's curling championship.

Saunders hoped he would not be affected in two crucial matches at Charlottetown today by "what seems to be some kind of stomach flu" while Fish pondered the prospects of playing games in all three scheduled rounds.

"I've been a little drowsy since I picked up the bug Tuesday and it's hard to concentrate," Saunders said after downing Northern Ontario's Greg Cain 6-2 in ninth-round action.

"We need those three wins, or we may be out of it," said Fish. "We're going to be tired by the night draw."

Alberta stayed even with Nova Scotia, each at 6-1, by downing Jeff Kiland of MacKenzie, B.C., 9-5.

In Saskatoon, Bernie Yuzdepski and his Saskatoon team-mates continued to be both good and lucky as they extended their unbeaten streak in the Canadian mixed playdowns.

The Saskatchewan rink boosted its mark to eight wins and no losses as they escaped with a 7-6 triumph over winless Nova Scotia in the afternoon and followed with an outstanding display at night to dump British Columbia 8-5.

Nova Scotia skip Al Darragh of Dartmouth let Saskatchewan off the hook in an extra end, coming up light with a draw to the eight-foot and leaving Yuzdepski with the winning point after Nova Scotia blew an early 4-0 lead.

In the evening game, Saskatchewan took a 4-0 lead after two ends as B.C. skip Barry Smith of Kelowna missed three of his first four shots.

At Chilliwack, Alberta, skipped by Cathy King of Edmonton, counted seven on the fifth end en route to a 13-4 victory over Cindy Duncan's Yukon rink and maintained its unbeaten record at the Canadian junior women's championship.

King, the defending champion, has an 8-0 record and could clinch this year's title with a win over Nova Scotia in today's 10th round.

British Columbia, skipped by Sandy McKenzie of Chilliwack, is at 6-2 and has the only chance of catching King.

Becky Ross of Sudbury led her Ontario rink to an upset 9-4 win over B.C. in eighth-round play. The Chilliwack girls recovered to beat Manitoba 10-7 on the next draw.

At Moncton, the Saskatchewan rink skipped by Norm Gilbertson suffered its first loss in seven starts when it dropped an 8-7 decision to the Sonny Hirtle rink of Hampton, N.B., in the Canadian Policemen's playdowns.

The loss left Saskatchewan and Manitoba's Don Glinz of the Winnipeg RCMP in a tie for top spot, both with 5-1 records.

Glinz assured his rink of a share of the lead with Gilbertson's foursome by posting a slim 7-6 win over British Columbia, skipped by Bob Hawkes of Victoria.

The Victoria rink, now 3-3, suffered its second loss earlier in the day, 11-2 to Alberta.

At Virden, Man., Barry Russell of Manitoba suffered his first loss at the Canadian Legion championship when Saskatchewan's Jack Morrison scored twice in the final end for a 7-5 victory.

However, Manitoba rebounded from its loss on the morning draw to defeat Earl Carson of Alberta 5-2 in an afternoon game and finished the day with a record of five wins and one loss.

How Your Garden Grows

Successful flower gardening

A flower garden can add lush beauty to a yard through much of the year. There are two types of herbaceous flowering plants:

Annuals. Grown from seed, they flower and die in one year.

Perennials. May be grown from seed, bulbs, cuttings or by division. These continue to grow and bloom for several seasons.

Most flowering plants like a sunny location in well drained, loose-textured soil. They also prefer soil which is neutral in reaction. Because acid conditions prevail in this area, an application of Green Valley Dolomite Lime is recommended to correct this condition.

GREEN VALLEY DOLOMITE LIME
GREEN VALLEY 4-10-10 FLOWER & VEGETABLE PLANT FOOD

Ample amounts of phosphorous and potash are needed for good flower production. Green Valley Flower & Vegetable 4-10-10 is an ideal fertilizer analysis to meet this requirement.

When bedding plants are first set out, they should be watered frequently and protected from direct sun and cool winds until well established. An application of Green Valley Plant Starter will help to prevent transplant shock and subsequent setback.

GREEN VALLEY 10-52-17 PLANT STARTER MIX
GREEN VALLEY 20-20-20 HI-SOL

During the growing season, periodic applications of Green Valley Hi-Sol 20-20-20 will keep flowering plants producing at a healthy rate.

VICTORIAN SHARES BRONZE MEDAL WIN

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Canada gained two bronze medals—in the standard pistol event and the three-position rifle—at the Benito Juarez shooting competition on Wednesday.

The Canadian team of Quinton Mar of Victoria, Bernie Harrison and Ed Jans finished third in the pistol event with a combined total of 1,636 points, only five behind second-place Brazil. The United States won the gold medal with 1,684 points.

In the three-position rifle, Arne Sorenson of Calgary, Montreal's Hans Adloch and Guy Lorion of Quebec placed third with a combined total of 3,386 points. The U.S. was first with 3,451 while Cuba took the silver with 3,408.

St. Michael's Drops Match

St. Michael's University School would have had to travel a little too far to make their scheduled Greater Victoria High School Rugby League match against Oak Bay Barbarians on Wednesday.

So St. Michael's, currently on an exhibition tour of England, had to default.

In a match that was played, Claremont Spartans downed Spectrum, 11-3.

The schedule now enters the second half of the season with the top five teams playing for the Howard Russell Cup while the remainder battle for the Lt. Col. Hodgins Trophy.

Competing for the top Russell award are league-champion Victoria Titans, Barbarians, Spartans, Spectrum and St. Micahel's.

Lambrick Park and Belmont have withdrawn from the second half of the season and Reynolds withdrew earlier, leaving only Parkland Panthers, Mt. Douglas Mountainmen and Esquimalt Dockers to compete for the Hodgins Trophy.

Dockers competed only on an exhibition basis during the first half of the season but league officials have allowed them to join the league for the second half of play.

CLAREMONT (11)—Glenn Harrison 1 try, John Clark 1 try, Dave Spoor 1 penalty; SPECTRUM (3)—Peter Smiley 1 penalty.

My wife likes to come with me when I go to Vancouver, so we stay at the Four Seasons.

The Four Seasons is at the corner of Georgia and Howe, right downtown.

The shopping is great—lots of boutiques and specialty shops in the adjoining Pacific Centre Mall. The theatre district and Gastown are close, too. It's all very handy. Right in the heart of things in Vancouver.

As for me—well, the hotel itself is my ideal, of course. The service is impeccable. The atmosphere, restrained elegance. My wife and I love to dine in Le Pavillon and relax together later in the recreational spa. I like being there—because I feel they like my being there, too.

We think the Four Seasons is the best hotel in Vancouver.

EXPRESS YOURSELF. YOURSELF.

AT-1…Canon's electronic "match-needle" SLR gives you total control and an entire system of precision accessories.

You make the decisions

It's up to you: with the versatile AT-1, you can choose either aperture or shutter speed and the sensitive metering system responds as you match the needles for perfect exposure. This lightweight, compact camera gives you shutter speeds from 2 secs to 1/1000 sec, a split image/micro-prism rangefinder plus matte screen, a superb Canon FD 50mm 1.8 lens, much more.

The exciting Power Winder

For super-fast action, the Power Winder advances film at about 2 frames per second for rapid-fire continuous shooting—or one frame at a time, if you're shooting at a more leisurely pace.

Automatic Speedlite

The Speedlite 155A is an electronic strobe flash that automatically sets the shutter speed to 1/60 sec. Once the aperture is set, it decides flash duration via an electronic light sensor.

Never forget your date!

Imprint the day, month and year on the film at the moment the picture is taken! Your choice, automatic or manual. An outstanding application of optical technology.

Outstanding versatility and value

You want the freedom to express yourself, with a camera that lets you go after the shots you want and get them your way? See the AT-1 at your Canon dealer…and see, too, the over 40 Canon FD and FL lenses that fit it. It's priced to put great picture-taking experiences within your reach.

Cup Play Down to Eights

Six sides from the Lower Island Juvenile Soccer Association will be embroiled in quarter-final matches of the annual British Columbia Provincial Cup playdowns at the weekend.

On Saturday, Victoria Evening Optimist Patriots face Burnaby Wesburn Cascades in a fourth-division tussle at Upper Topaz Park, Victoria Gordon Head Smith Bros. tackles North Shore West Van Spuraways in a fifth division match at Lower Topaz Park and Victoria Gorge FC takes on Upper Island Alberni Credit Union in a seventh division struggle at Hampton Park.

Three more matches are scheduled Sunday with Victoria Juan de Fuca Realty tackling Fraser Valley Guilford Celtic in a first division match at Heywood Avenue Park, Victoria Gordon Head B.C. Land meeting Burnaby Cliff Avenue United in a second division match at Lambrick Park and Victoria Lakehill Meats taking on Fraser Valley Surrey United Beavers at Hampton Park.

All matches get underway at 2 p.m.

Semi-finals will be played on the April 8-9 weekend with all finals scheduled to form the 26th annual "Tournament of Soccer Champions" at Royal Athletic Park, April 22-23.

Liverpool Sidelines Benfica

Times News Services

Liverpool of England and Borussia Moenchengladbach of West Germany, finalists in last year's European Cup soccer competition, moved into the semi-finals of this year's event with quarter-final victories Wednesday.

While Liverpool, the defending champions, cruised to a 4-1 win over Benfica of Portugal (6-2 on aggregate), Borussia survived with Innsbruck of Austria only by virtue of the Cup rule that away goals count double.

Borussia beat Innsbruck 2-0 at home, setting up a 3-3 aggregate score, but advanced on the away-goals rule. The West German team got first-half goals from World Cup stars Rainer Bonhof and Jupp Heynckes to rub out its 3-1 defeat in Austria.

In other European Cup quarter-final games, Juventus of Italy and Ajax of Amsterdam tied 1-1 but the Italian team advanced by virtue of penalty kicks; and Bruges of Belgium, despite losing 3-2 to Atletico Madrid of Spain, advanced 4-3 on aggregate.

In UEFA Cup competition, PSV Eindhoven of the Netherlands, Barcelona of Spain and Bastia of France joined Grasshoppers Zurich of Switzerland in the semi-finals with victories Wednesday.

Eindhoven beat Magdeburg of East Germany 4-2 to triumph 4-3 on aggregate; Barcelona edged Aston Villa of England 2-1 to advance 4-3 on aggregate; and Bastia lost 4-2 to Carl Zeiss Jena of East Germany but advanced by virtue of a 7-2 win in France.

Ben Domoney and Eric Wright of Royal Colwood retained the seniors' gold buttons by defeating Russell Ard and Poli Howard of Glen Meadows on the 15th hole Wednesday at Uplands Golf Club.

Athletics Edge City

Steve Carroll scored the winning goal in the dying minutes Wednesday night to give Victoria Athletics a 3-2 decision over Nanaimo City during first division action in the Vancouver Island Soccer League at Royal Athletic Park.

The winning goal came just after three Nanaimo players — Don Attig, Ray Clarke and Alister Thompson — each missed an opportunity to put the Hub City side on top during the last seven minutes of play.

Then Carroll rounded up a poor clearance by a defender and fired the ball home.

The score was tied 1-1 at half time after Dave McCaig converted a Peter Zachary pass into the first Victoria goal at 22 minutes and Clarke replied with an arcing shot into the top corner of the net at the 32-minute mark.

George Pakos scored another for Athletics at 50 minutes after gathering in a goalmouth pass from McCaig but Rick Sage came back at 79 minutes with the equalizer.

The win moved Athletics into third place with 21 points, four behind division-leading Victoria West and two back of the University of Victoria Vikings.

Trilecs Tie It Up

Trilec Installations built up a 54-28 advantage by half time Wednesday, then coasted to a 99-70 decision over Scorpions at Victoria High School to extend their best-of-three Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League semi-final series to the limit.

The two meet again tonight at 9 in the deciding game at Lansdowne Junior High.

In the other game Wednesday, Victoria Athletics topped Little Giant Bakeries 88-59 to win their semi series in straight games.

Jay Janzen set the pace for Trilec with 17 points while Darrell Johnston and Charlie Davis each added 16 and Ken Wiens contributed 15. Dave Morgan (26 points) and Mike Morrill (25) were the top marksmen for Scorpions.

Jim MacKay fired 10 points in each half to lead the Athletics to victory while Tom Holmes added 14. Greg McInnes led Bakers with 15.

Indians Risk Violent Deaths

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia Indian has more than three times the chance of dying a violent death than the average Canadian and the chance of him committing suicide is about two times higher than the average British Columbian, statistics compiled by the federal health and welfare ministry show.

The ministry, which provides medical services to the Indian people, has been studying the situation for about two years without much success in providing either solutions or explanations.

In 1974, 39 per cent of the Indians who died in B.C. died unnatural deaths due to accidents and violence. During the same year, the B.C. average for accidental and violent deaths was 13.5 per cent of the total deaths and the national average was only 10.11 per cent.

In 1974, the B.C. Indian suicide rate was 39.3 in a 100,000 population but the non-Indian rate in B.C. was 17 in a 100,000 population. And .03 per cent of the B.C. Indian population committed suicide compared with .01 population of the total Canadian population.

All these ratios have remained relatively constant over the past 10 years, says Dr. Gordon Butler, regional director of medical services for the federal health and welfare ministry.

The infant mortality rate among B.C. Indians has been reduced to 37.3 deaths in every 1,000 births in 1976 from 66.4 deaths in every 1,000 births 10 years ago while the violent death rate remained constant.

Butler said his study team has been compiling a special report on every suicide committed by a B.C. Indian in an attempt to find factors in common.

The team has learned that:

—33 per cent of males and 50 per cent of females showed prior signs of depression;

—50 per cent of the cases indicated a close relationship between alcohol abuse and the suicide;

—More males than females committed suicide;

—The majority of the victims are young adults;

George Manuel, president of the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs said the statistics provide further proof that Indian people are relegated to a poorer quality of life than the non-Indian population.

He blamed the high rate of violent deaths among Indians on "our long outstanding history of oppression."

A-G Okay On Finger Printing

VANCOUVER (CP) — City police, criticized by the British Columbia Appeal Court Tuesday for fingerprinting a 13-year-old boy in June, 1976, were acting under an instruction issued by the attorney-general's department, police and ministry spokesmen said Wednesday.

Neil McDiarmid, director of criminal law for the ministry, and deputy police chief Tom Dixon said a July, 1975, directive to all B.C. police forces said they could fingerprint juveniles without permission provided there were reasonable and probable grounds to believe that the juvenile had committed a crime that would be classified as an indictable offence if committed by an adult.

Drug Prorating 'Nightmare'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The director of the province's pharmacare program said Wednesday any attempt to prorate or make retroactive the universal pharmacare program introduced last year would have resulted in a bureaucratic nightmare.

Pat Tidball was commenting after Barbara Wallace (NDP—Cowichan-Malahat) accused the government of over-charging the public in the program's first period in operation.

Under the program, the government pays for 80 per cent of drug costs after the first $100 in each year. The program began in June, 1977.

Wallace said in a news release the program was in effect for only six months last year but the government deducted the full $100 from claims before making any rebates.

She said Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm should either have backdated the plan to Jan. 1, 1977, or required only a $50 total for six months.

"But, of course, he wouldn't think of that. This way he is able to build up a bigger surplus in his budget," said Wallace.

But Tidball said the program was, in fact, in effect for seven months last year, and careful consideration was given to implementation. He said it was found that extending the program back to the beginning of 1977 or prorating the deductible would have been unworkable.

"We could also have waited until Jan. 1, 1978, but we didn't," said Tidball. "If we had attempted to make it pro-rated, I'd probably be answering this call in Riverview (mental hospital)."

Entry Refusal Shocks Expert

VANCOUVER (CP) — A California educational consultant says he is shocked and dismayed that he can't be hired to evaluate a Vancouver school board language program because the federal government has ruled a proper search was not made for a qualified Canadian.

"I didn't know Canadian and United States relations were, to this extent, operated to keep U.S. citizens out," Dr. Nicholas Rayder said Tuesday in a telephone interview from San Francisco.

Vancouver school trustees, who voted 4 to 3 to hire Rayder as a consultant, were so upset by the federal government's stance on hiring policies that they are seeking legal advice to see if the directive can be enforced.

A letter from Richard Cruchley of Canada Manpower's executive and professional division outlined to the board how a proper search should take place for a possible Canadian consultant to evaluate a $2.8 million language development program.

It also states that if the board wishes to appeal the department's decision to disallow the hiring of Rayder, it must supply a complete list of all Canadian candidates for the job, their replies, and a detailed report on why they were not chosen.

The board approved Rayder's appointment March 6, despite an admission from schools superintendent Dante Lupini that a thorough search for a Canadian consultant did not take place.

Mine Closes, Ship Jobs Cut

VANCOUVER (CP) — Closure of the Clinton asbestos mine near Dawson City, Yukon, has indirectly forced the cutting back of White Pass and Yukon Corporation Ltd. sailings from Vancouver to Skagway, Alaska, and prompted the layoff of 22 employees from the company's head office in Vancouver.

John Butterfield, vice-president of corporate affairs for White Pass, said that the Cassiar Asbestos Co., which runs the mine, will close it this summer because it has been commercially exhausted.

He said the mining company then will start to transport asbestos from its other mine at Cassiar by truck to Stewart rather than by rail to Skagway and then by White Pass ship to North Vancouver.

As a result, White Pass will lose 90 per cent of its southbound cargo and also will stop selling petroleum products to Cassiar Asbestos.

Butterfield said loss of freight and of the petroleum market will result in an 18 per cent reduction in total revenues.

He said cutbacks occurred at various levels, including some senior employees.

The corporation currently has two ships making the run — the Frank H. Brown and the Klondike. They are tanker-container ships with a capacity of one million gallons of petroleum products. The ships transport petroleum and general freight north and asbestos south.

HOSPITAL CURB ON SMOKING

COURTENAY (CP) — The board of directors of St. Joseph's General Hospital will impose a partial ban on smoking inside the hospital, beginning April 1, the board has announced.

Board member Jack Welch, a lawyer, said Tuesday that a program that would be instituted to change the habits of staff, encouraging them to "work without smoking."

The board has recommended a total ban on smoking within the hospital and had hoped to begin April 1, but after objections by staff and the public, the total ban was set back to Oct. 1.

Directors believe St. Joseph's will be the first hospital in British Columbia to have a total ban on smoking.

"Those working in the hospital should consider the purpose for which they are there," said Welch. "We feel it would be better for everyone if there is no smoking at all."

Director Peter Robinson said it was time the hospital took "a firm stand against smoking."

Staff and patients will be allowed to smoke after April 1 in designated areas.

Strike Rough On Golfers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Area golfers may find the rough a bit rougher and the fairways a little less fair in the coming days because greenskeepers — the men who trim the grass, replace the divots and rake the sand traps — went on strike Wednesday at four private golf courses with demands for more money.

Twenty-five members of Local 244 of the Service Employees Union walked off the job at Capilano Golf and Country Club, Richmond Country Club, Shaughnessy Golf and Country Club and the Vancouver Golf Club.

Four other private clubs using union workers have not yet been struck, said Bob Berger, manager of Local 244, "but it may become necessary to expand the strike to the others in the future."

Berger said the union is not pleased with a proposal by mediator Fred Geddes that offered a nine per cent wage increase in the first year and a five per cent increase in the second year, "and the companies refused to bargain any further, so we are taking action."

The last contract expired in October, 1977.

Andrew Pollock, general manager of Capilano Golf and Country Club said: "We're not experiencing a tremendous amount of (grass) growth anyway and we have two management personnel trained in the maintenance of the greens. We'll just have to neglect the frills, like replacing divots, and cutting the rough and raking the sand traps."

Election Hopefuls

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three candidates for the next federal election were named in Vancouver-area ridings Wednesday night.

The New Democratic Party nominated lawyer Michael Karton to run in North Vancouver-Capilano. Karton won by acclaimation.

The NDP nominated social worker Alan Bush in Vancouver Quadra. Both ridings were won by the Progressive Conservatives in the last election.

Job Promise Lured B.C. Pair to Death?

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver couple found murdered on an abandoned pig farm southeast of Guadalajara may have been lured to their deaths by false promises of jobs on a cattle ranch, says Mexico's consul to Vancouver.

Enrique Rivera said in an interview Tuesday that he has received an anonymous letter detailing events that led up to the deaths of Miles Anderson, 29, and Rose Sauer, 28. The couple's badly decomposed bodies were found Jan. 12 by a farmer looking for strayed animals.

The three-page document, believed written by a Canadian who was in Mexico at the time of the murder and who knew Anderson and Sauer, says that on Dec. 30, 1977, in Mazatlan the couple were offered a one-month job as caretakers of a cattle ranch owned by Michael Gwynne, a 36-year-old Hull, Que., man being sought in connection with the murders.

The letter states that Gwynne, who was travelling with a woman he identified as his daughter but who looked more like a Mexican girlfriend, told the couple he needed a caretaker while he completed the sale of property in Los Angeles.

"He (Gwynne) seemed a very nice chap, his English perfect, his manner proper," the letter says. "He was very interesting to talk to, telling us all about the cattle ranch, and the fact that he always carried a gun to use against rustlers."

The author of the letter became suspicious of the plan when Gwynne's girlfriend also was found to be carrying a handgun.

Rivera said authorities believe Anderson and Sauer were lured to the abandoned pig farm, then murdered for their identification papers and van.

Rivera, speaking on the murder of Alan Francis Judge, 51, a Mica Creek, B.C., first aid attendant whose body was found Jan. 16 in an Acapulco apartment, also said that 20 policeman are working on the case.

He described the suspect as a 16-year-old boy named Ricardo who lived with Judge. The boy, a native of Tapachula, Chiapas, is believed hiding in Mexico City.

Rivera also said that the death Feb. 19 of Lonnie Grant Neely, 23, an Alberta RCMP constable, was caused by a three-storey fall from a hotel, not a beating.

ALCOHOLICS' COURT

VANCOUVER (CP) — A special judge and prosecutor should be hired solely to deal with chronic alcoholics, city council decided Tuesday.

The officials would help commit the alcoholics to institutions for long-term care under a section of the Summary Convictions Act.

Council's community services committee decided March 2 to find out why the section of the act, which permits a provincial court judge to commit a chronic alcoholic to an institution for treatment, has not been more vigorously enforced in dealing with the 250 alcoholics on Skid Road.

A Home for Rob After All

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rob has found himself a home following news media stories last week about his plight.

Pat McPherson, a human resources ministry spokesman, said the 14-year-old Indian boy is settling into a city foster home that at first appeared to be only temporary.

The boy turned up at a ministry of human resources office here last week and told a social worker:

"Look, I've tried foster homes, I've tried group homes, I've tried my own home. I think I'll try adoption."

Rob's problems began when he was offered for adoption after his birth out of wedlock, but nobody adopted him.

He went through rounds of foster and group homes, including a happy four-year period in a group home shared with three other boys and the two daughters of the group home parents.

Because of a family illness and other pressures, the couple had to give up operating the home.

When he appeared at the human resources office he had with him a stray Irish Setter he had befriended.

The ministry placed an ad in a neighborhood newspaper seeking a loving home for the two and that was when the news media latched onto the story. That also was how the dog's owner retrieved the stray.

'78 DODGE IS LOTS MORE VAN!

HERE IT IS: '78 DODGE SPORTSMAN. PLUS 10 BRAND NEW REASONS WHY DODGE SELLS MORE VAN-TYPE VEHICLES THAN ANYONE IN NORTH AMERICA. LOOK INTO IT:

1. NEW SEATS.
Mounted on curved tracks, the new seats allow a higher position for the shorter driver —more headroom for the taller driver. The bucket seats give you more comfort—more colour. And you can order them in a choice of textured fabrics. Optional bench-seats can accommodate up to 15 people.

2. EXCLUSIVE TRAVEL SEATING PACKAGE.
This new factory-installed option on B200 and B300 Royal Sportsman vans lets you easily convert from two three-passenger bench seats to a dinette set to a double bed. It's a real home away from home.

3. NEW INSTRUMENT PANEL.
You get sedan-style luxury plus servicing convenience. The combined starter and ignition switch is now on the locking steering column.

4. MANEUVERABILITY.
Our turning circle, tighter than Ford's or Chevy's, gives you greater maneuverability—more ease in a squeeze.

5. IMPROVED VISIBILITY.
We've increased the glass area in the side windows behind the front doors. And the Maxi-wagon has rear quarter windows that wrap right around the corners to make backing up a snap.

6. MORE ROOM, MORE QUIET.
We've made the engine cover smaller to make the people compartment bigger and increase the foot room. We've put in more sound insulation on Custom and Royal models and made suspension improvements to make the ride quieter.

7. MORE SPACE.
The Maxi-wagon has eight inches more load space length this year. Room for more cargo and more fun.

8. NEW ANTI-THEFT MEASURES.
The steering column now locks when you shut off the ignition. And the door vent windows have new latches that click shut for extra security.

9. 32 KM./GAL. CITY 44 KM./GAL. HWY.
Ratings based on Transport Canada approved test methods for Dodge Sportsman B100 wagon with standard 3.7 litre engine and manual transmission. Your performance may vary according to your driving habits, road and vehicle conditions.

10. NEW OPTIONS.
Trailer towing packages for up to 7,000 pounds gross trailer weight. Six different kinds of radios including two units with 40 channel CB, lite sunroofs, air conditioning, and many more.

These are just 10 more reasons why Dodge is Number One in vans and wagons in North America. And good reasons why you should look into our Sportsman and Tradesman vans right now.

New Coal Pact's Failure Predicted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Optimism was fading today that a new agreement between the coal industry and United Mine Workers union would be ratified by striking miners, despite approval of the pact by the union's bargaining council.

In an effort to prevent a steamroller effect that some felt aided defeat of an earlier proposal a week ago, the union's International Executive Board imposed a one-day ratification timetable with all voting set for Friday, March 24.

But the 22-17 vote by the bargaining council was narrower than the 25-13 tally when it sent the last contract to the rank and file. That agreement was rejected by a larger than 2 to 1 margin and led to President Carter's invoking of the Taft-Hartley Act.

The strikers have mostly ignored a subsequent order by U.S. District Judge Aubrey Robinson which directed the 160,000 UMW miners to return to work.

UMW President Arnold Miller evaded reporters waiting at the Labor Department for word of the council vote. Other council members forecast a close, and possibly negative, ratification tally.

Miller earlier had hastily moved the council session from UMW headquarters to the department's conference room after about 100 angry miners demonstrated around the union headquarters against the contract.

The walkout, which began Dec. 6, was in its 101st day today.

The narrow margin of the council approval, which followed a 4½-hour closed-door meeting, came as a surprise since the latest agreement included several concessions by the Bituminous Coal Operators Association to union demands.

These included improved health and pension benefits and elimination of a work stability clause.

BACON WARNING PROPOSED

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A majority of the panel of experts that studied the safety of a widely-used meat preservative recommends a public warning of a cancer risk from fried bacon and bacon grease, it was learned today.

The recommendation comes as the Agriculture Department is moving ahead with its plan to reduce the amount of the preservative — sodium nitrite — in bacon.

One official said the industry appears "very close" to being able to make a bacon so low in sodium nitrite that it will not contain nitrosamines, the cancer-causing agents formed when bacon is cooked.

Degree 'A Ticket Nowhere'

GENEVA (Reuter) — A university degree is becoming a ticket to nowhere as a result of the unemployment problems in Western industrialized and developing countries, the International Labor Organization (ILO) said Wednesday.

An ILO study said university graduates increasingly are finding their training useless and being forced to take jobs below their qualifications.

This, the report said, sets off a chain reaction throughout the employment market, forcing other workers into lower categories.

It said the situation is unlikely to change in the near future and estimated that in the United States alone, a total of 420,000 graduates with doctorates will enter the employment market by 1985, competing for some 200,000 suitable openings.

Women are especially affected by the employment situation since employers still tend to recruit men before women when equal qualifications were involved, the report said.

Vitamin C Helps Addicts?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vitamin C is the first substance to be shown useful in detoxifying narcotics addicts without painful withdrawal symptoms, a California researcher says.

Dr. Alfred Libby, founder of the Narcotics Rehabilitation Hospital in Riverside, Calif., told a news conference Wednesday he has treated more than 150 addicts since he began working with them in 1974.

"Without exception, we have been able to take them through detoxification without withdrawal pains," he said.

Some addicts whom Libby treated returned to drug usage, "if they didn't keep up their maintenance doses (of vitamin C) or after they were visited by their pusher," he said. But he said that 80 per cent of his patients stayed off narcotics for good.

A link between the vitamin and successful narcotics detoxification was first suggested in 1973. Until now, however, there has been no successful treatment for drug addiction, including use of the drug methadone, Libby said.

Libby said he can "clean" heroin addicts in seven days, but it takes 10 to 14 days to treat a person who is on methadone, a drug often prescribed as a heroin-addiction cure.

Libby said he treats his patients with large doses of sodium ascorbate, a type of vitamin C available by prescription only. He said research showed addicts lack vitamin C and have "severely depleted" supplies of amino acids needed to synthe size protein.

Snake Suit Fails

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A store is responsible for protecting its customers from wild animals, but that doesn't include rattlesnakes who slither in undetected, the Texas Supreme Court affirmed Wednesday.

Gerald Overstreet of Del Rio had claimed that a snake had struck him on Oct. 12, 1974, as he reached for a jar in Gibson's Discount store.

His suit against the retailer claimed that he spent 10 days in hospital, has a "hideous scar" on his leg and has nightmares about snakes. Other witnesses said the store had a door that would not completely close and that mice entered, probably with rattlers in pursuit.

A jury awarded Overstreet $20,320 last year, but the trial judge threw the verdict out, saying it went against Texas law.

TOYOTA CANADIAN-A LOT OF AUTOMOBILE

CANADIAN

PRICE One of the best reasons to consider the Toyota Canadian is its exceptionally low price. Which means you get a lot of car for a little money. And that's a good place to start.

CITY

WINTER TESTING Toyota Canadian is a direct result of extensive winter testing in the frozen north and the salt-ridden cities. The car is specially built to take on the Canadian winter. And win. Year after year.

ECONOMY OF OPERATION Costs less to buy. Costs less to run. Because of exceptionally good fuel economy with its 1200 cc engine. Because it's built tougher, so everything lasts longer. Because it's a Toyota and if anyone knows how to build an economical car, it's us.

Car Thief Treed

SUMMERSIDE, P.E.I. (CP) — A case of car theft ended in high places near here.

Town police and RCMP chased a stolen car out of town Wednesday and halted it at a roadblock about 12 kilometres east of here.

A man jumped out of the car and fled into nearby woods with police in hot pursuit.

The suspect climbed up a tree.

Despite coaxing, he refused to come down. So police began to cut down the tree.

The tree began to fall. The suspect leaped to a neighboring tree, landing safely in its upper branches.

Police climbed the second tree and arrested the man without further incident.

A police spokesman said charges will be laid.

Boy, 3½, Survives Ocean Ordeal

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 3½-year-old Prince Rupert child was in intensive care at Vancouver General Hospital Wednesday after spending at least 30 minutes in frigid sea waters at Powell River Tuesday.

Hospital spokesmen said that at the parents' request they were refusing to give the child's condition or what kind of medical treatment he was receiving.

Leslie Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Campbell, was rescued from beneath a float in the Powell River small boat harbor and then was flown here by an aircraft from Canadian Forces Base Comox.

Dr. W. H. Barclay of Powell River earlier had spent two hours resuscitating the child and described the boy's condition Tuesday as very critical. He said then that there was "every likelihood of a full recovery" but brain damage was possible.

RCMP at Powell River said the child had been left on the float with his eight-year-old brother, Lloyd, moments after the family tied up their fishing boat for refueling.

"They left him on the wharf and the next minute they could not find the lad," a spokesman said.

Bill Shemming of Powell River, who was working on his boat in the harbor when the child disappeared, quickly donned scuba diving equipment he had at hand and dived into the water to find the boy. After 15 minutes he found the child on the surface of the water, under one of the wooden floats.

RCMP Corporal Harvy Jenkins, who tried to revive the child by heart massage while another person used mouth-to-mouth respiration, said Wednesday that the child had no vital signs and was losing color when he was brought out of the water.

Jenkins said the estimate of 30 minutes the child was in the water was a minimum.

Barclay said there are reports of children surviving a good length of time in cold water.

Speakers Compete

The third preliminary round of the 1978 Golden Gavel competition sponsored by Toastmaster Clubs of Greater Victoria will be held Friday at the Sherwood Park Inn on Gorge Road.

The finals will be held Friday, March 31, at the same location.

Emily Walker, of the First Canadian Toastmasters' Club 38, took first place in the first preliminary round. Her subject was Primitive or Practical.

Runnerup was Ron Maxymyshyn.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Chicken Size Unimportant but Skin Is

By Dr. JEAN MAYER and
Dr. JOHANNA DWYER

Q. I have recently begun following a cholesterol-lowering diet and am using chicken and turkey far more often than I had in the past. I have wondered whether the smaller chickens are significantly lower in fat than roasters are. Does it make much difference which type I use?

A. Keeping the amount of fat in poultry at a minimum depends not on the size or type of the bird you choose, but on trimming off the skin. A 100-gram portion, or about three and a half ounces, of cooked broiler, roaster or turkey including both light and dark meat contains a little more than six grams of fat. But if you leave the skin on, the same amount of broiler or turkey will provide about 10 grams of fat, while the roaster will provide nearly 15 grams.

These figures become more striking when compared to the amount of fat in the white meat of these birds. Three and a half ounces of turkey contain less than three grams of fat, the same amount of broiler, about three and a half grams, and the roaster, approximately five grams. Incidentally, the low fat content of poultry is not the only reason it is suggested on a cholesterol-lowering diet. The fat in both chicken and turkey is less saturated than that found in red meat.

Q. A friend of mine has told me that I should use a carob-flavored mix instead of cocoa in my children's milk. What is carob and why is this?

A. Carob, or St. Johns' Bread as it is also called, is the fruit of the Mediterranean locust trees. Some claim that it has a chocolate-like flavor — although this is debatable. It also is commonly used as a chocolate or cocoa substitute in many products available in health food stores.

The rationale for usimg carob is based on the fact that chocolate contains pyhtate, and phytate binds calcium, making it unavailable to the body. But adding reasonable amounts of chocolate or cocoa to milk does not significantly affect the availability of calcium.

Q. Recently, you answered a question about lactose intolerance in which you said that dietary management involved cutting down on milk consumption to a level where symptoms disappear. You did not mention whether cheeses and yogurt are acceptable on this diet. Are they?

A. Generally they are. The first two steps in making aged cheese involve separating the whey and washing the curd. These processes remove most of the lactose, and within 14 to 21 days after ripening, any remaining lactose is broken down by bacteria to lactic acid and other substances. Other cheeses, such as processed cheese food and processed cheese spread, may have somewhat more lactose because a variety of products including milk, skim milk, non-fat milk solids, cream or whey may be added during their manufacture.

In the case of creamed cottage cheese, the amount of lactose is quite variable, depending on whether or not lactose is added during the manufacturing process. All of these cheeses, however, are generally well tolerated, particularly if eaten in reasonable amounts.

Finally, the bacteria used in making yogurt and buttermilk convert the lactose in these foods to lactic acid and they, too, are generally well tolerated. In some yogurts, the bacterial culture is grown separately and simply added for flavor, while other means are used to sour the milk. In that case, very little lactose is broken down. So read the label.

Only mysost and primost, cheeses made from whey, are particularly high in lactose. So with all the others to choose from, you should be able to avoid these two with no problem.

The Saga of Jeri Sipe

claiborne

HILLSBORO, Ore. — "When I was 19 years old," Kui Yun Sipe says, "my master had two wives. The first wife always wanted me to cook the food longer and softer. The second wife always wanted me to cook the food quickly and make it crunchy on the outside.

Precisely what effect such training had on the cooking abilities of Jeri Sipe, as she is known in North America, can never be measured. But she is a fine Chinese cook.

The saga of Jeri Sipe is novelesque.

Born in Taiwan, she was given to foster parents when she was 40 days old because of her natural family's poverty. She tells tales of an atrocious, unloved childhood. She was forced to cook for the family from her ninth year. A bamboo whip hung on the wall of her home. She was disciplined daily, and when the whip did not suffice she was sent to the yard for sticks better suited to sterner punishment.

At 12 she was "farmed out" to the home of aunts who paid the family $2 a day for her services.

Most such miseries ended when Mrs. Sipe was 16 years old.

"My parents lived in fields where rice and vegetables were grown," she recounted. "When I was 19, I ran away from home because on that day I had been beaten six times. July is what we call ghost month in Taiwan. I ran and ran and changed clothes in the vegetable field. Then I saw my mother running after me in the night.

"All night I walked through rice paddies, sugar cane fields and cemeteries. I was so certain I heard ghosts around me, laughing and talking. I felt them chasing me. I ran and walked for hours. I finally found my sister's house and hid in the attic for five days." It was then that her sister got her a job with the master with two wives. The master's family numbered 13.

In the years that followed, Mrs. Sipe cooked for many people — a couple from Shanghai, a family from Peking, one family that was Japanese, another that was French. And she borrowed as much learning as she could from each.

The great turning point in her life came in 1964, when she met her husband, James Sipe, of Bellingham, Wash. She alludes to him as a kind of American Pygmalion. When they met, he was an electronics engineer with the government. She was a waitress in an officer's club.

When they married, he bought her schoolbooks designed for third-fourth-and fifth-grade students. He taught her multiplication and division. Because of him she studied English for two years. And, she says, in a voice that is not without tenderness, "he taught me not to speak so loud."

In all her life, Mrs. Sipe says, she has never lost her enthusiasm for cooking. Nor for farm life, apparently. The Sipes, who are the parents of three children, aged 10 through 17, live on a two-acre farm outside Portland. Mrs. Sipe arises at 6 a.m. to tend a menagerie of 100 chickens, four pigs, two cows and an uncounted number of turkeys and ducks.

I first met Jeri Sipe at an elaborate buffet dinner where she had prepared all the Chinese foods. She cooks for from two to 200 people, never makes a shopping list and only on rare occasion uses more than one helper in the kitchen. She teaches cooking at one of the finest pot and pan shops in North America and she plans to eventually publish a cookbook.

Chinese-style Barbecued Pork

- 2 pounds boneless pork loin in one piece
- 1 green oinion, green part and all, chopped
- 3 thin slices ginger, finely chopped
- 2 tablespoons plus 2 teaspoons soy sauce
- 2½ tablespoons hoisin sauce
- 2 tablespoons dry sherry or shao-hsing wine
- 8 drops red food coloring
- 1 teaspoon sesame oil
- ¼ cup hot water
- 1 tablespoon honey

1. Cut the pork into thin slices. Cut the slices into thin strips. Place the strips of pork in a bowl and add the chopped green onion, ginger, two tablespoons soy sauce, hoisin sauce, wine, food coloring and sesame oil. Blend well and let stand at least two hours or overnight.

2. Preheat the oven to 375 degrees.

3. Fit a rack in a shallow roasting pan and arrange the strips of meat on it. Place in oven and bake for 30 minutes.

4. Turn the strips and continue baking 30 minutes.

5. Blend the hot water, honey and remaining two teaspoons of soy sauce. Brush the strips of pork on all sides with this sauce. Return the meat to the oven and bake 10 minutes longer. Let cool at least 15 minutes before slicing. Serve hot or cold with hot mustard (see method for making), barbecue sauce (see method for making) and/or soy sauce.

Yield: 12 appetizer or buffet servings.

HOT MUSTARD

- 2 tablespoons or more dry mustard
- 1½ tablespoons cold water.

Blend the mustard with water to make a smooth paste. Let stand at least 20 minutes to develop flavor and strength. Thin with a little more water if desired.

Yield: About 3 tablespoons.

BARBECUE SAUCE

- 3 tablespoons tomato ketchup
- 1 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce or to taste
- Few drops Tabasco sauce.

Blend all ingredients and add more seasonings to taste if desired.

Yield: About ¼ cup.

JERI SIPE'S LEMON CHICKEN

The Chicken:

- 2 skinned, boned chicken breasts, about one and one-quarter pounds
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 2 teaspoons dry sherry or shao-hsing wine
- ½ cup plus 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- ¼ teaspoon sugar
- 1 egg yolk
- 4 cups plus 1 tablespoon peanut, vegetable or corn oil
- Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
- ¼ cup flour

The lemon sauce:

- 1½ tablespoons salted black beans
- 1 tablespoon water
- 3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
- ½ cup fresh or canned chicken broth
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- ½ teaspoon sesame oil
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- Salt to taste
- Few drops yellow food coloring
- 2 tablspoons peanut, vegetable or corn oil
- 2 cloves garlic finely minced
- ¼ teaspoon crushed red pepper flakes

1. Place the chicken breasts on a flat surface and cut into thin (quarter-inch thick) slices about two inches wide and one and one-half inches long. Add this to a mixing bowl. Add the soy sauce, wine, one tablespoon of cornstarch, sugar, egg yolk, one tablespoon of oil, salt and pepper to taste. Let stand 10 minutes or longer.

2. Blend remaining half-cup of cornstarch with the flour. Coat each piece of chicken in this mixture.

3. Heat remaining four cups of oil for deep frying (400 degrees). Add the chicken, stirring to separate the pieces. Cook about 30 seconds or until chicken is golden brown. Drain well and transfer to a platter. Keep warm until the sauce is made.

4. Crush the black beans and add one tablespoon of water. Let stand until ready to use.

5. Blend the lemon juice, chicken broth, sugar, sesame oil, cornstarch, salt and food coloring in a small bowl. Heat one tablespoon of oil in a saucepan and add the garlic. Stir in the lemon sauce. Bring to the boil, stirring, and add the black beans and red pepper flakes. When clear and thickened, sprinkle with the remaining one tablespoon of oil. Pour this over the chicken and serve hot.

Yield: 6 servings.

APPLES, COCOA GO TOGETHER

Mary Moore

It may be because we had a good apple crop or supermarkets take pity on us poor budgeting cooks that we can usually find apples at what might laughingly be called a reasonable price.

Our decision for today's recipe was also influenced by the popularity of brownies. So we have combined apples with cocoa in squares and they are moist and popular.

APPLE BROWNIE SQUARES (9x13")

- 2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. baking powder
- 1 tsp. cinnamon
- ½ tsp. baking soda
- ½ tsp. nutmeg
- 6 tbsp. cocoa
- ½ cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- 2 tsp. vanilla
- ¾ cups milk
- 2 cups peeled and grated apples (grate just before adding, to prevent apples browning)

In a beater bowl cream together butter or margarine and sugar. Add eggs and beat well. Stir in vanilla and milk. Add flour, salt, baking powder, cinnamon, baking soda, nutmeg and cocoa and beat to thoroughly combine, scraping down sides of bowl once or twice with rubber scrapper. Grate apple and stir in at once. Spread into a buttered 9x13x2" pan. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 35 to 40 minutes. Cool on cake rack. You may wish to sprinkle it with icing sugar and cut into bars. If you have a really sweet tooth, ice with a plain butter icing and drizzle melted chocolate over top for a professinal finish.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The largest elephant in captivity and the first African elephant ever born in the Western Hemisphere are being kept apart, even though they are father and son.

Old Diamond weighs eight tons and is just too much of a danger to Little Diamond, an even 220 pounds when he was born recently in the Knoxville Zoo.

The mother, Toto, was on loan from the Bronx Zoo specifically for breeding.

Ten men kept watch over the calf next day, and barricades were erected to keep the dusky youngster away from Old Diamond, who was a gift from the Ringling Brothers Circus.

The father has been "a model of good behavior so far," said zoo spokesman Carol Montgomery. "But we are being very very careful. Unpredictability is characteristic of the African bull elephant."

Swing Beds May Solve A Problem

elizabeth forbes

What would you do if four dedicated women — all board members of the Juan de Fuca Hospital Society — presented you with an intriguing question and, before you could frame an answer, they came up with the answer themselves?

You'd listen and you'd learn, of course, just as I did when I met recently with Frances Thompson, head of the board, and Sheila Martin, Isabel Dawson and Joan Titus, directors of patient care, personnel and finance committees respectively.

The question? Oh yes — the question!

Had I ever heard of a swing bed?

Immediately it ran through my mind this must be a bed suspended on some sort of apparatus to give a rock-a-bye motion.

However, before I could voice that error, Mrs. Thompson and the others clued me in to the right answer.

The swing bed they were talking about is in Glengary Hospital, one of four institutions under jurisdiction of the Juan de Fuca Society (the others are Mt. Tolmie, Aberdeen and Priory Hospitals).

It's being used in an ambitious six-month pilot project, started at the end of last year, to help families with extended care patients in their homes, and at the same time, to give such patients a temporary change of environment.

In other words, as Frances Thompson explained "it's a practical way to help the patients, give some relief to the family and to develop a line of communication between the patient, family, our supportive staff and other groups in the community with the expertise to take part in the project."

Isabel Dawson added that an extended care patient would occupy the bed on a rotating "or swing" plan, for two weeks, followed by six weeks at home, then perhaps another two weeks in the bed; and so on.

"This would give the family a rest from constant care and the patient an opportunity to see new faces and, hopefully, to gain a new and happier outlook on life."

Who is eligible for the swing bed project, I asked.

Sheila Martin answered that "patients must need 24-hour nursing care, be in stable physiological condition and have good relationships with their families and the hospital staff."

They must also be amenable to change and able to adjust to this new extended care project.

How is the patient chosen?

Through the family physician, Mrs. Thompson said. An assessment team then takes over. Need is carefully considered, and those accepted are placed on a waiting list that sees them occupy the bed, as their names reach the top.

The swing bed idea started some time ago in England I was told, and spread from there to Canada and the United States.

In principle, Mrs. Thompson pointed out, it could be compared to the summer vacation program, maintained by the Juan de Fuca Society, in which a certain number of patient days are allotted to give families some holiday time.

"That, of course, is a short term idea," she added, "while our swing bed project is geared to a much longer period, not only to help the family but to increase a patient's opportunity to participate in an environment that could lead to better health and a more active life style."

A supportive staff stands by to help around the clock and a consultative committee includes social workers and public health nurses.

Mrs. Thompson's main concern at the moment — and that of the others — is to make sure all families with extended care patients in the home are aware of the swing bed program.

"We want every family who might be eligible for this pilot project to know it is set up and working . . . and that it is available to them."

Here we turned for a moment to other ways the Juan de Fuca Hospital Society, works within the community, and especially to its health care programs.

While these are maintained for those assessed as resident-centred care and eligible by extended care standards, Mrs. Thompson said "we respect the dignity and worth of every human being and the wholeness of life."

Therefore, while care is provided in an institutional setting, "it is made as home-like as possible."

Staff, family, friends and volunteers work as a team, "and we employ the systematic process that promotes a careful monitoring of the physical, physiological, intellectual, social and emotional dimensions of life and that gives every patient the opportunity to reach and maintain their potential."

Looking ahead, she spoke of "more beds available at The Priory and adjacent to Glengarry Hospital by the fall" and another several hundred for extended care in Juan de Fuca Society hospitals by 1979.

Within three or four years, she predicted, there will be increased support for hospital day care and home care, as well as an increase in supportive home service.

"Then patients will come to our hospitals, not just as sick persons but as ones that can become whole again."

Information Eases Anxiety

By L. L. COLEMAN, M.D.

I am newly married. I've just learned that I have endometriosis. I not only worry about the condition itself, but my concern is how it will affect the possibility of having a family. Where can I get a lot of information about this? — Mrs. E.E.H.

Dear Mrs. H.:

The "amount" of information you need is that which will give you a better understanding of the condition and, at the same time, assuage your anxiety.

Endometriosis is a disorder in which the cells that line the inner surface of the uterus (womb) are displaced. The cells are then found outside of the uterus, in the Fallopian tubes, the ovaries, and even in the abdominal cavity around the intestines.

Much is known about this condition, even though its exact cause is still a mystery. The newer knowledge of the male and the female sex hormones has brought to light their possible value in the treatment and control of endometriosis. Many readers have expressed fear that this condition might lead to cancer. This is not true and should not be an added source of concern.

In the winter, the spring, and even in summer I have tingling sensations in the hands and the fingers. It's definitely worse when my hands get cold. How can I find out what causes this annoyance? — Miss A.L.H.

Dear Miss H.:

There is usually some underlying reason when people living in comparatively warm climates, as you do, complain of the condition you describe.

Pins and needles sensations, tingling, coldness, numbness and blueness of the hands, fingers, feet and toes almost always suggest some circulatory problem that deserves special study. There are many excellent and finely detailed tests by which circulation can be studied, and the cause of your condition identified.

In the elderly, arteriosclerosis, with narrowing of the blood vessels, can produce these symptoms. In younger people, tobacco, some drugs, malnutrition and extreme fatigue, and even anemia may be responsible.

With so many possibilities, the way to localize the reason for your discomfort is to follow through with a complete examination, including studies of the blood circulation. Only then can the offender be found and treatment started.

After dinner, my 12-year-old son gives out one big belch. He's embarrassed by it, but he doesn't seem able to control it. — Mrs. G.F.

Dear Mrs. F.:

Rapid eating, energetic conversation and overloading the stomach can account for this, in the absence of any physical disorder. When talking and eating at the same time, air can be trapped in the stomach and upper intestines and be responsible for an explosive belch. By the way, does your son drink carbonated drinks at dinner?

dear abby

ONE of Them Should Grow Up

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have been married for 15 years and have three children. I'm under a lot of pressure at work, and when I'm finished (at 3:30 p.m.), I sometimes go to a bar to unwind and talk with friends. I get home anywhere between 8 and 10 p.m. (Only occasionally do I stay until the bar closes at 1 a.m.)

Sometimes after work I stop and visit my mother, which ties me up until 9 or 10 p.m.

My wife always has dinner on the table at 6 p.m., and more often than not, I'm there. I can't understand why she insists that I should call her after work to let her know where I am and whether I'm coming right home or not.

She doesn't object to my having a few drinks; she knows I'm not seeing other women, and she certainly can't object to my seeing my mother. Nevertheless, she gets mad and says she has a right to know as soon as possible which nights I'll be home later than usual.

How can I get her to grow up and realize that mature adults do not need to check in like children?

NAGGED TO DEATH

DEAR NAGGED: Why don't YOU grow up and behave like a responsible adult? Your wife has a right to know which nights you're going to be late, and if so, how late. Few things are as unsettling to a wife as waiting indefinitely for her husband to show up for dinner. So when you know you're going to be late, give her a call.

DEAR ABBY: Am I wrong for objecting to the following idea? My daughter-in-law wants to give a baby shower for her niece, who has been living in Alaska for two years. This niece is 14-years-old and is not married.

My daughter-in-law says her niece's school chums OWE her that. She says nobody has to know that the girl is not married.

Maybe I'm old-fashioned but it looks like greed to me, and I can't see where anybody "owes" this kid anything.

I realize this girl is in a tough spot, but I just don't feel like going along with this kind of shower.

If you say I'm wrong, I'll send something for the baby.

ON THE FENCE

DEAR ON: The only reason to send a gift is because you WANT to. It's not "wrong" to send a gift under any circumstances, but nobody "owes" anybody anything.

Reds Claim Canadian 'Trap'

OTTAWA (CP) — The Soviet Union has charged that two Canadians, James Wood and Peter Sidy, were used by the RCMP to lay a trap for Soviet officials who have since been expelled from Canada.

The Soviet Embassy here has just released an expanded version of a Moscow newspaper report which said Wood and Sidy used contacts with Soviet officials here to build a case against them.

Supt. John Bentham, an RCMP spokesman, refused to confirm or deny the Soviet allegations.

The RCMP previously refused to comment on Soviet charges that a Thomas Quilley attempted to recruit a Soviet trade official as an RCMP spy. A Thomas Quilley, a member of the solicitor-general's office, has also refused comment.

The RCMP refused to confirm that Wood works for the force although there is a James Wood listed in the greater Ottawa directory as an RCMP employee.

The Izvestia article said Krysin was approached by Sidy who introduced himself as the head of the Peter Sidy Art and Advertising Co.

A Peter Sidey Advertising Agency is listed in the Ottawa telephone book but the telephone number is out of service. The spelling of Sidey is slightly different than the name in the article released by the Soviet Embassy.

The newspaper article said that some years ago Wood joined Canadian customs, immigration and police officials in Montreal International Airport at Dorval.

Then Wood allegedly told the Soviets the RCMP had planned to recruit a Soviet commercial officer in Montreal in 1973 and had planted electronic bugging devices in the private apartments of Soviet officials.

"It is quite clear today that Wood was a stool-pigeon," the newspaper article said. "Contacts with him were used by the secret services to confect a case and expel from the country several Soviet officials who had never heard about Wood."

These officials were not named in the article released by the embassy.

The external affairs and employment departments have refused comment on details of passports and a social insurance card allegedly given a Soviet trade official, identified as "M" by Izvestia.

SACRIFICIAL LAMB ROLE

MONTREAL (CP) — Former university professor Winifred Potter admits she would only be a "sacrificial lamb" if she opposes Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau as Progressive Conservative candidate in the federal riding of Mount Royal.

She announced her candidacy for the position Wednesday.

"It will give me a platform to make a little clearer to the general public in Quebec — and hopefully across the country — the position of the anglophone minority in Quebec," she said.

Gov't 'Pressure' On Sun Life?

OTTAWA (CP) — Alvin Hamilton (PC—Qu'Appelle-Moose Mountain) said Wednesday the government is conducting a secret campaign to get the country's 20 largest insurance companies to pressure Sun Life into staying in Montreal.

Hamilton asked Finance Minister Jean Chretien in the Commons to confirm a rumor circulating in the financial community that officials from his department were pressuring life insurance companies to persuade the Quebec-based firm to abandon its proposed move to Toronto.

In return the insurance companies would be guaranteed a financial plum: continuation of the practice of allowing only insurance companies to convert registered retirement savings plans (RRSPs) into life annuities.

Documents Still Being Probed

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais said Wednesday RCMP still are investigating the case of an allegedly top-secret security service document on foreign spies the government says has fallen into unauthorized hands.

Other than saying that, Blais maintained the silence he has shown for days on the matter which caused considerable controversy at Parliament two weeks ago.

The government says ocument is entitled Canadian Related Activities of the Russian Intelligence Services.

It has alleged the document or parts of it were obtained by Tom Cossitt (PC-Leeds) who has made claims in the Commons about Soviet spies and financing of terrorist groups in Canada. Cossitt denies having the document.

Conservative MPs have mentioned reports that the cabinet circulated 58 copies of the document around government circles. On that basis they have questioned the truth of a government claim that Cossitt has jeopardized national security and may be violating the Official Secrets Act.

Fundy Tidal Studies Set

OTTAWA (CP) — A long-held dream of harnessing the hydroelectric power of the world's mightiest tides came a step closer Wednesday with a decision by three governments to start detailed engineering studies in the Bay of Fundy.

Although Ottawa, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick say no final decision on construction of the $1.2 billion project will be made until 1981, they felt little now stands in its way.

Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie, who tabled a report in the Commons recommending the engineering studies, suggested only a disaster, such as finding quicksand where the dam should be, would stop the project.

"When three governments are willing to commit $30 million based on an encouraging report, there is good reason to believe it will go ahead," said Gillespie.

Argus Boss McDougald, 70, Dead

TORONTO (CP) — Millionaire industrialist John Angus McDougald, 70, chairman and president of Argus Corp. Ltd., and one of the pillars of the Canadian business establishment, died Wednesday in hospital at West Palm Beach, Fla., where he was recuperating from pneumonia.

The body will be flown today to Toronto for burial, probably on Saturday.

McDougald formed Argus with E. P. Taylor and Col. Eric Phillips in the 1940s to develop Canadian business in many fields.

McDougald, whose personal fortune was estimated at more than $250 million, also was president of Ravelston Corp. Ltd., a private investment company, and director of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and Domtar Ltd.

Born in Toronto, McDougald was the son of wealthy financier Duncan J. McDougald. He attended Upper Canada College and St. Andrew's College, both Toronto-area schools for the well-to-do.

But he soon developed a skepticism about the value of formal education and his attendance was more casual than serious. One result was that he failed his examinations at the age of 16.

He travelled with a tutor through the U.S. and Europe, where he acquired a taste for expensive clothes and fast cars.

In 1926, rather than continue his education, he went to work as an office boy for Dominion Securities Ltd. in Toronto, arriving each morning in a chauffeur-driven limousine.

But, once at work, McDougald rose rapidly so that by 21 he was syndicate manager where he acquired, as one pundit said, "the useful habit of dealing in millions."

Ever resourceful, he became involved in several business deals. One of them was to bring to Canada the largest canal-sized oil tanker on the Great Lakes, the John A. McDougald.

But he went broke on the deal. By 1929, the year of the Wall Street crash, he and his family were financially ruined.

But by 1945, he joined Taylor and Phillips in a partnership that resulted in the formation of Argus.

Peter C. Newman wrote in the Canadian Establishment — a book about the elite in Canada — that McDougald may well have been the most admired member of the business establishment.

"Without question, he is the most powerful," Newman wrote.

GREENPEACE BUG?

ST. ANTHONY, Nfld. (CP) — The Greenpeace Foundation complained Wednesday night that their telephone was being bugged as they planned anti-seal hunt strategy, but this was denied by the RCMP.

Greenpeace president Patrick Moore said he was convinced that the telephone at the boardinghouse where members of the group are staying was being bugged.

The Greenpeace group, here to protest the annual seal hunt, have been prevented from reaching the herds 288 kilometres north of St. Anthony by federal regulations.

Moore said it appeared that RCMP and federal fisheries officials knew instantly of any Greenpeace plans.

Inspector Joe Maguire of the RCMP's Corner Brook, Nfld., detachment and the senior police officer here for the hunt, denied that the police had bugged the phone.

"If anybody is bugging that phone, it is not the RCMP," Maguire said in an interview.

Sugar Firms Found Guilty Of Restraining Competition

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec Court of Appeal, reversing an earlier Superior Court ruling, Wednesday found three major eastern Canadian sugar refineries guilty of unduly restraining competition in the sugar industry.

The charges against Atlantic Sugar Refineries Co. Ltd., Redpath Industries Ltd., and St. Lawrence Sugar Ltd. were laid following an investigation by the federal consumer affairs department.

The three companies had been acquitted of the charges by Justice Kenneth C. Mackay of Quebec Superior Court in September, 1975. The acquittal followed a lengthy rogatory commission that visited Europe to gather evidence in the case.

In their decision Wednesday, the appeal court judges found the refineries guilty of conspiracy to "prevent or lessen, unduly, competition in the production, manufacture and sale of sugar."

But they also ruled the companies were not guilty on another charge — that of "enhancing unreasonably" the price of sugar.

The three appeal court judges — Justices George Owen, Laurent Belanger and Albert Mayrand — said the case should now be returned to Mr. Justice Mackay for sentencing of the refineries.

In October, 1976, the same appeal court upheld then-Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet's conviction of contempt of court for "derogatory remarks" he made after hearing of the acquittal of the coce James K. Hugessen of Superior Court had ordered Ouellet to "make publicly and in writing a full, complete and unreserved apology to Mr. Justice Mackay, to this court and to the people of Canada for the contempt committed." Ouellet was also ordered to pay $500 in court costs.

However, Chief Justice Lucien Tremblay of Appeal Court cancelled the order for the public apology by Ouellet and said it was obvious Ouellet would not make such an apology "willingly, if he does apologize."

In Toronto, a spokesman for Redpath said the company would have no comment until its lawyers are able to study the written judgment.

WORKERS IN BANKS 'HAPPY'

OTTAWA (CP) — Officials of the Canadian Bankers' Association said Wednesday only a handful of bank workers belong to unions because they are happy with current working conditions, not because managers are pressuring them to stay away from unions.

"We do not hassle our employees or in any way pressure them," R. M. MacIntosh, executive vice-president of the Bank of Nova Scotia, told the Commons labor committee.

MacIntosh said employees are made aware of the benefits that are available to them.

Soviet Skipper Fined

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A Russian fishing skipper convicted of fishing with illegal-sized gear within Canada's 200-mile economic zone was fined $1,000 and ordered to pay $4,000 to Canadian authorities as the estimated value of fish caught.

A St. John's magistrate also ordered forfeiture of the main net section of the fishing trawls used by Captain Yezgeniy Gusev of the stern trawler Vyborgskayn Storona.

The 2,300-ton vessel was escorted to St. John's on Feb. 4 after a Canadian fisheries officer boarded the trawler about 130 miles east of Newfoundland and found average mesh size was 113 millimetres. The minimum legal size is 120 millimetres.

The Russian skipper said through an interpreter that he used the illegal mesh after other gear was damaged. He said the new gear had a certificate stating it was the 120-millimetre size but he admitted he did not measure it before placing it in the water.

Ottawa 'Trying to Kill' Co-Op Housing

TORONTO (CP) — Labor and housing spokesmen said Wednesday that Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. is trying to kill non-profit co-operative housing through new requirements for mortgage financing.

Officials of the Co-operative Housing Federation of Toronto and the Metropolitan Toronto Labor Council Development Foundation said at a news conference that new regulations, effective January, delay mortgage commitments.

The groups said in a statement the delay is beyond the time when it is possible for a co-op to hold an option on property it wishes to purchase and prevents purchasing land on the private market.

Under the regulations, co-op groups are required to complete plans and to attend to details in acquiring necessary government approvals before CMHC will consider financing.

Previously, a group could offer to purchase a house conditional on obtaining a CMHC mortgage within 30 days and provide only cost estimates and preliminary plans for CMHC approval.

Keith Tapping, Ontario regional director for CMHC, said the regulations will likely undergo substantial modifications following a current review of the regulations' procedures.

Ratings Game On Dredging Contracts

TORONTO (CP) — A former dredging firm executive testified Wednesday that a rating system to determine the distribution of dredging contracts existed in the 1950s.

Horace Rindress, who was president of the J. P. Porter Co. Ltd. in the early 1970s, told an Ontario Supreme Court jury that the system awarded points to dredging companies based on the type and amount of equipment they owned.

Rindress was testifying at the trial of 11 businessmen and nine companies charged with conspiracy to defraud the federal and Ontario governments and the Hamilton and Toronto harbor commissioners of about $4.3 million. The Porter company is one of the companies on trial.

Under the system, which applied only to the Great Lakes, a company was entitled to a percentage of the work in a contract based on the number of rating points it accumulated relative to other companies, he said.

Rindress testified under protection of the Canada Evidence Act, which prevents anything he says from being used against him in future court proceeding.

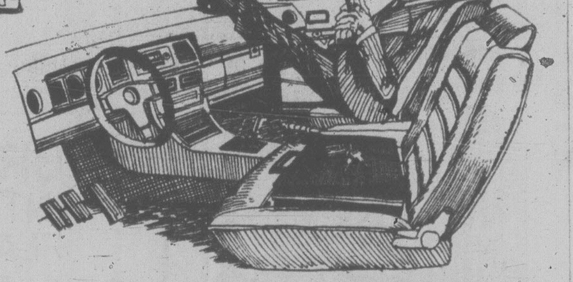
THE DIRTY DETOUR TEST
If you can combine a Dirty Detour with dirty weather, so much the better. These rotten conditions would be ideal for testing the 510's steel-belted radials, power-assist front disc brakes, pressure sensing valve, dual headlights, front, rear and side window defoggers, and wide 304 degree window visibility. While you can't test a car's rust protection in a test drive, be assured that 510—like all Datsuns—gets one of the most advanced anti-corrosion treatments in the industry.

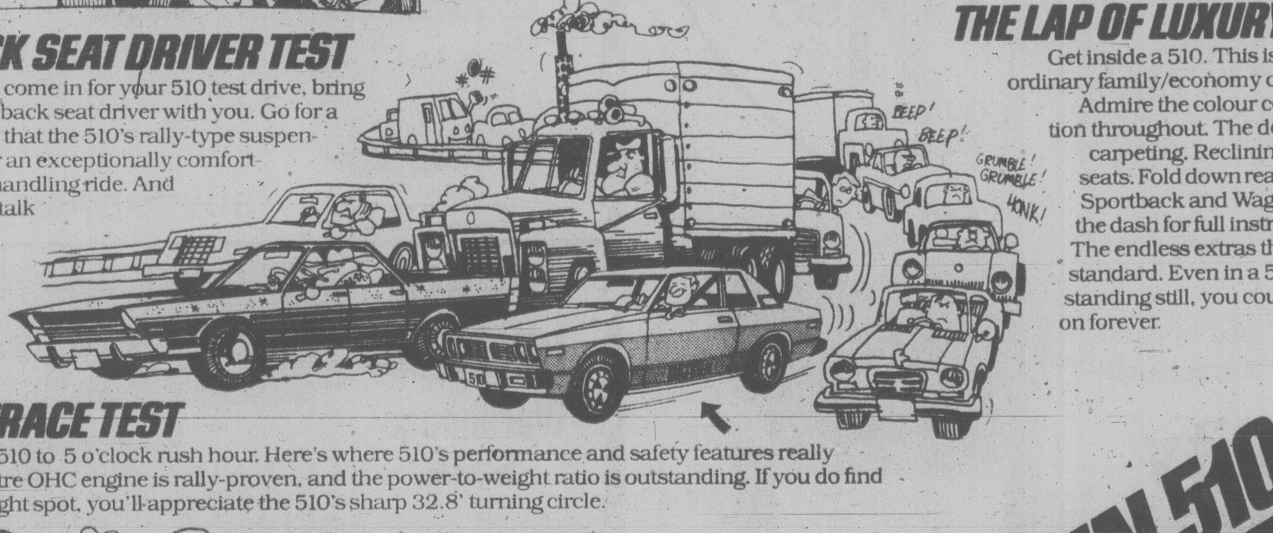
THE DRIVEWAY TEST
On your test drive, drive home. Do it when the neighbours will be home. Park the 510 in your driveway as conspicuously as possible. Wait for applause.



THE FAMILY SAFARI TEST
If your family motoring trips resemble a troop movement, bring the troops along for the test. Be sure they all fit in, bag and baggage. There's room enough in the 510 for 5 adults plus luggage. Or 2 adults, 3 children and a St. Bernard, plus luggage. The possibilities are endless . . .

THE BACK SEAT DRIVER TEST
When you come in for your 510 test drive, bring your favourite back seat driver with you. Go for a run. You'll find that the 510's rally-type suspension makes for an exceptionally comfortable, smooth handling ride. And a lot less back talk from the back seat.

THE LAP OF LUXURY TEST
Get inside a 510. This isn't your ordinary family/economy car interior. Admire the colour co-ordination throughout. The deep pile carpeting. Reclining bucket seats. Fold down rear seat on the Sportback and Wagon. Check the dash for full instrumentation. The endless extras that are standard. Even in a 510 that's standing still, you could go on forever.



BEEP!
BEEP!
GRUMBLE! GRUMBLE!
HONK!

THE RATRACE TEST
Subject a 510 to 5 o'clock rush hour. Here's where 510's performance and safety features really shine. The 2 litre OHC engine is rally-proven, and the power-to-weight ratio is outstanding. If you do find yourself in a tight spot, you'll appreciate the 510's sharp 32.8' turning circle.

DO THE DATSUN 510 TEST DRIVE TEST

THE MOMENT OF TRUTH TEST
Compare the 510 with other cars. There are comparably priced cars. Then add in all 510's standard features (that aren't all standard in comparable cars), and add in the gas savings and maintenance savings. You're bound to agree: the Datsun 510 adds up to the smartest value on the road today. So, why wait?

Citizenship Promises Refused

By DAN POTTIER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The government has on occasion refused to honor RCMP promises of citizenship made to foreigners who agreed to do undercover work for the force, says Conservative MP Elmer MacKay.

Solicitor-General J.J. Blais and Immigration Minister Bud Cullen asked for more details of the allegations made by MacKay in the Commons Wednesday, saying they would look into it.

The Nova Scotia MP told reporters later he knew of four cases of RCMP promises which failed to get the support of the immigration department.

Three of the cases involved Americans promised Canadian citizenship, he said, and the fourth was a Canadian promised something to do with immigration.

Three of the four were working in the field of organized crime and the fourth was Warren Hart, whom MacKay revealed last month to have been working for the RCMP to infiltrate radical groups. MacKay would not name the others.

MacKay said one of the Americans was still in Canada working on one more job for the RCMP.

MacKay said it was not a matter of the RCMP doublecrossing these people, but of the immigration department withholding co-operation.

He asked in the House if it was government policy to make such arrangements with foreigners and whether such undertakings had been reneged upon.

Cullen said his department co-operated with the RCMP in many areas but on a case by case basis; he doubted if there was a general policy.

Blais said there had been cases where some arrangements were made. He didn't specify what kind of arrangements.

The solicitor-general invited MacKay to provide details of his allegations but to do so in private is matters of national security were involved.

The MP gave the two miniters details of one case and told reporters the ministers knew nothing of the matter.

"I would not deter the RCMP if they come saying they're on to a good thing and need help," Cullen told reporters.

MacKay says the issue is the "morality and integrity" of bringing in people to do dangerous work against organized crime and then reneging on promises of citizenship.

"If I knew of four such cases," he added, "how many others must there be. This has to be sorted out. It might not be the ministers but some powerful bureaucrats."

MacKay is quoted as saying one of the Americans involved is a businessman now working in Canada who provided expertise for an RCMP investigation of organized white-collar crime.

The Canadian involved was playing the part of a "classic informer" who was working for the RCMP in the narcotics field — "buying and selling narcotics" in various parts of the country.

The immigration minister would not discuss the issue at lengthsaying security was involved but noted that the actual granting of citizenship is done by th secretary of state.

MacKay said that in one case the immigration department was giving the man every-shortening extensions of his stay in Canada, indicating he would not be allowed to stay permanently.

SEALING AIDS COD?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Former Newfoundland premier Joey Smallwood said Wednesday the province's gift to Canada — the codfish — might be the cause of a war someday.

"Here we are, with the Atlantic Ocean lying off Newfoundland and Labrador — and to some extent Nova Scotia — and off in the Labrador Sea is the great reservoir of codfish in the world," he said at a news conference.

"With the new 200-mile fishing zone we've got the world at our feet, unless we go to war over the codfish, which is conceivable.

"We've had one ship after another, German and Russian and others, in court in Newfoundland, 10 or 12 of them in the past months for fishing violations. I suppose, if Canada gets really tough, it's just conceivable there might be a bloody war — a codfish war, like there almost was between Britain and Iceland."

Smallwood was stressing the importance of the codfish to the Maritimes economy as part of a stern defence of the east coast seal hunt.

He said out-of-control seal populations would decimate codfish stocks, which he said represent half of Newfoundland's industry. This would spell big trouble for the Atlantic and Canadian economies.

Trapper Verdict Reserved

WHITEHORSE, Yukon (CP) — Decision has been reserved in the trial of Dogteam Bill Smith, a trapper from Old Crow, Yukon, who was charged with assaulting an RCMP officer at Old Crow in January.

The two-day trial ended Tuesday.

During the trial, Smith claimed that Old Crow Justice of the Peace Edith Josie had no authority to lay charges against him because she was an illegal immigrant from Alaska. Magistrate Pearce said, however, that the claim was irrelevant to the assault charge.

Smith also maintained that the Cpl. Darryl McFayden did not have the authority to arrest or jail him.

CITY GIRL 'VENTURER'

A Victoria girl has been named one of three in Canada to receive the Queens Venturer Award, Scouting's highest award for outstanding community service.

She is Christine Fuller, 826 Mann, of the 5th Cedar Hill group. Other winners are Sabrine Exner and Reta McWilliams of Maple Ridge.

Debating Finals at UBC Open Friday

Forty top debaters from Vancouver Island high schools will take part in a province-wide debating contest at the University of British Columbia Friday and Saturday.

The annual contest is sponsored by the Debate and Speech Association of B.C. and the four regions of the province will each send 40 students, according to association president Chris Harker.

Seven student debaters will be selected to represent B.C. at the National Student Debating Seminiar to be held in Victoria in May, Harker said.

This is the first national debating seminar in B.C. It will also be sponsored by the association, he said.

Although it receives a grant from the ministry of education, the assocation is non-profit and represents 158 schools and 12 post-secondary institutions in the province.

The association has a funding problem and requires donations to help accommodate about 100 people who will be in Victoria for the national seminar, Harker said.

All donations are tax deductible, he said.

One-Day Terms

Two persons were given nominal one-day jail sentences in Victoria county court Wednesday.

After 4½ hours deliberation, a jury found William Joseph Carnegie, 22, not guilty of indecent assault on a woman but guilty of the lesser offence of common assault. He had spent two months in custody awaiting trial.

Karen Fleming, 24, was also placed on probation for one year for trafficking in one capsule of heroin to an undercover policeman. Judge Montague Drake said the circumstances were "most unusual" and she was "one of those rare people able to clean up her act" after hearing that she had changed her lifestyle and stopped using heroin.

SPECIAL dbx SHOW
THURSDAY, MARCH 16
2 p.m. to 9 p.m. Featuring . .
The discovery of the lost chords.

They're missing. The bombardment of brass. Pulsating percussion. Surging crescendos. And strings that caress your innermost senses. The live experience. Lost once the concert ends.

Now, for the first time, you can recapture that live experience with the exciting, new 3BX Expander. Now you can breathe new life into your audio system. Life that adds up to 50% more dynamic range to your records, tapes and FM broadcasts, while dramatically reducing noise.

But your discovery is not just the sounds you'll hear, but the music you'll see. Visual music that you can control. Divided into 3 separate frequency bands, the unique 30 LED display feature allows you to visualize expansion within each frequency range.

Come hear, and see, the exciting new 3BX perform. Discover the lost chords in your music. Also see the new models 118 and 128 at this speical show. As a bonus dbx dramatically reduces record surface noise and tape hiss and adds a new dimension to stereo FM listening.

"Do I hafta do my homework?"

The Bridge Expert

The suit-preference signal is a defensive signal designed to guide partner's choice between two suits, with both the suit being led and the trump suit being excluded from consideration.

North-South vulnerable.
South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇	3 ♣	Dble.	4 ♣
4 ♡	5 ♣	Pass	Pass
5 ♡	Pass	6 ♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Two of ♣.

The essence of the suit-preference signal is this: When partner, either when leading to the current trick or due to lead to the next trick, seems likely to switch to another suit at the next trick, the play or lead of an unnecessarily high card calls for the lead in the higher-ranking of the two obvious suits; and the play or lead of an obviously low card calls for the lead of the lower-ranking of the two obvious suits. Properly used, the suit-preference signal does not interfere with the conventional encouraging ("positive") and discouraging ("negative") signals.

That the suit-preference signal is a most useful tool can be observed in today's deal.

West's three-club jump overcall showed a seven-card suit within a poor hand. North's double was what is known as a "negative" double: at the three level, it showed, as a minimum, about 11 points, with support for each of unbid suits. The rest of the bidding was natural, with South arriving at a good slam contract in hearts.

When West opened the deuce of clubs, which East won with his king, East paused for reflection. West, for his pre-emptive bid, was known to have a seven-card suit. Why, East asked himself, did West open the deuce, which obviously could not have been his fourth-highest club (if it were, then West would have possessed exactly four clubs, an impossibility)?

So East properly construed the "abnormal" lead of the deuce as a suit-preference signal, which commanded him to lead the lower-ranking of the two obvious suits (diamonds versus spades). At trick two East returned a diamond, which West ruffed, for the setting trick.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Friday, March 17
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Doors previously closed will open — Key is to know what you want and what you want to do about it. Accent on reinforcing structure. Check solid base. Be independent without rejecting past lessons. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Progress replaces retrograde motion — you get clearance. Papers which has been missing or delayed become available. Aquarius, Capricorn, Cancer could be in picture. Number 11 figure prominently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent on finances, making inquiries, gathering information from various sources and synthesizing it. Another Gemini — and a Sagittarian — could figure prominently. Stick to number 3. Diversify. Participate in social activity.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Take initiative. Moon in your zodiacal sign marks time when you are at right place at right time. Be confident, direct, make personal appearances, initiate a campaign. Aquarius, Scorpio and Leo could figure in scenario.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Yes, the writings, messages have created a breakthrough; cash flow can be expected to resume, emphasis on closed-door conference, institutional policies, hospital, shaking off groundless inhibitions. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius could figure prominently.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Emphasis on desire, fulfillment, making friends and influencing people. Taurus, Libra and Cancer figure prominently. Major domestic move, adjustment indicated. Gift is received, has to do with music or making home a more beautiful, harmonious place.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Avoid over-blown claims. Trim superfluous material, define terms. Be sure of sources, quotations. Steer clear of self-deception. Accent on civic activity, honors, reputation, promotion, coming to constructive terms with superior.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Good Moon aspect coincides now with journeys, religious study, observation. You feel confident within. You gain strength through knowledge that you love and are loved. Distance, age, odds are overcome. You are wise enough to control your destiny. Do it!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Study Scorpio message. Refuse to be abused by one who is jealous, frustrated, spouts fanatical philosophy. Create positive images. Don't stand still for any person's verbal garbage. You gain glimpse now of grand opportunities for success and greater happiness.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) New approach is best policy — legal roadblock can be overcome. Stop creating obstacles. Detect signal which amounts to a green light. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently. You discover or rediscover feelings for a special person.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent necessary chores, practical matters, finding lost articles, correcting mistakes getting rid of safety hazards. Build on a more solid base. See ahead in way that is devoid of wishful thinking. This can be a day of steady progress, achievement.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Favorable lunar aspect coincides now with variety, spice to your life, children, change, travel, social activity, relationship that gets "serious." Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently. You are fulfilled if you permit yourself to have fun.

IF MARCH 17 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are an organizer, creative, stubborn, confident that ultimately your destiny is to succeed. Cancer, Capricorn persons play important roles in you life. August should be your most significant month of 1978, a year which could see you gaining fame, shaking off obstacles, deciding once-and-for-all not to carry burdens belonging to someone else.

N.Y. FACING STORM

United Press International

New Yorkers braced for a six-inch snowfall today but residents of Los Angeles flocked to the beaches and basked in a heat wave.

Ice jams and melting snow triggered scattered minor flooding along some Nebraska rivers and streams.

An Atlantic storm pushed eastward into New York City, threatening to cover the area with snow before dissipating Friday. The city has had 49.2 inches of snow this season — much of it in two major storms that hit Jan. 20 and Feb. 6, virtually halting business and transportation each time.

The latest storm, accompanied by falling temperatures, began as rain mixed with snow but forecasters said it would turn to steady snow by nightfall and continue until midday Friday.

Rioting Farmers Quelled by Police

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 50 angry farmers demanding higher crop prices forced their way into the U.S. agriculture department's main office building today, assaulting several government security guards and occupying an inner patio before they were forced to leave by federal riot police.

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland was on the building's second floor, ready to convene a meeting of the department's Commodity Credit Corp. board. He adjourned the gathering and was whisked out a side door to safety by security agents.

No one was severely hurt in the scuffle after an estimated 2,000 chanting members of the American Agriculture movement marched from Capitol Hill and forced their way into the building.

Some firecrackers were set off by the farmers inside the building, causing bystanders to think they were gunshots.

Thomas McBride, the department's inspector general, and his chief security aide, Bob Smith, suffered minor injuries as they tried to stop the farmers from entering. But the farmers pushed their way through, breaking a door as they entered.

One farmer, not identified, was taken into temporary custody. Smith said that "we probably won't charge him, he's just a hothead."

Walter Evanoff, deputy chief of the Federal Protective Service, said later that the farmer would be released because "we made a deal to keep them from tearing the building down."

The break-in occurred shortly after 10 a.m. Protective service officers in riot gear cleared the building within a half-hour.

About 15 of the farmers then were admitted as delegates to meet with agriculture department officials in another building across the street from the administration building.

But their demands to see Bergland were rejected because he had arranged previously to meet with some of them on Friday.

Today's meeting with department officials was set up after security men got a promise from the delegates that they would leave the building right after the session and not cause further trouble.

Professional Sales Career For You

ONE of the risks in hiring a powerful sales force is that everybody else wants them. But Pitney Bowes sales representatives have several things going for them that few other companies can offer. First, a line of diversified products and systems ... copiers, postage meters and related equipment that most businesses need. Secondly, the products have versatility. They can legitimately cut corporate costs and improve efficiency to a variety of ways, depending on the nature of the business. It is up to the sales representative to learn what the customers' needs are and to develop more effective ways to serve them.

ALL this adds up to executive level earnings. Because this is a sales career your income will be determined by your skill. For your orientation period you'll receive salary plus commission plus bonus.

IN addition we have one of the best benefit programs in the industry consisting of non-contributory pension plan, full payments for illness, group life insurance, dental plan, long term disability insurance, profit sharing and an annual sales conference to an exotic spot — this year Las Vegas. Approximately 60 per cent of our sales force qualifies for attendance.

THE quality of our products and the proven need for them give you an inherent selling advantage. But as good as they are, we need people who can dramatically demonstrate their effectiveness.

Too Late?. . .Too Early?

Is it too late to plant? Is it too early to sow seed? This kind of question is asked many times a day by home gardeners. These are questions for which I have no positive answer.

There is only one person in the world who could give a reasonable and satisfactory answer and that is the person who lives with the garden, has tended it for several years, and is in possession of all the facts necessary to making a wise decision.

Subtle changes are taking place all around us. Whether we recognize it or not, each of us is changing as the over-all changes affect our way of thinking and living.

We are quick to spot these changes in others, but look upon ourselves as rational and stable, unaffected by things that go on around us. Yet changes have taken place in the thinking of home gardeners since this column started over a quarter century ago, and these changes are most pronounced.

We now follow the general trend of relying on others to tell us what to do and when to do it.

We are gradually coming to the point where we are unable to think out our own problems, make our own decisions, and accept the responsibilities of any error of judgment.

Whether planting or sowing can be done now depends on many factors, mainly the condition of the soil in which the work is to be done.

A sandy well-drained soil will warm appreciably with increasing average daily temperatures. A wet clay will not show any appreciable increase in temperature until the water has drained from it sufficiently and it is dry enough to collect sun warmth.

Soils between these two will be suitable for working at different times according to the percentage of clay and the ability to lose water. Until a shovelful of soil crumbles when turned over it is not ready to be worked nor to receive seeds.

The calendar and the clock are inventions of man for his own convenience. Today these two inventions control every movement and every decision we make.

In gardening we have to work with nature, and nature does not recognize man's calendar nor his clocks. Gardening is one sphere of activity we cannot reduce to specific days and hours.

To be successful with a garden we have to cultivate that instinct which guided our ancestors, that positive feeling that comes from experience and tells us all the variables in nature have reached a point where we can safely proceed with our project.

As long as any feeling of doubt remains it is wise to delay the sowing of seed or the setting out of tender plants until general conditions are obviously better.

It has been said that he who hesitates is lost, but this does not apply to gardening in spring, although it does as the growing season comes near its end in the fall.

The gardener who hesitates in spring is usually far ahead of the one who takes premature action. If you feel conditions are right in your garden, sow a dozen seeds and see what happens. If your guess is wrong you, at least know that conditions will be better in two week's time.

NOTE: The final public demonstration of rose pruning, sponsored by the Victoria Horticultural Society, will be held in the Rose Garden at Windsor Park (Oak Bay) this Saturday, March 18, starting promptly at 2 p.m. George Hepworth, local rose grower and hybridizer, will demonstrate.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD
CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale: start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your adveertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember. Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

Diner Claims Racial Slur

EDMONTON (CP) — An Edmonton businessman has complained to the Alberta Human Rights Commission that a Grande Prairie restaurant owner told him to "go to a Chinese restaurant where you belong."

Raphael Ching said in a complaint to the commission that the incident occurred March 8 when he was travelling on business. He and two friends went to the Corona Pizza and Steak House in Grande Prairie for dinner.

Ching said he ordered a steak done medium well. When he tasted it, he found it tasted "burnt and bitter."

When he examined the steak, he discovered that it was burnt on both sides. He decided to send it back, summoned the waitress, and she took it to the kitchen.

Ching said another woman came out of the kitchen and gave him the same steak "which looked like it at this point had gone through a belt sander to remove the burnt crust, which did not help."

He said the lady told him there was nothing wrong with the $9 steak. He suggested she taste it and just as she put a piece in her mouth the restaurant owner "came charging out and made a scene" in front of a capacity crowd of diners.

Ching said the owner, Ted Bougiridias, said in a loud voice that he had been cooking steaks for years and there was nothing wrong.

Ching quoted Bougiridias as saying: "There is nothing wrong with the steak. You eat it and get out and do not come back. Go to a Chinese restaurant where you belong."

Ching, a Fillipino, said that when he and his friends got up to leave a dispute ensued over whether they should pay for their soup, salad and a bottle of wine.

Bougiridas said in a telephone interview Tuesday that when he first received the complaint about the steak he did not realize Ching was "Chinese" because Ching was sitting with his back to the kitchen.

"If I would have known he was Chinese, I would have sat down and tried to educate him," he said. "They have different tastes than we have."

Bougiridas said that because Ching's two companions — one an Edmonton businessman and the other the cultural director of Grande Prairie — had longish hair and beards he thought "they were some kind of bums who came in from the bush to have fun with the girls."

He said when Ching offered his wife a taste of the steak while she was standing in front of customers he thought the men "were trying to be funny" with him.

He said he told Ching he should have gone to the Golden Star Chinese restaurant where the food would have been more to his liking.

Cpl. Ed Locke of the RCMP in Grande Prairie said an officer was sent to the Corona to investigate the incident.

Chisanbop: Fingering the Figures

CASTALDO
. . . shockingly simple

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y. (AP) — Seven pairs of tiny hands spring from the table. Seventy fingers slice the air. Neil Castaldo's Grade 6 math class is counting with Chisanbop.

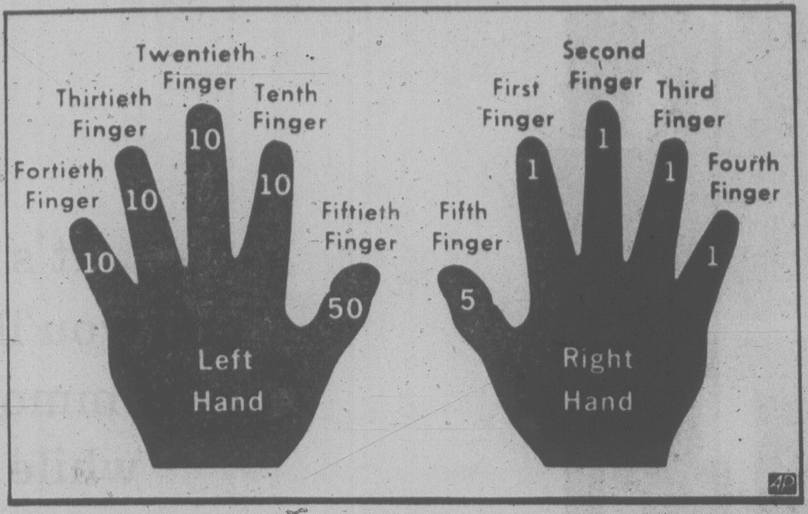
By the time Castaldo pronounces the last number, the youngsters have finished adding and have the correct answer. Their computations are done quickly and easily with Chisanbop — a method of calculating mathematic problems using the fingers.

The Mount Vernon school system is the only one in the United States using Chisanbop as a supplement to its regular math program, with 196 students practising it. Pilot programs elsewhere are expected to begin later this year.

Based on the decimal system, Chisanbop is almost a human extension of the ancient Oriental abacus. It was introduced here by a Korean teacher, Hang Young Pai. He adopted it from a more-complex technique developed by his father 20 years ago in Korea.



In Chisanbop, the fingers of the right hand have the numerical value of one, two, three and four from the index finger to the little finger. The thumb is five. The left hand represents the tens. Those corresponding fingers are 10, 20, 30 and 40. The left thumb is 50.

Calculations — adding, subtracting, multiplying, dividing and finding unknowns — are made by moving and exchanging the fingers from one hand to the next. For figures over 99, pencil and paper are needed to note carry-overs.

FISH TALKS HALT

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian and United States negotiators have been unable to reach a settlement to disputed claims arising from the 200-mile fishing zone of both countries.

With the U.S. Congress in a bitter debate over the Panama Canal Treaty and the federal government possibly facing a general election, decisions might be hard to make, the negotiators say.

Cambodia Attacks Vietnam Port

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Cambodian forces striking from land and sea have launched a major attack around the Vietnamese coastal port of Ha Tien, official Radio Hanoi said today.

The radio indicated heavy fighting was in progress within 1.5 miles of the town center and called it a "grave escalation step" in the months-long border war.

Vietnam appeared to show more concern over the latest attack than similar scale raids around Chao Doc and even bigger assaults farther north in Tay Ninh province over the past month.

Analysts say Hanoi may fear it is the start of an all-out offensive aimed at capturing Ha Tien and the marshy salient on which it stands.

Radio Hanoi said a major Cambodian force comprising ground and naval units launched the attack before dawn on Tuesday.

By nightfall on the same day, two battalions of Khmer Rouge troops were reported to have occupied Xa Xia and Ky Lo, 4 miles north of Ha Tien, and a third battalion was said to have pushed as far as Dia Tang, a hill position about 1.5 miles north of the once-bustling fishing port.

At the same time, the radio said, another battalion-size force landing from seven naval vessels had punched through mangrove swamps and were advancing on Ha Tien from the west and northwest.

Foreign observers who have visited Vietnam's far southwestern frontier region in recent weeks say Ha Tien's former population of 30,000 has now been reduced to less than 1,000 following at least two major Cambodian attacks over the past 18 months.

During one attack last year, Khmer Rouge troops entered the town, but were driven back in hand-to-hand combat.

Radio Hanoi said the Cambodians had committed "barbarous crimes" in Tuesday's multi-pronged operation. "The Vietnamese people and armed forces are giving a strong response to the Cambodian intruders," the radio said.

SHOTS FIGHT CHILD KILLER

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — A new disease, carried by parents unknowingly, is killing and disabling more children than did polio in the 1950s, say two researchers at the Baylor College of Medicine.

Drs. Carol Baker and Morven Edwards said the disease — known as Group B Strep — strikes about 15,000 infants a year in the United States. Half the babies die, they say, and the others are left blind, deaf or mentally retarded, with spinal meningitis, or later, with learning and behavioral problems.

"When you say 15,000 infants a year, perhaps that is not an impressive figure," said Dr. Baker. "But it is a greater toll than the polio babies of the 1950s. It is a heart-breaking experience to see a child born with this disease and then die within two to 12 hours."

The doctors said the disease was first spotted in children early in the 1970s and its growth as yet is statistically impossible to measure. Their feeling, however, is that the disease is striking more and more children.

Drs. Baker and Edwards said in a recent interview that they are working with doctors at Harvard Medical School to develop a vaccine that would slow and perhaps stop spread of the disease, which is similar to group B streptococcus.

The streptococcus family causes such diseases as scarlet fever, rheumatic fever and strep throat, but the new disease produces symptoms of none of these in the parent carrier.

The scientists said the disease is carried by the mother in her vagina or can be transmitted from the father during sex but is not a venereal disease. There are no social or economic boundaries of who contracts the disease, which can strike after a normal pregnancy begins, often too late for treatment, the two researchers said.

"We can detect the disease at birth but by then it generally is too late," said Dr. Baker. "We must immunize the mother. But because of concern of administering vaccines to pregnant women, the solution seems to be giving the vaccine to women of child-bearing age."

The doctors said a preliminary test with volunteers indicated the possibility of immunizing mothers from passing along the disease, even when the father is the carrier. They said large-scale studies will begin this spring to determine the effectiveness of a vaccine.

The two doctors said that it is mandatory to begin an education program, perhaps in schools, to tell young people about the disease. Dr. Baker suggested immunizing women who apply for marriage licences.

Disco Duck Quacking For Cash

MEMPHIS — The duck on the hit novelty recording Disco Duck claims he made only $100 for his work and has filed a chancery court suit for a share of the record's profits. Kenneth Pruitt, who provided the duck's voice on the recording, said he even helped promote Rick Dees' popular song by wearing a yellow duck suit in public. Pruitt wants half the profits from the record and punitive damages of $50,000 as well as an injunction against disposal of Disco Duck's assets until the case is decided. Pruitt said he was asked in June 1976 to provide his duck voice on the record and sat at two recording sessions, where he "suggested word changes and rephrasing of the duck vocals."

MOSCOW — Soviet cellist Mstislav Rostropovich, conductor of Washington's National Symphony Orchestra, has been stripped of his citizenship for "anti-Soviet activities." The action, taken by the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, also includes his wife, soprano Galina Vishnevskaya. The 50-year-old musician, regarded by many as the world's greatest living cellist, left the Soviet Union in 1974. He first ran into trouble with Soviet authorities in 1970 for his defence of writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn.

TEL AVIV — Former Israeli prime minister Golda Meir has been admitted to a Tel Aviv hospital for tests, her doctors said today. They said the 79-year-old Mrs. Meir's condition was good, but declined to say why she was sent to hospital.

SALT LAKE CITY — The Utah Supreme Court granted stays of execution Wednesday to convicted killers Dale Pierre and William Andrews, who were scheduled to be shot at sunrise next Wednesday for the slayings of three people during an Ogden robbery in 1974. Before the stays were granted, prison warden Samuel Smith had said Pierre and Andrews might be executed in the same place on prison grounds where Gary Gilmore was shot by a firing squad Jan. 17, 1977.

DETROIT — A restaurant owner is being held in connection with a fatal shooting that police say was caused by a patron's request for more butter on his hash-brown potatoes. Police said Kala Gjurashj, 35, would be arraigned today on murder charges in the shooting death of Jack Thomas, 24. Thomas died Wednesday of several gunshot wounds to the abdomen. Police said Thomas entered the Coney Island Restaurant on Tuesday, received his food and paid for it. When he demanded more butter, witnesses told police, an argument erupted. Police said one of the restaurant's cook's pulled out a blackjack and hit Thomas, who then pulled a knife. At that point, Gjurashj came out from behind a bullet-proof plexiglass cage carrying a gun and shot Thomas, police said.

ATLANTA — Larry Flynt's lung problems improved slightly Wednesday, his doctors said, but the sex magazine publisher is still in critical condition and being helped to breath by a respirator.

COFFEYVILLE, Kan. — Martha Marine was regarded as a destitute recluse, an eccentric who refused help from neighbors concerned about her life in the squalor of a small frame house. She used to carry ducks around with her in a battered old car. Later she raised chickens at her junk-filled home. And when she died Sunday of tetanus on her 64th birthday, she left an estate that may be worth millions of dollars. "I can hardly believe anybody worth that much money could live like that," Larry Murdock, Coffeyville funeral director, said Wednesday. The funeral director said there are also indications the woman owned 50 to 100 acres of land near Los Angeles. Born of wealthy parents in Washington, D.C., her only known survivors are four cousins. They were not aware of her recent past, nor that she lived and died in Coffeyville.

Italian Tension Grows In Wake Of Moro Kidnap

Times News Services

ROME — Terrorists disguised as airline pilots today kidnapped former premier Aldo Moro and killed his five bodyguards in a bloody assault that plunged this violence-torn nation into a civil war atmosphere.

Telephone callers in Rome, Milan and Turin told reporters the attack was staged by the Red Brigade, a group so ultra-left it considers the Communist party a lackey of the establishment. They have claimed responsibility for many of the acts of terrorism that strike in Italy on an average of six times a day.

Moro, 61, is Italy's most influential politician — five times premier, five times foreign minister. Political sources said he had been widely expected to resume the premiership in a new coalition government. His was the first abduction of a major Italian leader since the Second World War and politicians spoke about civil war, imposing martial law and restoring the death penalty.

The terrorists using a Japanese motorbike and a diplomatic corps automobile stolen from the Venezuelan embassy, ambushed and abducted the Christian Democratic Party president as he was driving to parliament for a vote-of-confidence debate on Premier Giulio Andreotti's Communist supported new government.

The men fired without warning, killing all of Moro's five police bodyguards in Italy's bloodiest postwar kidnapping, then sped off with Moro. The assault came near Moro's home on Monte Mario where the Rome Hilton Hotel is located.

The government threw an estimated 50,000 police and army troops into the manhunt, and some time later police said they found the kidnap car, with bloodstains on a back door and the back seat.

They said they found a bullet inside with fragments of Moro's suit, indicating he may have been wounded.

The kidnappers had abandoned the car and transferred to another, and police

SNOWSTORM BLANKETS BRITAIN

LONDON (AP) — Snowstorms struck much of Britain today, laying a white blanket up to 20 centimetres thick over parts of the country just two days before it is to go on British Summer Time.

At least two people were killed in traffic accidents as roads were closed, towns were cut off and traffic on even major thoroughfares ground to a crawl.

"It's pretty chaotic," said a police spokeman.

Israelis Continue Lebanon Drive

United Press International

Renewed fighting broke out today between invading Israeli forces and Palestinian guerrillas on a six-mile-wide strip of Lebanese soil and the Palestinians said Israeli reinforcements were pouring into the battle zone.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said Wednesday his country's 17-hour punitive raid had ended and Israeli forces would stay put until an agreement is reached to prevent terrorists from returning to the border region.

But a Palestinian military communique in Beirut today said guerrillas fought off repeated Israeli air and ground strikes in south Lebanon and reported fresh helicopter-borne Israeli troop arrivals in the border regions.

"Since daybreak, Israeli warplanes have raided several of our south Lebanon positions and border villages east of (the Lebanese rightist-held town of) Marjayoun," a Palestinian military communique said.

Palestinian officials acknowledged guerrillas had made some "strategic withdrawals" from some positions.

An earlier communique said the guerrillas fought night-long battles with invading Israeli troops and tanks and checked fresh Israeli advances on the ground.

Meanwhile, creation of a peace-keeping force in southern Lebanon to maintain a buffer strip free of Palestinian guerrillas is being discussed between the United States and Israel.

U.S. officials said several options are being discussed with an aim to have the area policed by the Lebanese armed forces alone. But in the short run it will probably be necessary to have the Lebanese reinforced by a UN force, officials said.

They said there is no chance U.S. armed forces would be used for the job.

The U.S. officials said the Israelis ruled out having Syrian or other Arab peace-keeping forces move into the area.

Apparently adopting a hands-off attitude in action and comment on the massive Israeli strike at Palestinian terrorists, Carter administration leaders avoided personal statements and left the U.S. State Department to issue a preliminary view sympathetic to Israel.

"It has been clear for some time that the presence of the (Palestinian) military units in southern Lebanon has posed a threat to Israel's security," State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said.

"These units have not only declared their hostility to Israel, but they have launched terrorist attacks on Israel, most recently last Saturday," he said. "Both privately and publicly, we are urging that the violence not be allowed to interrupt the peace process."

Egypt mounted a diplomatic offensive to force Israel to withdraw in an apparent attempt to salvage President Anwar Sadat's peace initiative. Both Syria and Libya denounced the Israeli "aggression."

The right-wing Phalangist Voice of Lebanon radio station said the Israelis captured the south Lebanon village of Rashaya el Fukhar early today "and blew up two bridges in south Lebanon."

One Palestinian official disputed Israeli reports the invading force had captured all the guerrilla targets and was now mopping up the holdouts.

THE BYRDS
HAD ANY BREAK-OUTS IN THIS PRISON?
YEH, IN 1957 KNUCKLES NORTON GOT THE MEASLES.

Six Prince Rupert fishermen — five of them members of one family — are presumed drowned in the first tragedy of the 1978 herring season.

One body was recovered by search vessels this morning.

Their 60-foot fishing vessel, Ocean Invader II, which was fishing for the Port Simpson Native Co-op, was discovered damaged and floating upside down at 7:10 a.m. today 12 miles southeast of Cape St. James in Queen Charlotte Sound.

Radio reports from the vessel Wednesday night said it was caught in heavy seas and high winds.

The missing vessel was en route from the northern tip of Vancouver Island to fishing grounds off the Queen Charlottes in company with two other seiners when it vanished.

Weather at the time was very bad, with high seas and cloud scudding only 30 metres above the surface.

There were no signs of survivors and the Ocean Invader II was being towed into calmer waters by the department of fisheries vessel Arrow Post.

Taking part in a search for the missing men are two Buffalo aircraft and one Labrador helicopter from CFB Comox, two coast guard vessels and between eight and 10 commercial fishing vessels.

Bus Men Await Decision

Union and management involved in the four-day old B.C. Hydro transit strike waited today to see if the provincial government is going to intervene in the dispute.

The provincial cabinet met this morning and Labor Minister Allan Williams was expected to make a recommendation on whether or not the government should end the strike under the terms of the Essential Services Disputes Act.

The main issues in dispute are the union's demand for a shorter work week and the company's desire to control the spare board, a system for assigning work during peak periods.

MISLEADING AD CHARGED ICBC

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Insurers Advisory Organization has complained to the Insurance Corp. of British Columbia that ICBC's comparisons of insurance rates in various provinces is "grossly misleading."

The comparisons, used in ICBC advertisements earlier this year, compared ICBC rates for various types of cars with rates taken from the IAO's 1977 manual. The advertisements said the comparison proved that B.C. motorists pay less than those in some other areas.

In a letter to ICBC chairman Ralph Gillen, dated Feb. 6 and released earlier this week, IAO manager Ted Elton says the rates listed in its manual were only intended to serve as a benchmark for association members.

Rate quotations provided by Safeco Insurance Co. of Toronto shows lower rates than those quoted by ICBC in the advertisement.

The ICBC quotes were for cars with comprehensive coverage driven by persons aged 25 and over who have been accident free for two years. Public liability and property damage was listed at $200,000 with collision deductibility of $190 and comprehensive deductibility of $50.

ICBC said it would charge $301 for such coverage for a 1971 Dodge Colt in Vancouver, while Calgary drivers would pay $319 and Toronto drivers would pay $341, based on the IAO manual.

Safeco said that its rates are $63 less than those used in the ad for Calgary drivers and $62 less than the quote for Toronto.

5.4% Growth In Investment

OTTAWA (CP) — Revised investment figures show that capital spending by business, government and institutions during 1978 will total $48.983 billion, up 5.4 per cent from 1977, Statistics Canada said Wednesday.

Earlier estimates by the federal agency last month had predicted investment would be 4.8 per cent higher than in 1977. The new figures include further responses to the agency's survey.

But despite the slight improvement in outlook, investment in real terms will decline for the second successive year because of inflation.

Federal authorities are hoping for inflation this year at between six and seven per cent. But inflation at that level would outpace investment growth.

In 1977, investment grew by 6.5 per cent from 1976 but the average inflation rate for the year was eight per cent.

The latest figures show the investment picture for the year is brightest in the four Atlantic provinces and British Columbia.

Capital spending — which includes investment in construction, machinery and equipment — will increase by 16 per cent in Newfoundland this year, the highest growth of any province.

New Brunswick's investment will be up by 15 per cent, B.C. by 12.2 per cent, Nova Scotia by 11.5 per cent and Prince Edward Island by 8.5 per cent.

But Ontario will see an increase of only 4.4 per cent, Quebec 4.2 per cent, Alberta by 3.4 per cent, Saskatchewan 2.5 per cent and Yukon and the Northwest Territories by 2.2 per cent.

Socreds Now Welching On Land Claims: Feds

OTTAWA (CP) — British Columbia's Social Credit government is trying to back out of its commitment to help settle Indian land claims, according to confiential federal government documents.

The documents, prepared by the federal native claims office say that the only effective means of bringing the province into claims negotiations is to increase political pressure.

Part of the plan includes a threat to establish a B.C. aboriginal rights commission without provincial government participation.

The commission, proposed one year ago by George Manuel, Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs president, would conduct hearings, commission studies and make recommendations on how to settle B.C. claims.

The documents say that preliminary discussions on the commission were held last year between Ottawa, B.C. and the Indians and were positive. However, Labor Minister Allan Williams, responsible for B.C. Indian affairs, later rejected the proposal.

'Recipe for Disaster'

By DAN POTTIER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canadians must accept as a fact of life that the devaluation of the dollar means imported goods will cost more, says Finance Minister Jean Chretien.

Consumers should "buy carefully" and in the case of foodstuffs buy more from Canadian farmers, he told the Commons.

It would be a "recipe for disaster" for the government to try to protect all consumers from all types of inflation, especially the imported variety. It would only cause more inflation.

The minister made the point after Statistics Canada reported that higher food and housing prices led the way in February as consumer prices rose by seven-tenths of one per cent.

Opposition Leader Joe Clark demanded action to ease the inflation burden on low income families especially since the most dramatic increases were for fresh fruit and vegetables which are mostly imported at this time.

He said costs in such areas were aggravated by the devaluation of the Canadian dollar and chastized the government for saying the poor should just accept the situation.

Chretien, said devaluation also brought benefits in terms of making Canadian goods more competitive abroad and helping the balance of payments problem.

"We are paying the price of past indiscipline in the Canadian market," he said.

Meanwhile, the Retail Council of Canada says each Canadian spent an average of $9.34 more in 1977 on imported food than in 1976 because its cost went up as the Canadian dollar's value declined.

The council said Wednesday the nation's total bill for food eaten at home in 1977 was $15.5 billion, an increase of about nine per cent over 1976.

ANOTHER LOW FOR $

Times News Services

The U.S. dollar today plunged to another postwar low of 232.40 yen on the Tokyo Foreign Exchange Market.

The currency started the day sharply lower at 233.10 and reached its low at 9:45 a.m., 45 minutes after the opening of trading. Wednesday's closing rate was 234.50.

The price of gold dropped to $185.55 U.S. an ounce at the morning fixing in London from Wednesday's closing price of $186.

The kidnaping of former Italian premier Aldo Moro in Rome, Israel's invasion of Lebanon, and Japanese economic news were cited by money dealers as reasons for the U.S. currency's instability.

In New York, the Canadian dollar was down 1-25 at $0.8903. Pound sterling was up 9-10 at $1.9135.

Pressure on the Canadian dollar had eased somewhat on New York money markets Wednesday as the currency climbed above 89 U.S. cents for the first time this week.

The dollar closed at 89.07 U.S. cents, up from Tuesday's close of 88.96 U.S. cents, and traders expressed guarded optimism that the currency would gain more strength over the next few weeks.

Sea-Seat: International Spotlight Turns

By AB KENT
Times Staff

A new piece of marine survival gear developed at the University of Victoria for recreational boaters is being studied by the military on two continents.

Hayward said the Australian military, which has adopted UVic's floatation jacket, is now interested in the sea-seat and the U.S. navy and air force want the seats and jackets for testing.

UVic has become known around the world for its pioneering success in combatting hypothermia with its Thermofloat jacket, which the biologists designed and proved in a bid to save the lives of mariners.

Hypothermia is the sudden and drastic loss of heat from vital areas of the body such as the heart, neck and brain, leading to death from exposure.

Individuals wearing the jacket more than double their chances of survival in seawater by protecting the vulnerable heat-loss areas of the body for up to 9½ hours.

"By using the sea-seat in addition to the body protection, a person in seawater can survive low temperatures for 15 to 24 hours, Hayward said.

Sea-seat was intended as an accessory to the Thermofloat jacket to increase resistance to hypothermia, and was not specifically designed for floatation, he said.

Both items were designed for recreational boaters as something they could obtain reasonably and carry with little effort in case of emergency.

Hayward said it's satisfying to see the military interest even though their personnel, pilots particularly, have the best available equipment.

HAYWARD
. . . "satisfying"

"It would be nice to see us export some expertise. We're so used to consuming their products," he said.

Among those who saw sea-seat demonstrated were members of the Power Squadron, a civilian self-help organization devoted to marine safety. Hayward said the squadron has ordered 50 sea-seats to start.

Hayward said it demonstrates that small boat operators have come to appreciate the dangers of hypothermia.

"I am happy to say people are more respectful of exposure," he said.

Although nearly 10 per cent of the body remains submerged with the sea-seat in use, that portion is only the lower calves and feet which act to stabilize the cushion as it supports a sitting user.

"Cold feet don't kill," Hayward points out.

The UVic team found that the combined use of the Thermofloat jacket and the sea-seat miniature raft rivals the best in specialized survival gear for the military, merchant mariners and passenger airlines with ocean routes.

They compared the UVic equipment with more than 20 quite expensive cold water immersion suits and it proved the equal of both close-fitting wet suits and loose-fitting dry foam floatation types, Hayward said.

"It's like life insurance for the small boater and it's equal to the best available products."

Sea-seat meets military specifications for materials, and is made from the same nylon-polyurethane fabric used in ocean survival rafts carried by airliners. The material is welded by a special purpose machine which uses high frequency sound to seal the seams.

When folded and ready for use, sea-seat can be carried in a large pocket, attached by a lanyard to a jacket or tied to the user. It is not self-inflating.

Hayward said ideally users should blow up the seat before entering the water, enabling them to ease on to the raft with the least risk of getting wet.

But inflation can be carried out while an individual is being supported by a floatation coat or life jacket.

Besides, Hayward says, there is biological merit in the act of blowing into the cushion as a means of stimulating blood circulation.

Inflated, Sea-seat is about 24 inches square and shaped to allow some air to be trapped in the centre as insulation. Folded, it occupies little more space than a paperback book.

After more than four years developing their device, the university biologists found it difficult to find a firm with the equipment and technology to make the sea-seat to a high standard.

Hayward said it costs about $20 to make a sea-seat and the markup to its $29.50 retail price is within most boaters' means. Sales are by mail order only and the university shares in royalties.

FOULED RELAY DOUSES POWER

A malfunctioning relay in the power cable from the mainland to Vancouver Island left Victoria and parts of the south island without power for up to 33 minutes at rush hour Wednesday afternoon.

B.C. Hydro said the end of the peninsula and westward to Sooke was affected by the power break at 4:48 p.m. when loads automatically cut out because of the faulty switch.

In some areas the blackout was only momentary but in others power was off until heavy-demand circuits could be restored in sequence.

Hydro said there was no connection between the failure and the strike by Hydro transit workers.

Friday Talks Aim To Avert Walkout By Police Union

The Victoria police board will meet Friday afternoon with representatives of policemen threatening strike action.

A key issue is union unhappiness with a new shift system proposed by the board.

"If talks break down we'll have no alternative but to serve strike notice," union president Sgt. Brian Bailey said today.

Under the labor code the union has 90 days in which to serve 72-hour strike notice.

Bailey said from the officers' standpoint there can be no compromise on the issue.

"Either we get a 12-hour shift system or we don't get it. It's as simple as that," he said.

Bailey said he is surprised by comments Wednesday by police board chairman Mayor Mike Young, who said he doesn't understand police objections to the proposal.

It would involve officers in the patrol and traffic divisions working 10 and 12-hour shifts rather than eight-hour ones.

"I think there's been a misunderstanding somewhere along the line," Bailey said. "The board doesn't seem to have been properly informed what a 12-hour shift is."

He said judging by Young's remarks, the board appears to think the union is demanding 10 or 12-hour shift for all union members on the force.

"We realize the new shift isn't suitable for everyone and have given the board a list of 20 to 22 members who would be exempt."

Bailey said members want a shift system that parallels those in effect in three other municipal forces in the Greater Victoria area.

The board's proposal is completely different, he said, and that is causing the objections.

ARSON SUSPECTED IN MOTORBIKE FIRE

Arson is suspected in a fire that heavily damaged two motorcycles parked outside a Bay Street house early today.

City firemen were called to 951 Bay at 1:31 a.m. to extinguish the fire.

Firemen estimated damage to a Honda owned by Rene Fortier at $1,900 and to a Suzuki owned by Lucie Livernoche at $350.

Rape Film On 'Standby'

The controversial film How To Say No to a Rapist could be returned to a rape counselling program shown in Greater Victoria schools, Esquimalt Police Chief Arthur Burton said today.

The 15-minute film, which advocates co-operation rather than resistance by rape victims, is under review and has been removed for the time being from rape-counselling sessions sponsored by the department.

"I wouldn't say it has been permanently withdrawn," Burton said. "It's on standby."

Burton said solid support for the film has come from students and parents in letters to the department.

The department will seek more opinions and view more films before making a decision. It it also trying to locate the producer of the film, Fred Storaska.

"We'll tell him we had some complaints and see what his views are."

Burton said the force has been unsuccessful in its attempts to locate Storaska, but believes he is in New York.

Community relations officer Constable Paul Hicks showed the film to groups of Esquimalt high school students last month, drawing sharp criticism from the Greater Victoria school board.

Mayor Art Young said today the police board has met with board chairman Susan Brice but did not come up with any solutions to the problem of the quality of films shown in schools.

Burton said the department is waiting for completion of a B.C. Police Commission task force on rape films before selecting a movie.

Doubled Fines Studied by City For Late Payment

The city of Victoria is considering doubling the penalty for late payment of parking fines from $5 to $10.

Currently a parking meter fine amounts to $3 and if not paid within seven days is increased to $5.

But city manager Jim Bramley told council's finance committee today that "clerical costs have increased and quite obviously, with inflation, the additional $2 penalty is having less and less impact."

Last year, out of a total of 88,000 parking tickets, some 30,000 were paid late.

Bramley said the clerical duties associated with late payments are significant.

The committee will study a report on the matter for three weeks before making a final decision.

Mayor Mike Young, however, said today: "I think we have to increase that penalty $5 to $10 at least — even that may be charitable."

Young said he didn't want to see any increase in the initial fine, just in the late payment penalty.

In his report, Bramley also recommended a reduction in the fine levied for illegally parking in marked zones such as residential, truck, hotel or bus zones.

Bramley said fines covering those areas now amount to $10 and in addition, police order the tow-away of the illegally parked vehicle, which costs the offender an additional $16.

"It is felt that this parking infraction is too severe when compared to the parking meter violation," reported Bramley.

He recommended that fines for marked parking zones be reduced to $3 with an increase to $10 for late payment.

JUBILEE HOSPITAL MAY GET TOUGH

Charges Facing Smokers

People who ignore no-smoking signs in Royal Jubilee Hospital may soon end up in court.

Hospital administrator Dr. Archie Pickles said today the hospital board is considering imposing tough new rules to stop smoking in areas where no-smoking signs are posted.

He said the rules will be backed by authority of the provincial fire marshal and offenders could be charged with a violation of city bylaw 3434.

Pickles said the hospital isn't going to impose a ban yet, as St. Joseph's Hospital in Comox will do in October, but "we're working towards it." (See page 20.)

"A total ban will have to come in time," he said.

But to do so now would be a hardship particularly for elderly patients with terminal illnesses for whom "taking a little puff now and then is one of the few pleasures left to them."

Pickles said the hospital has been carrying out a program for four years aimed at educating the public, patients and staff about the dangers of smoking.

He said the program has had some success in reducing smoking among staff members but there are still problems with visitors and some patients.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for Victoria General Hospital said an internal hospital committee is looking into the problems of smoking and will make recommendations on how far the hospital should go.

At present smoking is only restricted in certain areas. And cigarettes are still permitted to be sold at the hospital kiosk.

"We have a special problem here because the CNIB runs the kiosk and if there was a total ban we may put someone out of work," the spokesman said.

In other respects the hospital is attempting to set an example. The board and senior staff have passed motions not to smoke during meetings.

"It's amazing how quickly we get through the meetings now," a staff member said.

UVIC ART SHOW UNTIL SATURDAY

The University of Victoria's art collection is being displayed for the first time in the new gallery on campus.

The inaugural exibition of UVic's Maltwood Art Museum and Gallery runs until Saturday in the new gallery in the University Centre foyer.

Although the official gallery opening is in September, the inaugural exhibition has been planned to give visitors and the campus community an early view of the university's art collection.

The Maltwood Museum collection of 17th Century English furniture and 19th Century clothing, glassware and ceramics is the only comprehensive international decorative arts collection in Western Canada.

It was bequeathed to UVic in 1964 by the husbnad of Kathernine Maltwood, turn-of-the-century sculptress, antiquarian and writer.

UVic's art collection, started in 1952, contains B.C. watercolors and other art including some contemporary native prints.

Oak Bay Hopefuls To Spend $75,000

The five candidates in Monday's Oak Bay byelection are spending a total of about $75,000.

The candidates — Bennett Camp, New Democratic Party; Frank Carson, Social Credit; Graham Ross-Smith, Liberal; Vic Stephens, Conservative and Larry Tickner, Socialist Party of Canada — all predict victory but few political pundits are prepared to go that far for any of them.

Ross-Smith says the party, which held the seat from 1952 to 1969 when it was taken by former Conservative leader Scott Wallace under the Social Credit party banner, is spending about $20,000 on the race. The Liberals spent $883 in Oak Bay during the 1975 provincial general election.

Conservative leader Stephens said his party is spending $20,000. Wallace, running as a Conservative, spent $13,200 in the 1975 general election.

Carson, a car dealer who defeated Oak Bay mayor Brian Smith in the only nomination battle, said his party is spending between $20,000 and $21,000 — an increase from the $18,600 he spent in his effort to unseat Wallace in 1975.

Camp, who is spending about $15,000 in the upper-middle-class riding, has criticized the government for what he says are its punitive political taxation policies which resulted in several tax increases.

Tickner, a carpenter, is spending $850.

There are 30,483 registered voters in the riding, an increase from the 1975 election when 22,638 voted. Current standing in the legislature is Social Credit, 35; NDP, 18; Liberal, 1; and vacant, 1.

Italian Tension Grows In Wake Of Moro Kidnap

Times News Services

ROME — Terrorists disguised as airline pilots today kidnapped former premier Aldo Moro and killed his five bodyguards in a bloody assault that plunged this violence-torn nation into a civil war atmosphere.

Telephone callers in Rome, Milan and Turin told reporters the attack was staged by the Red Brigade, a group so ultra-left it considers the Communist party a lackey of the establishment. They have claimed responsibility for many of the acts of terrorism that strike in Italy on an average of six times a day.

Moro, 61, is Italy's most influential politician — five times premier, five times foreign minister. Political sources said he had been widely expected to resume the premiership in a new coalition government. His was the first abduction of a major Italian leader since the Second World War and politicians spoke about civil war, imposing martial law and restoring the death penalty.

The terrorists, using a Japanese motorbike and a diplomatic corps automobile stolen from the Venezuelan embassy, ambushed and abducted the Christian Democratic Party president as he was driving to parliament for a vote-of-confidence debate on Premier Giulio Andreotti's Communist supported new government.

The men fired without warning, killing all of Moro's five police bodyguards in Italy's bloodiest postwar kidnapping, then sped off with Moro. The assault came near Moro's home on Monte Mario where the Rome Hilton Hotel is located.

The government threw an estimated 50,000 police and army troops into the manhunt, and some time later police said they found the kidnap car, with bloodstains on a back door and the back seat.

They said they found a bullet inside with fragments of Moro's suit, indicating he may have been wounded.

The kidnappers had abandoned the car and transferred to another, and police

SNOWSTORM BLANKETS BRITAIN

LONDON (AP) — Snowstorms struck much of Britain today, laying a white blanket up to 20 centimetres thick over parts of the country just two days before it is to go on British Summer Time.

At least two people were killed in traffic accidents as roads were closed, towns were cut off and traffic on even major thoroughfares ground to a crawl.

"It's pretty chaotic," said a police spokeman.

Israelis Continue Lebanon Drive

United Press International

Renewed fighting broke out today between invading Israeli forces and Palestinian guerrillas on a six-mile-wide strip of Lebanese soil and the Palestinians said Israeli reinforcements were pouring into the battle zone.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin said Wednesday his country's 17-hour punitive raid had ended and Israeli forces would stay put until an agreement is reached to prevent terrorists from returning to the border region.

But a Palestinian military communique in Beirut today said guerrillas fought off repeated Israeli air and ground strikes in south Lebanon and reported fresh helicopter-borne Israeli troop arrivals in the border regions.

"Since daybreak, Israeli warplanes have raided several of our south Lebanon positions and border villages east of (the Lebanese rightist-held town of) Marjayoun," a Palestinian military communique said.

Palestinian officials acknowledged guerrillas had made some "strategic withdrawals" from some positions.

An earlier communique said the guerrillas fought night-long battles with invading Israeli troops and tanks and checked fresh Israeli advances on the ground.

Meanwhile, creation of a peace-keeping force in southern Lebanon to maintain a buffer strip free of Palestinian guerrillas is being discussed between the United States and Israel.

U.S. officials said several options are being discussed with an aim to have the area policed by the Lebanese armed forces alone. But in the short run it will probably be necessary to have the Lebanese reinforced by a UN force, officials said.

They said there is no chance U.S. armed forces would be used for the job.

The U.S. officials said the Israelis ruled out having Syrian or other Arab peacekeeping forces move into the area.

Apparently adopting a hands-off attitude in action and comment on the massive Israeli strike at Palestinian terrorists, Carter administration leaders avoided personal statements and left the U.S. State Department to issue a preliminary view sympathetic to Israel.

"It has been clear for some time that the presence of the (Palestinian) military units in southern Lebanon has posed a threat to Israel's security," State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said.

"These units have not only declared their hostility to Israel, but they have launched terrorist attacks on Israel, most recently last Saturday," he said. "Both privately and publicly, we are urging that the violence not be allowed to interrupt the peace process."

Egypt mounted a diplomatic offensive to force Israel to withdraw in an apparent attempt to salvage President Anwar Sadat's peace initiative. Both Syria and Libya denounced the Israeli "aggression."

The right-wing Phalangist Voice of Lebanon radio station said the Israelis captured the south Lebanon village of Rashaya el Fukhar early today "and blew up two bridges in south Lebanon."

One Palestinian official disputed Israeli reports the invading force had captured all the guerrilla targets and was now mopping up the holdouts.

THE BYRDS
HAD ANY BREAK-OUTS IN THIS PRISON?
YEH, IN 1957 KNUCKLES NORTON GOT THE MEASLES.

Six Prince Rupert fishermen — five of them members of one family — are presumed drowned in the first tragedy of the 1978 herring season.

One body was recovered by search vessels this morning.

Their 60-foot fishing vessel, Ocean Invader II, which was fishing for the Port Simpson Native Co-op, was discovered damaged and floating upside down at 7:10 a.m. today 12 miles southeast of Cape St. James in Queen Charlotte Sound.

Radio reports from the vessel Wednesday night said it was caught in heavy seas and high winds.

The missing vessel was en route from the northern tip of Vancouver Island to fishing grounds off the Queen Charlottes in company with two other seiners when it vanished.

Weather at the time was very bad, with high seas and cloud scudding only 30 metres above the surface.

There were no signs of survivors and the Ocean Invader II was being towed into calmer waters by the department of fisheries vessel Arrow Post.

Taking part in a search for the missing men are two Buffalo aircraft and one Labrador helicopter from CFB Comox, two coast guard vessels and between eight and 10 commercial fishing vessels.

Hands Off On Busses - Gov't

The provincial government decided today not to intervene at this time in the four-day old B.C. Hydro bus strike.

Labor Minister Allan Williams after reporting to cabinet on the dispute between the Amalgamated Transit Union and the Crown corporation, said while the shutdown has caused some inconvenience, there is not enough to warrant government intervention at this time.

The labor minister said the strike will be monitored on a daily basis and if the situation warrants it, he will again come to the provincial cabinet with a recommendations.

"While there has been some inconvenience from the dispute, it doesn't touch on essential services," Williams said.

MISLEADING AD CHARGED ICBC

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Insurers Advisory Organization has complained to the Insurance Corp. of British Columbia that ICBC's comparisons of insurance rates in various provinces is "grossly misleading."

The comparisons, used in ICBC advertisements earlier this year, compared ICBC rates for various types of cars with rates taken from the IAO's 1977 manual. The advertisements said the comparison proved that B.C. motorists pay less than those in some other areas.

In a letter to ICBC chairman Ralph Gillen, dated Feb. 6 and released earlier this week, IAO manager Ted Elton says the rates listed in its manual were only intended to serve as a benchmark for association members.

Rate quotations provided by Safeco Insurance Co. of Toronto shows lower rates than those quoted by ICBC in the advertisement.

The ICBC quotes were for cars with comprehensive coverage driven by persons aged 25 and over who have been accident free for two years. Public liability and property damage was listed at $200,000 with collision deductibility of $190 and comprehensive deductibility of $50.

ICBC said it would charge $301 for such coverage for a 1971 Dodge Colt in Vancouver, while Calgary drivers would pay $319 and Toronto drivers would pay $344, based on the IAO manual.

Safeco said that its rates are $63 less than those used in the ad for Calgary drivers and $62 less than the quote for Toronto.

5.4% Growth In Investment

OTTAWA (CP) — Revised investment figures show that capital spending by business, government and institutions during 1978 will total $48.983 billion, up 5.4 per cent from 1977, Statistics Canada said Wednesday.

Earlier estimates by the federal agency last month had predicted investment would be 4.8 per cent higher than in 1977. The new figures include further responses to the agency's survey.

But despite the slight improvement in outlook, investment in real terms will decline for the second successive year because of inflation.

Federal authorities are hoping for inflation this year at between six and seven per cent. But inflation at that level would outpace investment growth.

In 1977, investment grew by 6.5 per cent from 1976 but the average inflation rate for the year was eight per cent.

The latest figures show the investment picture for the year is brightest in the four Atlantic provinces and British Columbia.

Capital spending — which includes investment in construction, machinery and equipment — will increase by 16 per cent in Newfoundland this year, the highest growth of any province.

New Brunswick's investment will be up by 15 per cent, B.C. by 12.2 per cent, Nova Scotia by 11.5 per cent and Prince Edward Island by 8.5 per cent.

But Ontario will see an increase of only 4.4 per cent, Quebec 4.2 per cent, Alberta by 3.4 per cent, Saskatchewan 2.5 per cent and Yukon and the Northwest Territories by 2.2 per cent.

Socreds Now Welching On Land Claims: Feds

OTTAWA (CP) — British Columbia's Social Credit government is trying to back out of its commitment to help settle Indian land claims, according to confidential federal government documents.

The documents, prepared by the federal native claims office say that the only effective means of bringing the province into claims negotiations is to increase political pressure.

Part of the plan includes a threat to establish a B.C. aboriginal rights commission without provincial government participation.

The commission, proposed one year ago by George Manuel, Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs president, would conduct hearings, commission studies and make recommendations on how to settle B.C. claims.

The documents say that preliminary discussions on the commission were held last year between Ottawa, B.C. and the Indians and were positive. However, Labor Minister Allan Williams, responsible for B.C. Indian affairs, later rejected the proposal.

'Recipe for Disaster'

OTTAWA — Canadians must accept as a fact of life that the devaluation of the dollar means imported goods will cost more, says Finance Minister Jean Chretien.

Consumers should "buy carefully" and in the case of foodstuffs buy more from Canadian farmers, he told the Commons.

It would be a "recipe for disaster" for the government to try to protect all consumers from all types of inflation, especially the imported variety. It would only cause more inflation.

The minister made the point after Statistics Canada reported that higher food and housing prices led the way in February as consumer prices rose by seven-tenths of one per cent.

Opposition Leader Joe Clark demanded action to ease the inflation burden on low income families especially since the most dramatic increases were for fresh fruit and vegetables which are mostly imported at this time.

He said costs in such areas were aggravated by the devaluation of the Canadian dollar and chastised the government for saying the poor should just accept the situation.

Chretien said devaluation also brought benefits in terms of making Canadian goods more competitive abroad and helping the balance of payments problem.

"We are paying the price of past indiscipline in the Canadian market," he said.

Meanwhile, the Retail Council of Canada says each Canadian spent an average of $9.34 more in 1977 on imported food than in 1976 because its cost went up as the Canadian dollar value declined.

The council said Wednesday the nation's total bill for food eaten at home in 1977 was $15.5 billion, an increase of about nine per cent over 1976.

ANOTHER LOW FOR $

Times News Services

The U.S. dollar today plunged to another postwar low of 232.40 yen on the Tokyo Foreign Exchange Market.

The currency started the day sharply lower at 233.10 and reached its low at 9:45 a.m., 45 minutes after the opening of trading. Wednesday's closing rate was 234.50.

The kidnapping of former Italian premier Aldo Moro in Rome, Israel's invasion of Lebanon, and Japanese economic news was cited by money dealers as reasons for the U.S. currency's instability.

In New York, the Canadian dollar was down 1-25 at $0.8903. Pound sterling was up 9-10 at $1.9135.

Pressure on the Canadian dollar had eased somewhat on New York money markets Wednesday as the currency climbed above 89 U.S. cents for the first time this week.

The dollar closed at 89.07 U.S. cents, up from Tuesday's close of 88.96 U.S. cents, and traders expressed guarded optimism that the currency would gain more strength over the next few weeks.
